FARM QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Question: What percentage of soybeans can I add to the ration for my hogs without injurious effects?

Answer: Recent experiments at this station have shown that as much as fifty percent of the ration may be soybeans for pigs from 61 to 100 pounds in weight. When the pigs reached 100 pounds the ration was changed to corn-tankage containing 13 percent cottonseed meal and this was continued until the animals were slaughtered at 230 pounds. Out of 153 hogs used, 148 or 96.7 percent of the chilled carcasses graded firm.

Question: Can seed Irish potatoes from the early crop be used to plant the late crop?

Answer: Seed from the spring crop of such varieties as Cobblers, Early Rose, and Bliss Triumph may be planted for the late crop if the seed are sprouting, but a better plan is to secure seed potatoes from last year's crop which have been kept in storage. It sometimes takes three or four weeks before sprouting begins even if the seed are covered with hay or straw and kept moist until sprouting occurs. In any case, plant only those seed which have sprouted.

Question: What is the best time to cut corn for silage?

Answer: The proper time to cut corn for silage is when the grain is denting and the shuck slightly yellow. This stage of maturity is reached about a week or ten days before the corn is ready to cut and shock. If cut earlier the nutritive value of the silage will be lowered and the acid content often increased to an objectionable level. If the harvesting is delayed beyond the proper stage of maturity the crop will not contain enough moisture to pack and keep well in the silo. If sorghum is used for silage this crop should not be cut until the seed in the head are firm.

Reader's Digest Has Article On "The Lost Colony"

Manteo, July 4 — The current Reader's Digest, popular monthly magazine which publishes condensations of articles of lasting interest, features a story on "The Lost Colony," the Paul Green historical drama now playing its fourth summer season at the huge Waterside Theatre here, in its series entitled, "Traditional Ceremonies in the United States."

Condensed from the leading article in the June issue of "Holland's: The Magazine of the South," the material reprinted in The Reader's Digest concerns the historical development of "The Lost Colony" as a community celebration of the historic events on the very site of the original colony sent over by Sir Walter Raleigh in 1587.

"The Lost Colony" is a non-commercial venture sponsored by the Roanoke Island Historical association. Paul Green, noted native Pulitzer Prize dramatist, wrote the drama gratis and solely for presentation at the birthplace of the Nation. More than 250,000 have seen it during the past three years, and 100,000 are expected before the season closes, Sept. 2.

Ex-Tea Planter Now In Movies

John Sutton, who left an English college to manage a ranch in South Africa, and who served for a while as a tea planter in India, is today the principal of Hollywood's most unusual success story.

"I had no thoughts of a dramatic career, until I traveled half around the world to California and decided to live here," Sutton explains.

Year-around polo, tennis, golf and other outdoor sports he loved, made Sutton eager to settle permanently in California. So when a director suggested that he work in pictures, Sutton promptly accepted.

Today, after displaying unquestioned acting talent in "Elizabeth and Essex" and "The Invisible Man Returns," Sutton holds a term contract at Universal. His latest screen role is in Universal musical "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby."

Farm and Home Week Will Be Held Last of This Month

State College To Be Scene Of Activity For Week-while Rural Program.

Raleigh, July 4 — A five-day program packed full of education, recreation and entertainment is awaiting rural people who attend Farm and Home Week at N. C. State college, July 29 - August 1.

Dr. I. O. Schaub, director of the Extension Service, and Miss Ruth Current, State home agent, said this year's program is expected to strike the best balance between instruction and entertainment in years.

Reports from every section of the State indicate a record-breaking attendance this year. With AAA committeemen scheduled to attend, the enrollment may reach 2,500. In years past, attendance has averaged between 1,500 and 2,000.

Joint sessions of men and women will be held each of the five days except Thursday to begin each day's program. Following this session, the two groups will break up into separate meetings where they will receive instruction in a wide variety of subjects.

For instance, women will be given their choice of classroom work in the following subjects: clothing, foods and nutrition, food conservation and marketing, health, home management and house furnishings, home beautification, horticulture, hospitality, 4-H leadership, music appreciation, preliminary procedures, poultry, recreation, and libraries.

