Week Hailed As

Best Ever Held

On the banks of the Olentangy River, about three miles from the center of Columbus, Ohio, is the large Georgian Colonial garden apartment project known as Olentangy Village. Taking full advantage of the natural beauty of the situation and with studied orientation of the buildings giving most of them a southern exposure, Olentangy Village provides attractive living quarters for over 400 families. The 404 units of the group comprise 1,376 rooms with a total valuation of $2,200,000. The Federal Housing Administration insured a mortgage of $1,735,000 on the property. The average rental per room in Olentangy Village is $14.08, with family unit rentals averaging $47.96.

Skipper Gets $8.00 After About 20 Years In Mail

Boston, Mass., August 8 -While bill collectors have been known to dun creditors for old accounts years after they became due, a payment that takes 20 years to catch up with the detor is considered to be as much news at the traditional "man bites dog." At least that's the consensus along the waterfront today. as old salts discuss the pros and cons of what happened to Cap'n Dahlgaard's mail.

It seems that the veteran skipper brought his ship, the American steamer Metapan, into port from Puerto Cortes, Honduras, and was given the letters that had accumulated at the owner's office. Among them was one from New Orleans, postmarked July 2, 1920.

But the question discussed around Long Wharf today of whether the letter might have been in the cutsody of a modern Rip Van Winkle, is less surprising than the contents of the lettera Post Office money order for $8. The sender was a long-time associate of the skipper, back in the days when he was a third mate, and tried to help his fellowmen over the hard spots of sea life. The debt had been long forgotten.

To cap the climax, the skipper inquired at the Post Office and found that because it had taken 20 years for them to get the letter to him, it would now take about three months to go through the necessary red tape to collect the $8-without interest-on an order held beyond the normal limit.

Growers Make Ready To Sow Winter Peas

The seed must be inoculated unless they are sown on land that is already inoculated. Land inoculated for vetch or for garden peas (May peas) does not require inoculation for Austrian peas.
