

State Office Says CCC Now Open To Unemployed Youth

Unemployment and the need of the training available rather than a family's need for relief funds Conservation Corps now is they will broaden the third quarter Civilian Conservation Corps acceptance operations in North Carolina, T. L. Grier, State CCC selection supervisor, said this week.

Acceptance of 2,405 enrollees will be held at Raleigh July 1, Wilmington July 2, Asheville July 9 and 10, and at North Carolina CCC camps from July 1 to 20. County welfare superintendents are local selecting agencies operating in conjunction with the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare, State selection agency.

"Enrollment is open to all men not employed and in need of work who are between the ages of 18 and 25, and no applicant will now be excluded from selection because his family is not in need of the allotment to be sent home each month," Grier stated.

He quoted J. J. McEntee, national corps director, to the effect that the greatest field of service for the CCC lies in training large numbers of skilled and semi-skilled mechanics with elementary engineering experience.

With the CCC operating and maintaining the largest group of mechanized equipment in the country, 63 central repair shops will be in operation by the fall in which unemployed youths can learn to repair trucks, power shovels, pumps, graders, generators and compressors under a full-time instructor.

Fifteen hundred camp garages give an additional work space for repair and maintenance of 40,000 pieces of automotive machinery constituting a vast laboratory for repairs and maintenance on which 72,000 enrollees are constantly learning garage mechanics.

Each of the 1,500 camps conducts a cooking and baking school in which 22,000 boys have been trained in kitchen activities since 1933. Trained instructors in each camp have taught first aid work to 300,000 youths since beginning of the program.

Road and bridge construction, telephone line construction and repair, shortwave radio operation and photography all will now be available to unemployed youths with no work experience to fit them for a job later in life.

Grier quoted Senator James F. Byrnes as saying that in event of national emergency necessitating a general draft, youth with mechanical and cooking experience in the CCC might as the result of such training be assigned to non-combatant activities rather than to combat work in uniform.

brief message of appreciation from the Queen of the evening, dancing was resumed and continued until two o'clock. The coronation took place shortly before the mid-night intermission.

Chairman for the Legion dance of Saturday night, final event in a week crowded with public and private parties and entertainments for returning Person residents, friends and neighbors, was Baxter Mangum. Under his direction the gymnasium was attractively decorated and many couples enjoyed both round and square dancing which began at 8:30 o'clock and continued until midnight to the music of Bob Fletcher's orchestra, from Danville, Va. For their festival dance the Kiwanis had Bill Vanden Dries and his orchestra.

Both dances drew many out of town visitors from among the younger social sets, although a number of older residents and visitors joined the young people on the dance floor or occupied spectators' stands on each side of the gym.

choice was made from the floor during the first hour of dancing. Decorations for Friday night's affair were patriotic red, white and blue. Also in keeping with the decorative theme were banners urging support of the Red Cross War Relief fund campaign.

On Friday afternoon, following picnics, parades, and receptions given from Monday through Thursday, a children's party was given in high school grove. Under direction of Miss Annie Long Bradsher, chairman of this event, between 75 and 100 children enjoyed games and refreshments during the late afternoon. Many of the young guests, were accompanied by their parents. Balloons and other favors were given to the youngsters before the party was terminated.

Mrs. B. G. Clayton, who originated Person and Roxboro "Hospitality Week" last year, again acted as general chairman. Assisting her were many residents of the town and county, who served on special committees.

Among private parties given were an intermission party at Hotel Roxboro for the younger social set and a tea dance at the Country Club by Page Harris Friday.

Flight From Home in the Winter of Life

Somewhere in France... this aged, feeble old lady is experiencing the horrors of war for the third time in her life. She knew war when the Prussians marched on Paris in 1870; again she met it in 1914 when the Germans got as far as the Marne. Today she is again a fugitive before the relentless Nazi war machine.

North Carolina Beer Sales Down Below Nation's

Raleigh, June 29 — The per capita consumption of beer in North Carolina is less than one-fourth of the per capita consumption in the United States.

Figures compiled by the Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors committee disclosed that North Carolina consumed 9,474,034 gallons of beer during the 12-month period ended May 30 — less than three gallons per person a year. The nation's per capita consumption is approximately 12 1/2 gallons.

During these 12 months, the state consumed 305,614.72 for the corresponding period of the 1938-39 year, according to records of the State Department of Revenue.

Despite this 12 percent increase, the per capita consumption in North Carolina is low, indicating that this state is not a beer-drinking state. The per capita consumption for the nation is more than four times as much, while some states drink seven times as much.

Retail sales for the past 12 months were largest in August and October with June a close second. With only one exception — January — the monthly sales this year have shown an increase over the corresponding months of the previous 12-month period, it was announced.

North Carolinians also prefer their beer in bottles and cans — packaged sales representing approximately 90 per cent of the state's volume for the past year. In the nation there is little dif-

Tobacco Festival To Follow History In Annual Pageant

South Boston, Va., June 29 — (Special to Times) — At Jamestown, Va., in 1608, tobacco was first grown by a white man, John Rolfe. In 1935, tobacco was first glorified at South Boston, Va. with the inauguration of the annual National Tobacco Festival. There is something melodramatic about the interim between 1608 and 1935. These phases of the growth of the tobacco industry will be graphically depicted in a great outdoor pageant at the sixth annual National Tobacco Festival in South Boston, on Thursday and Friday, September 5 and 6. This will constitute only one of the many especially prepared features for the entertainment of a nation, already beset with war news, but ready and waiting for a major event to distract the mind and relieve a certain hysteria now existing.

Patriotism will be the theme of the sixth celebration, and through the efforts of the National Tobacco Festival, a great American agricultural product will be placed in the foreground of the reference between packaged and draught beer sales.

on the pinnacle it belongs. American agriculture and American manufacture must proceed undiminished. Wheat, corn, tobacco, and other products must be grown. America will answer the call unswervingly, and it is the aim of the National Tobacco Festival to aid this propagation of continued effort.

The aim of the National Tobacco Festival are serious ones. They are not entirely fiestas of play. There is, of course, glamour, with an outstanding personality for queen, and a world's leading orchestra featured in the celebration ball, and a parade without equal in the annals of annual celebrations; typical tobacco auctions, tobacco plantation tours and an old fashioned square dance, and the pageant, produced by the masters of pageantry. However, a serious mein is evident as the workman-like and well-planned celebration gets under way.

HEAVIEST TAX LOAD

Washington — The nation shouldered its heaviest Federal tax load since the World War this past week.

President Roosevelt's signature made law of a bill estimated to raise an additional $4,692,500,000 in the next five years by adding 2,200,000 citizens to the list of income tax payers and by raising the rates on income, profits, excise, gift and inheritance taxes. The money will be used to help finance the defense program authorized by Congress.

The treasury calculated that the law would increase anticipated federal revenue in the 1941 fiscal year, which begins Monday, from $5,652,300,000 (not counting social security funds, which are now outside the budget) to $6,467,600,000. An extra $994,300,000 was expected to be raised in each of the following four years.
