Fashion Show And Beef Cattle Need Wedding Attracts Protein Addition Large Audience

With many of the young women of the City acting as models, an attractive fashion show, sponsored by Roxboro Central Grammar school parent-teacher association, was presented in the school auditorium to a large and an appreciative audience Tuesday night. Master of ceremonies was Wallace W. Woods, secretary of the Roxboro Chamber of Commerce, who introduced each young woman as she came upon the stage.

Interlude of the evening, furnished by a comic skit presented by Mayor S. G. Winstead and City Manager Percy Bloxam, was followed by a "Manless Wedding" in which more than fifty women in the City and County participated. Principals were: Mrs. Robert Hester, the bride, Mrs. L. N. Rynd, the groom, and Miss Edna Collins, the minister. Other leading roles were taken by Mesdames L. M. Carlton, J. A. Bean, Roy Cribb, Teague Kirby, Edgar Masten, Bill Minor and J. L. Hester and Misses Maude and Mabel Montague, Lee Rose and Miss Cothran, Miss Brooks and Mrs. Preston Satterfield, Sr.

The fashion show was presented with the cooperation of leading merchants in the City. Pianist for that event was Robert Edgar Long.

Mormons Meet

On Wednesday evening, March 5, at 7 o'clock, in church headquarters in the Kaplan building, third floor, members of the Church of Christ of the Latter Day Saints will have a conference at which the speaker will be Elder James P. Jensen, president of the Eastern Central Mission. Presiding Elder of the Roxboro branch of the church is B. T. Soloman. The public is invited to attend.

Sam L. Williams, assistant animal husbandman of N. C. State College, has an answer to the question: "Can beef be produced without a protein supplement?"

This is what he has been telling breeders and feeders who have asked the question in recent weeks: "In my opinion it can be done, but it is neither practical nor profitable." Then he goes on to explain that the important thing to the cattle producer is how much weight and finish he can put on his cattle and how long it will require. Efficient production is essential to greatest profit in any business, and this is especially true in the cattle business.

Some of the more common protein supplements are: cottonseed meal, soybean meal, linseed meal, and corn gluten meal. All of these are about equal in feeding value.

Williams explained that the economy of feeding a protein supplement lies in the fact that such feeds are responsible for more efficient utilization of feed, larger gains, higher finish, and a greater selling price.

Numerous experiment stations have shown that a protein supplement in fattening and breeding cattle rations will save on both corn and silage. Then, to, it has the added advantage of producing a superior quality of beef.

As to the amount of this material to feed, the State College specialist said that ordinarily in winter rations for beef cattle from one to two pounds of a protein supplement is satisfactory if a fair quality of roughage is fed.

Domestic supply and demand conditions are favorable for the marketing of the 1941 domestic wool clip, reports the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.
