Gibraltar Gets First Air Raids

Gibraltar — The first raids of the war were made today on the great British fortress of Gibraltar, the western key to the Mediterranean.

Several bombs fell, but most of them dropped into the sea, and there were no casualties.

(A Madrid radio broadcast heard in London asserted that it had been "established" that the raiding planes were French. British sources would not comment.)

Across the bay from Gibraltar, in Algeiras, Spain, it was reported that three British cruisers, damaged off Oran in Wednesday's British attack on the French Mediterranean fleet, had landed the bodies of 30 British seamen killed in action.

It was also reported in Algeiras that a French armed vessel escaped from Gibraltar Friday despite the presence there of the most powerful of all warships, the mighty British Battle Cruiser Hood.
