

Nutrition Topic Presented Before Interested Group

Raleigh — Groundwork for consideration and discussion on a statewide basis of nutritional problems in the school and the home was laid at a conference held in the library of the State Department of Public Instructions in Raleigh and attended by representatives of various interested groups, including State and Federal agencies. Plans were discussed for a cooperative movement to study nutritional problems, with a view to working out ways and means for the adoption of remedial measures.

Following the conference, it was decided to hold another meeting in February, to hear the report of a committee named to make a survey of publications used by the various agencies.

Those present at yesterday's conference included: Dean J. O. Schaub, director of the State College Extension service; Miss Mary E. Thomas, nutrition supervisor for the State college Home Demonstration service; Mrs. Louine Moore, nutritionist for the WPA lunch room, garden and canning projects; Mrs. Martha P. Noel, training consultant for the WPA garden, canning and luncheon projects; Mrs. Stella Cusick, associate State director of the Farm Security Administration; Mrs. W. T. Bost, State Commissioner of Charities and Public Welfare; Dr. Walter Wilkins, coordinator of the State School Health Coordinating Service; Mrs. Pansy Fetzer, nutritionist for the State Department of Agriculture; A. E. Langston, State director of the Surplus Commodity Commission; Miss Catherine Dennis, vocational home economics supervisor; Miss Sallie Brooks, assistant nutritionist of the State College Home Demonstration service; William J. Wingate, Special Representative for the Federal Surplus Commodity commission, and Miss Rose Mills, representing the educational program of the WPA nursery school.

MINERS ENTOMBED AT BARTLEY W. VIRGINIA

Charleston, W. Va.—The state department of mines received a revised report that 95 miners were entombed in an explosion at Bartley last week.

Two were known dead. H. G. Houtz, chief engineer of the department, said Inspector E. L. Chatfield had called, saying that the last estimate showed 95 men caught in three sections of the mine, instead of 85 as first reported.

Houtz added his reports were that the chances were "very slim" that many of the men had been able to build brattices and save themselves.

(Company officials at Bartley expressed hope that men in at least two sections has been able to build brattices).

Chatfield reported it might be early morning before anything definite was learned about the trapped men.

Southern Self-Containment Stressed by War

The outbreak of the European war stresses to the people of the South the importance of self-containment. During the World War, the constantly increasing threats to shipping raised sky high the price of that necessity for the Southern farmer — nitrate to fertilize his land. This meant, of course, higher production costs for the farmer.

The current war finds the South in a much better position, since for ten years there has been production of American soda under way. Just ten years ago the first bags of Arcadian Nitrate went out from the great plant in Hopewell, Virginia. The history of Arcadian is covered in the sound and color motion picture "The New South," currently being released throughout the South.

No matter how greatly shipping costs are increased by war clouds, the South is now protected. This is a long step toward that desired goal, self-containment. But in addition to this factor, there is the important consideration of increased production and consequent prosperity all the way down the line from the production of American soda.

Every time a bag of American-produced nitrate is sold, a vast network of industry is put to work — coal mines, coke ovens, limestone quarries, soda ash production, cotton mills for bagging, power plants, railroads, steamships — all these and scores of other Southern industries and services benefit because the soda is produced here at home. And all this helps to increase buying power for the products of the Southern farmer.

SALE OF VALUABLE FARM PROPERTY

Under and by virtue of the authority conferred upon us in a Deed of Trust executed by G. W. Thomas and wife, Bessie Thomas, and James Lester and wife, Henrietta Lester, on the 1st day of December, 1936, and recorded in Book 45, Page 588, we will on 3rd day of February, 1940 12 o'clock noon at the courthouse door in Person County, Roxboro, N. C., sell at public auction for cash to the highest bidder, the following land, lina, adjoining the lot on which is situated the old water tank now or formerly owned by the estate of J. A. Long on the east, land of John Mitchell, being lot No. 5 of the Gallows Hill property, on the south, and South Main Street, aforesaid, on the west being lots 6 and 7 of the Gallows Hill property, map registered in Book 33, page 272, each of said lots fronting 25 feet on South Main street and running back a depth of 200 feet.

This December 11, 1939.

Cooperation Is Succeeding!

"Clean Up or Close Up" Campaign, with Public's Aid, Is Ridding State of Illegal, Disreputable Beer "Joints"

Colonel Edgar H. Bain
State Director

"Courageous support from the public, press, officials and law-abiding beer retailers accounts for our Committee's heartening success," declares Colonel Bain. "My appreciation is hereby extended to all, together with my appeal for continuance of this intelligent cooperation."

Six months ago, the Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors Committee began its efforts to eliminate those relatively few beer outlets that sought to hide liquor selling and other illegal activities behind the respectability of legal beer licenses.

"Clean Up or Close Up" was the ultimatum.

The results are gratifying. Public sentiment has been awakened. Newspapers all over the state have reinforced us with editorial support. Law enforcement agencies have responded with constructive aid. And 37 licenses have been revoked — 37 "dives," so to speak, "kayoed."

For the generous cooperation received, we are most grateful. Accept our pledge that throughout the New Year we shall continue unremittingly the job of driving law violators out of the beer retailing business in North Carolina — driving them out, and keeping them out.

Editorial Comment on "Clean Up" Campaign

Rockingham Post-Dispatch: "The industry does not want beer sold in joints where blind tigers operate. ... That's why the industry has a 'clean up' committee."

Oxford Ledger: "An alertness to insure distribution of their product only through reputable outlets is keeping the Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors Committee active in many sections of North Carolina."

Greensboro Record: "... the state committee of the brewers and beer distributors is in a position to render a very definite service in ridding communities of places which belong in the category of 'dives' and low class hang-outs."

Statesville Daily: "The average citizen is still rubbing his eyes in unbelief, but slowly is becoming convinced when he sees beer dealers losing their licenses after engaging in questionable practices. And that has happened here in Irredell."

Durham Sun: "The dealers to beer have outlived the bootlegger ... such a campaign is certain to have wholesome effects."

Hickory Daily Record: "... the Beer Committee has done its duty, and all persons who are sincerely interested in curbing the illegal sale of hard liquor will welcome the opportunity to join in the crusade."

Salisbury Post: "The beer folk have taken the stand that they want beer dispensed only in establishments of good general reputation. To that end they ... are filing formal legal petitions for the closing of such establishments as serve beer but fall in some measure to sustain a good name."

The State (Raleigh): "Col. Edgar Bain ... is reporting excellent progress ... The work has been progressing quietly but excellent results have been accomplished."

Lexington Dispatch: "... where persons are found selling without licenses the violation is promptly reported ... This work in a good many instances may result in a decided check on bootlegging."

15 years ago...

You paid 95c for a 100-watt bulb for your new "goose-neck" lamp. Electricity for lighting it cost the average residential customer about 1c per hour.

Today...

The same size bulb gives more light ... costs only 15c ... and can be used three times as long for a penny, because the cost of electricity for lighting is down 70 per cent.

As your use of Electricity has increased, our Company, and the industry as a whole, has responded with better service and more efficient equipment at greatly reduced costs.
