Despite the gradual increase of Christmas activities, parties in Roxboro have during the past week claimed the attention of many residents.

On Tuesday evening Mrs. J. D. Fitzgerald was hostess to her bridge club at her home on Lamar street, where high score was won by Mrs. Clyde Bowen. Guest award went to Mrs. James Stephenson. Decorations were in holiday motif and refreshments consisted of an ice course with coffee.

On Wednesday at Hotel Roxboro Mrs. G. I. Prillaman was a bridge-luncheon hostess. Club prize was won by Mrs. W. C. Bullock and visitor's award went to Mrs. John Bullock. Decorations again carried out the Christmas theme. Especially beautiful was the long luncheon table in the dining room, where covers were laid for a dozen guests and the hostess.

Also on Wednesday Mrs. Gordon Brown entertained her bridge club at the hotel, where guests were received at 8 o'clock. DRIVERS HELD

A driver delivering a ton of coal this fall got out of his truck to open the coal chute door and left the truck out of gear, with the motor running. The truck rolled down an incline and pinned a woman against the house, killing her instantly. In Raleigh a few days ago, an oil truck driver left his truck parked next to the curb while he ran into a drug store to get some cigarettes. The truck rolled off down the street, smashing into the side of a house.

"Such accidents as these are utterly inexcusable," Director Hocutt said, "and they are due entirely to the carelessness of the drivers."

"Parking properly is a thing so easy to do," he said. "It is always advisable to cut off the motor and set the hand brake before leaving a parked vehicle. If parked on a downgrade, cut the front wheels into the curb; on an upgrade, cut the front wheels away from the curb. Drivers of trucks should always chuck their wheels before leaving their trucks parked on an incline, because a hand brake can not always be depended upon to hold a heavy truck. Even air brakes can not always be counted on to hold a truck parked on a grade, because there may be leaks. Proper parking is highly important."

His address was punctuated here and there by humorous illustrations but his main theme was serious and was apparently greatly appreciated. Introduction of the speaker was by Dr. A. L. Allen.

Presiding was club president Gordon C. Hunter and music was in charge of Wallace W. Woods with Mrs. Woods at the piano. Later in the evening towel sets from a local towel mill were given to feminine guests. Each package was wrapped in bright cellophane and colors exhibited blended with table decorations suggestive of the approaching Christmas season. Other gifts, prizes from various merchants in the city, were also presented. Club attendance for this the most important and brilliant social occasion of the Rotary winter season was unusually large.

Nitrate Company Shows New Film

New York, Dec. 14. — A new

A new talking motion picture in full natural color showing interesting parallels between the food requirements of plants, animals and people has just been released by the Natural Chilean Nitrate folks. Showings of the picture, the title of which is "The Magic Desert," and "Vitamin Elements in Plant Feeding," will be made in all the Southern States.

The new picture is in two distinct parts. In the second portion of the film, the effects on crops of various plant food deficiencies are shown in natural colors. So far as is known, the new Natural Nitrate film is the first made which actually identifies and pictures these deficiencies just as they appear in plants in the field. Thus the motion picture should help farmers to recognize the deficiency symptoms and conditions in their own crops.

"The Magic Desert" portion of the film, also entirely in natural color, shows new and interesting scenes in connection with the mining, refining, transportation and use of Natural Chilean Nitrate. Highlights of this portion of the picture are photographs, made this year, of crops growing in the 97th year of a continuous experiment at the world famous Rothamsted Experiment Station. During the 97 years of continuous cropping all the nitrogen in the fertilizer used came from Natural Nitrate of Soda. A striking battle with a giant marlin in the waters off the coast of Chile provides thrills for sports lovers.

State Managers for Chilean Nitrate Educational Bureau, Inc. are now arranging special showings of the new picture to farm audiences, to groups of agricultural workers, and to fertilizer agents throughout the entire South.

"HOME-MADE" Wills ARE DYNAMITE!

You've heard the old saying: "A man who is his own lawyer has a fool for a client." The truth of this homely adage is demonstrated daily in the probate courts of this country.

Will after Will fails to accomplish its purpose because people, in trying to do the job themselves, make legal mistakes.

Drawing Wills is a lawyer's job. See your attorney. We will gladly give you the benefit of our suggestions about the business and financial phases of your estate plans.
