

Catholics Hold Roanoke Service

Manteo, Aug. 12.—Solemn high mass of the Catholic Church was celebrated on Roanoke Island Sunday for the first time in its three and a half centuries of documented history, and the sermon, delivered by the Rt. Rev. Vincent G. Taylor, Abbot of Belmont, was a ringing challenge to Americans to hold fast to the ideals that brought civilization to these shores.

Too many in America, Abbot Taylor declared, have lost sight of the heritage of Roanoke, the stamina and the spirit of many nations, many races and many creeds from which a nation was built to become the citadel of religious and political freedom on the earth.

America must be made impregnable against every possible attack from within and without through any one of our manifold institutions, spiritual, political or economic, he said, and into this sound body politic must be breathed by us who are proud of our nation and of the privilege of living under its flag, a new spirit, a new soul else we shall be numbered with the nations of the earth which have lost their souls—not as these heroic colonists who trod this bit of earth, who, lost, found themselves, but as the utterly lost.

Dispensing with the canopies that ordinarily cover the stage of the Lost Colony theatre for the Sunday morning religious services, the mass this morning was celebrated in full sunlight as storm cloud gathered in the southwest. The canopy that covers the amphitheatre was also displaced for the day, and the congregation of more than a thousand sat through the entire mass without shelter from the sky.

Celebrant of the mass was the Rev. Arthur J. Racette, rector of St. Ann's Church in Edenton, assisted by Father William J. LePage, of Elizabeth City as deacon and the Rev. Frederick Nealon, of Baltimore, as sub-deacon. The master of ceremonies was the Rev. John Brown, of the cathedral in Raleigh. The Rev. Michael Carey of Elizabeth City assisted Theo Cronk, director of the Lost Colony Choir.

For the colorful ceremony of high mass the stage chapel was decorated by Mrs. Bradford Fearing and Albert Bell, with the full paraphernalia of the church.

Home of Good Proportions

* This home breaks away from the monotonous architectural design which so many small homes employ. Attractive features which stamp it as unusual are its generous front porch, its novel living-room window with pointed gable, and the concealed garage that gives a sense of added space to the house. Appraised by the Federal Housing Administration at $7,350, this home was built in New Jersey with an FHA-insured mortgage amounting to $6,400, to be amortized over a 20-year period.

Granville Wilt Shows Up Over Wide Region

Flue-cured tobacco growers of other sections of the State are being plagued this year by Granville wilt, a disease heretofore largely centered in Granville, Durham, and Wake counties. Howard H. Garriss, plant pathologist of the State College Extension Service, reports that the wilt has been found this summer in many counties, with the worst new outbreak in Southeastern North Carolina.

Granville wilt is caused by a bacterial germ which lives in the soil indefinitely if plants susceptible to the germ are grown on the land. Since it is not transferred through the air, Garriss said the only explanation for the widespread occurrence of the disease this year is that it has been brought in by tobacco plants imported from one area to another, or by soil attached to potatoes, tomatoes, peppers, string beans, peanuts, Jimson weeds, cocklebur and other plants susceptible to attack by the wilt.

He recommends the following control measures, none of which, however, have been proven to be entirely "sure" as a cure or preventive for the disease: Prevent washing of soil from infected to uninfected fields, avoid transportation of tobacco stalks and trash from infected to uninfected fields, avoid transportation of soil on farm implements and on the feet of animals and men from infected to uninfected fields, and grow tobacco in infected fields only in a three to five-year rotation with resistant or immune crops adapted to local conditions.

Garriss says that the following plants apparently are immune to Granville wilt: corn, sweet potatoes, cotton; wheat, oats, rye, barley crimson clover, Austrian winter peas, vetch, lespedeza, crotalaria, herds (red top) grass, chab grass, watermelons, cantaloupes, and sorghum.

MILK

Thirteen 4-H club boys of Alexander county have bought cows and are selling milk in a recently established route, reports George B. Hobson, farm agent of the State College Extension Service.

