High Point To Act As Host To P. T. A. Convention

Parent-Teacher people of North Carolina are making plans to attend the 21st annual convention, which will be held at High Point this month.

Mrs. Doyle D. Alley, state PTA president, and her board members have been planning the program for months. And this week, Mrs. Alley announces that plans are practically complete for the 1940 state-wide PTA convention to be held in High Point, April 17-19. Hotel Sheraton is to be the convention headquarters.

The program, built around a central theme, "The Next Steps in Education", will bring to its listeners speakers from a dozen state organizations, both educational and civic. PTA believes in studying a subject from all angles, and developing a cooperative program of public relations.

Mrs. S. C. Cox, a national vice president, from Roanoke, Va., will represent the National Parent-Teacher Congress at the convention. An address by Mrs. Cox will be the main feature of the opening session on Wednesday afternoon, April 17. Mrs. Alley will present the convention theme at this time.

This spring convention for PTA workers, where delegates representing over 700 local associations come together, is regarded by 70,000 PTA members as a culmination of their year's efforts. Reports are made, officers elected, and education and inspirational addresses heard. This year a first vice president and a recording secretary are to be elected.

The High Point council is planning to play hostess in a big way. A banquet, several luncheons, and sight-seeing tours for delegates are being arranged.

FSCC Buys Over 19 Million Pounds From N. C. Farms

The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation brought 19,600,000 pounds of surplus farm products from North Carolina farmers first year and sent into the state about 27,600,000 pounds of food for distribution to the needy and underprivileged, A. E. Langston, State director of commodity distribution said this week.

Langston heads the commodity distribution division of the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare which distributed the excess food supplies to an average of 40,900 low-income families and 814 schools serving lunches to approximately 51,500 children.

Commodities purchased in North Carolina brought about $322,800 in federal money into local farmers pockets. Included in the purchases were 5,300 bushels of green beans, 1,388,900 pounds of cabbage, 22,400 barrels of cornmeal, 12,600 barrels of graham flour, 25,800 barrels of white flour; 110,300 bushels of sweet potatoes; and 501 bales of cotton.

Langston said the corporation's purchase program operated when requested by the growers themselves to stabilize glutted markets. Vegetables were bought from producers directly and the other products were purchased on a competitive bid basis.

The extension service and the State Department of Agriculture aided in the purchase program and were assisted by committees selected by farmers.

Tree Trimming Necessary When Wires Are Near

Proper trimming of trees located near electric utility wires is absolutely necessary to provide continuous service to customers and to prevent injury to the public from falling wires, T. Miller White, manager in this district for the Carolina Power and Light company, said today.

"It is necessary for a public utility company such as ours to trim trees along company lines to prevent contact of branches with their wires, and to prevent overhanging limbs and dead branches from falling over the line," said Mr. White.

Branches coming in contact with the line cause interruption of electric service and it is of record that a single limb falling across a line can stop service to several towns, he added.

"Trees are not trimmed primarily to protect our wires," Mr. White added, "but our company engages trained tree surgeons to do this work so we can provide continuous service to our customers and also protect the general public from falling wires."

Mr. White said his company not only maintains a highly trained crew of tree trimmers, but that the famed Davey tree trimming concern in Ohio is under contract with the company to supply trained tree surgeons from time to time as they are needed.

"Our men as well as the Davey men make effort to trim trees in a manner that will not injure shade trees and at the same time we endeavor to guard against any damage that might easily result by trees coming in contact with our lines."

The Carolina Power and Light company, Mr. White said, always endeavors to obtain full approval of municipalities and property owners before engaging in any tree trimming.