On the other hand, the men will study poultry, forestry, the AAA program, cotton, tobacco, beekeeping, horticulture, crop rotation, legumes, and other farm subjects.

Each evening will be turned over to recreation. Included on these programs will be games, contests, music, group singing, and square dancing.

Complete details on the convention may be obtained from Dan M. Paul, State college, Raleigh.

More Workers Are Added To U. C. C.

Raleigh, July 4 — Twenty-four workers were added in June and 26 were added as of July 1 to the personnel of the State Unemployment Compensation commission, 29 of these in the Unemployment Compensation Division and 21 in the Employment Service Division, all from the register of those who had passed the merit examinations and were on the waiting list, Mrs. J. B. Spilman, Commission vice-chairman, announces.

The additions are to take place of workers who have resigned during the year or more and whose places were left vacant in a lax period. A gradual increase in work due in part to seasonal layoffs in plants of the State, necessitated the additions, Mrs. Spilman said.

'Congresswoman'

Margaret Chase Smith, wife of the late Rep. Clyde Smith (R.) of Maine, being sworn in to fill the vacancy left by him. Mrs. Smith is the eighth woman in congress.

Truck Accidents Cause of Deaths

Raleigh, July 4 — Three fatal accidents in North Carolina last month called attention to the danger of riding on the back of a truck, Ronald Hocutt, Director of the Highway Safety Division, reported this week.

Accident records for June show that a 33-year-old woman, a 36-year-old man and a 15-year-old boy were killed during the month as a result of falling off or being thrown out of trucks on the rear of which they were riding.

"Riding on the back end of and on running boards of passenger vehicles is a practice which should be discouraged by every driver in North Carolina," said Ronald Hocutt, Director of the Safety Division.

"The danger of someone falling off or being thrown off a moving vehicle if they are riding on the running board or outside the cab when the vehicle strikes a hard bump or swerves unexpectedly is obvious," he added, "and the most effective means of combatting this highly dangerous practice is for every motor vehicle driver to refuse to carry any passengers for whom they cannot find a seat inside."

"Drivers who permit passengers to ride on the outside of their cars or trucks are at least morally responsible if persons so riding should suffer some mishap."

Crowd Expected For Farm Event

Raleigh, July 4 — Farmers from 30 counties will attend the 35th annual field day at the Piedmont Test Farm at Statesville, July 18, to hear prominent agricultural and industrial leaders and inspect the "march of progress" in farm research, Commissioner of Agriculture W. Kerr Scott announced here today.

Odus M. Mull of Shelby, industrialist, farmer and legislator; Harry B. Caldwell of Greensboro, master of the State Grange Mrs. Rosalind Redfearn of Wadesboro, Anson county home agent and Dr. I. E. Miles, director of the soil testing division, State Department of Agriculture, will be the speakers. A crowd of 4,000 farmers and their friends is expected.

D. S. Coltrane, assistant to the Commissioner of Agriculture, will preside as chairman for the day. J. Wade Hendrick, assistant director in charge of the Piedmont Test Farm, will supervise the tours of the experimental plats on the farm.

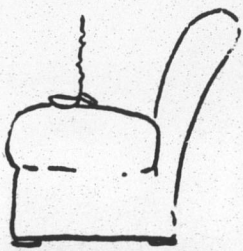

Miss Anne Tucker of Statesville, Iredell county home agent, will be chairman of the women's program in the afternoon. A mattress-making demonstration will be presented as a feature.

Contests will also be held in the afternoon under the supervision of A. R. Morrow, Iredell county agent, assisted by J. W. Pou and Dave Redfearn, assistant Iredell county agents.

F. E. Miller, director of the test farms division of the State Department of Agriculture, will be chairman of the central committee for the event.

Specialists of N. C. Experiment Stations and State College Extension Service, State Department of Agriculture and U. S. Department of Agriculture will explain the research program and experiments at the farm.

Bud worms are causing considerable damage in Craven county tobacco fields, according to Paul M. Cox, assistant farm agent of the N. C. State College Extension service.