Bette Davis And Charles Boyer Star In Film

Starring Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, "All This And Heaven Too", Warner Bros. screen version of the world-applauded novel by Rachel Field, will have its first local showing Thursday and Friday at the Palace theatre. In the supporting cast are Jeffrey Lynn, Barbara O'Neil, Virginia Weidler, Walter Hampden, Henry Daniell, George Coulouris and many more. Adapted for the screen by Casey Robinson, "All This And Heaven Too" is the bittersweet love story of a little French governess, seemingly destined for spinsterhood, who inspires the love of a great nobleman and thus becomes the storm center of a murder scandal that rocked Paris a century ago. Anatole Livak directed the production.

BAN

Because of poor crop prospects, Argentina has prohibited the export of wheat and wheat flour, government officials saying there will be but a slight surplus.

REDUCED

Wilson county's corn yield has been reduced considerably by the continued dry weather during the past several weeks, says Assistant Farm Agent J. A. Marsh.

Legumes Have Place In Sate's Pastures

Corn is the only crop grown more extensively than pastures in North Carolina. But pastures do not receive near the attention of corn, cotton, tobacco, small grains and other crops.

R. L. Lovvorn, State College agronomist, says that "the expanded livestock program in the South that everybody is talking about depends on cheap feed, and pasture is the answer to that problem." With few exceptions, no livestock industry has ever permanently survived that did not depend to a large extent on grazing and hay crops, he says. "We have more than a million acres of cleared pasture land in North Carolina," the agronomist continued, "but a great deal of it is not worthy of the name. Successful pastures must include legumes in the sod. Experimental results bear this out.

"A pure stand of good Dallis grass sod has yielded only 1,600 pounds of dry herbage per acre during the last two years in a test. A similar plant seeded to Dallis grass plus lespedeza produced an average yield of 2,900 pounds of forage during the same period. The addition of lespedeza increased the poundage of a carpet grass pasture from 600 to 1,900 pounds, and Bermuda grass from 800 to 2,000 pounds."

Lovvorn says that even more important than quantity is the quality of legume-grass pastures. "Grasses run very low in calcium during the summer and fall, and during these seasons the percentage has been doubled by the lespedeza," he reported.

The agronomist advises the use of lespedeza unless the soil is in a good state of fertility, in which case white clover will do good. Lespedeza can be grown anywhere in the State except on some of the sandhill soils. "But," he says, "legumes give best results when they are fertilized. Lime and phosphate are the best treatments for legumes."

TURKEYS

Although Thanksgiving and Christmas are months away, Anson county growers are selling small lots of turkeys on the poultry market, reports Assistant Farm Agent Clarence Earley.

EXPORTS

Exports from the United States in June increased more than 48 per cent over the same month in 1939, rising from $236,164,000 to $350,458,000, the jump being caused by movement of war supplies.

SEED

Greene county farmers have ordered 40,000 pounds of Austrian winter peas through the AAA's grant-of-aid program, enough to plant approximately 1,200 acres this fall.

MATTRESSES

Approximately 1,200 applications have been received from low-income Nash county farm families for mattresses under the new Federal-State cotton surplus disposal program.

COTTON

A careful check of cotton fields in all sections of Halifax county reveals an excellent crop with practically no boll weevil infestations, reports Farm Agent W. O. Davis.

IMPROVEMENT

Increased industrial production for national defense is expected to create a sound improvement in domestic demand for farm products, reports the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

HYBRIDS

New, high-producing hybrid chickens, bred by methods now commonly practiced in the growing of corn hybrids, have been announced by a corn company of Des Moines, Iowa.

COTTON

Some cotton authorities are forecasting a record-breaking home consumption of more than 8,000,000 bales of cotton in the new season which began August 1.

TVA

The Tennessee Valley Authority has announced that work has been started on the national defense expansions authorized by Congress to increase the TVA's installed power capacity to 300,000 kilowatts.
