

Golden Gate Exposition Prepares for '40 Opening

Face-lifting operations for the 1940 Golden Gate International exposition are well under way in preparation for the opening day, May 25. Left: Workmen are pictured plastering and painting in Treasure Island's court of reflections, where an entirely new color scheme will greet first-day visitors. Right: Statuary gets a bath on the exposition grounds. Jeanette Adams and Fay Lacey do their share with this sculptured figure.

CCC Has Set Out 19 Million Trees In N. C. Forests

Nineteen million forest trees have been planted in North Carolina since the start of the Civilian Conservation Corps, James J. McEntee, corps national director, said this week in commenting on the state's Arbor day, March 22.

Of the 39 camps now operating in North Carolina, McEntee said, 13 are under direction of the U. S. Forest Service and eight under the National Park Service. He explained that, through the allocation in 1933 and 1934 of $30,000,000 of Emergency Conservation Work funds for the purchase of national forest lands throughout the south and east, North Carolina's national forests have increased from 420,700 acres under government ownership in 1933, to more than 900,000 in 1938. There has been an average of about 14 camps on national forest lands, and for several periods, one on State-owned forest land carrying on reforestation.

The CCC reforestation program in North Carolina has resulted in speeding production in nurseries to supply the necessary seedlings for the planting program. The State forest tree nursery on the Clayton State Forest in Johnston county raised its annual production capacity of a half-million seedlings to ten million with the aid of CCC workers. Three new nurseries on Federal forest lands were established as part of the CCC reforestation program, by 1938 reported a total annual production capacity of 13,000,000 young trees.

Since the beginning of the North Carolina CCC program, enrollees from the forest camps have spent a total of 168,000 man-days of labor in these nurseries, collecting and processing seeds for planting, weeding new beds, transplanting and shipping planting stock. They have gathered 34,800 bushels of pine cones from which to extract seeds, and 380,000 pounds of hardwood seeds.

Mrs. Ickes Hostess at Indian Art Show

Mrs. Harold Ickes, wife of the secretary of the interior, is shown with Chief James White Calf and Chief Theodore Lost Star at the exhibition of Indian portraits in the fine arts gallery of the interior department building in Washington. The exhibition is composed of 90 drawings of American Indians by Eben F. Comins.

Since forest fire has been one of the chief causes of forest destruction, CCC enrollees have extended and improved the fire control systems throughout North Carolina's timbered areas.

Medical School's Ground Is Broken

Winston-Salem, April 5 — The Bowman Gray school of medicine of Wake Forest college, to be constructed adjacent to the North Carolina Baptist hospital, reached the first material stage in its establishment today when ground was broken for the structure by young Bowman Gray, III, and Egbert L. Davis, III, amid impressive exercises.

One of the youthful ground-breakers is the grandson of Bowman Gray, who provided for the establishment of the Bowman Gray Foundation, funds from which will be used to construct and equip the new medical school. The other is the grandson of Egbert L. Davis, president of the North Carolina Baptist hospital and chairman of the joint hospital and medical school building committee.

Speakers during the exercises were Dr. Thurman D. Kitchen, president of Wake Forest and former dean of its medical school; Odus M. Mull of Shelby, chairman of the hospital board of directors; Bowman Gray, Jr., a member of the Bowman Gray Foundation, and E. L. Davis, chairman of the joint building committee. J. L. Memory of Wake Forest acted as master of ceremonies.

Others participating were members of the college board of trustees, directors of the hospital, representatives of the Carolinas-Virginias hospital conference, physicians and members of the hospital nursing staff.

Simultaneous with the construction of the medical school, a new wing and other additions will be made to the hospital, doubling its present capacity of 100 beds. More than $200,000 has been raised for this purpose through subscriptions.

Total cost of all the construction will be approximately $750,000.

THOMAS ABOUT SET FOR NEW PRESIDENTIAL DRIVE

Washington, April 5 — Norman Thomas, apparently about to undertake another presidential campaign as the candidate of the Socialist party, criticized John L. Lewis' third party threat today as "political romanticism".

Thomas came to Washington to attend the biennial Socialist party convention, which begins tomorrow, and at a press conference, made it plain that the Socialists would have nothing to do with such an effort by the C. I. O. leader.

Lewis said several days ago that unless the nominee and platform of the Democratic party were suitable he probably would call a convention of youth, Negro, old age, and labor groups to take appropriate action.

New Pennsylvania Flood Threat Dims

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 5 — A second flood crest spread out harmlessly tonight down the widening valley of the Susquehanna.

After abrupt rises, rain and snow fed head waters in highlands of upper Pennsylvania and lower New York began dropping steadily. No more rain was expected immediately, and a forecast of colder weather indicated the run-off would be checked. There was little new damage.

The rise of the Susquehanna that sent flood waters over lowlands between Towanda and Wilkes-Barre for the second time this week stopped before nightfall at Towanda and a crest at least four feet below Monday's high mark here was predicted during the night.

Waters were high along the entire Susquehanna valley through watersheds of eastern and western Penn. to the confluence of the Alleghany and Monongahela that form the Ohio river at Pittsburgh.

The Alleghany, with a trace of snow at its head waters, spilled over its banks into Main street at Portville, N. Y., and flooded lowlands outside Olean where it was 15 1-2 feet above normal—the highest mark this year.

The river overflowed at Franklin and Warren, Pa., but failed to reach floodstage at Pittsburgh's "golden triangle." The crest downstream along the Ohio was expected to be below danger levels.

Crossing the street between intersections in five times as likely to result in death as crossing at intersections, records of the Highway Safety Division show.

Three-fourths of the drivers involved in accidents in North Carolina last year had been driving a year or longer.

Schedule To Be Followed

Street cleaning will be carried on as formerly by men with pick-up carts and that six large receptacles will be placed in the area for the purpose of temporary disposal of trash, refuse and dirt from the streets. In addition, a spray will be used to wash off the streets and it is hoped that other equipment can be bought at a later date.

It was indicated that citizens of the city can assist in the program of keeping streets clean by seeing that no trash at either business houses or residences is thrown into the street or piled in so loose a manner as to blow away.

It was said Saturday morning that the city cleaning and disposal department expects to cooperate fully with plans being made by women of the city for the annual "Clean-up" week, beginning April 23, and that the institution of the present schedule, which is to be permanent and subject only to such modifications as in district area lines as may be found necessary by trial and error, should be of considerable assistance in the special "Clean-up" week program.
