

Never-Ending Stream of Italian Prisoners

A seemingly never-ending stream of Italian prisoners is here shown pouring over a bridge following the capture of an important base during the British sweep west through Libya, which was climaxed by the capture of Bengazi, an Italian stronghold. In all, the British captured 100,000 Italians, it was claimed.

State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

Question: What garden vegetables may be planted in March?
 Answer: Many early vegetables may be planted in March. Enough for a family of five with a surplus for canning may be had by following this schedule:
 Radishes and parsley, 50 feet of row; Bloomsdale spinach, 100 feet; garden peas, 400 feet; beets, 200 feet; carrots, 200 feet; onion sets, 100 feet; and Irish potatoes, 400 feet. Strawberries, dewberries, raspberries, grapes, and fruit trees may also be set out as late as March.

Question: Is it possible at this time to treat small grain so as to improve yields at he coming harvest?

Answer: W. R. Rankin, N. C. State College Experiment Station agronomist, says it's hardly possible to overcome poor management practices at seeding time, but supplemental treatments in the form of top dressings will aid in improving yields. Top dressings are recommended for small grain on all soils and conditions where the supply of nitrogen is relatively low and vegetative growth inadequate for the production of at least 20 to 25 bushels of wheat and 40 to 45 bushels of oats. An application of nitrate of soda should pay well.

Question: What is the best method of planting kudzu?

Answer: Technicians of the Soil Conservation Service point out that the best method is to set the plants in a well-settled bed. Dig holes with a mattock or spade deep enough to accommodate the plants. Then place the roots against the firm side of the hole and pack the soil tightly, leaving the top bud level with, or slightly below, the surface of the soil. If the rows are 25 feet apart, space the plants about 3 1/2 feet apart in the row. Around 500 plants to the acre are recommended.

TREES

Sixty-two Franklin County farm families bought 1,000 peach trees this winter through a cooperative order, reports E. P. Barnes, assistant farm agent of the N. C. State College Extension Service.

Will Have Camp

 stood that as many as four or five sites in or near Roxboro and others in the county may be offered for the new camp.

Selection of the site will however be determined by a committee of three, composed of State CCC Director Garrett, of Raleigh, a Commandant from Fort Bragg, and the State Sanitarian, from Raleigh.

It is not yet known whether the proposed Person camp will be for use of white youths or Negro boys, but it is estimated that camp enrollment will range between 200 and 300 and that staff personnel will consist of from fifteen to twenty persons.

Director Garrett, joining with Representative Folger, has given every assurance that the camp will be assigned to Person and those who have been backing its relocation in this area are pleased that the prospect of location of a camp expected to add much to the financial and social security of the Person area grows better.

Such camps are ordinarily located near cities and towns in order to secure water and light facilities, although some camps have been placed in more completely rural sections.

Placing of the camp in Person county is not yet, however, an assured thing, and all citizens interested in seeing that his county has an opportunity to benefit from having it are requested to express their wishes to the local committee and to Representative Folger.

Lifeboat for a Playroom

These British children were assigned to this lifeboat on the S. S. Georgic during its hazardous journey to New York. When the steamship docked the children used the boat, which was to be their watery home in case of torpedoing, as a sort of playroom. The Georgic was the first British passenger ship to dock in New York since November 18, 1940.

Baby 'Missing' at Own Birth in Snowdrift

Mrs. Grace Armstrong, 35, in her hospital bed at Park Falls, Wis., where she was taken by Dr. H. A. Smith after the automobile in which he was taking her to the hospital for confinement skidded into a ditch. A passing motorist took both to the hospital, where it was discovered the baby had already been born. Hurrying back to his stalled auto, Dr. Smith found a farmer with the baby—an eight-pound boy whom he had found in the snow—wrapped in a blanket. Birth took place while the half-conscious mother was being transferred into the second automobile. Hospital attendants nick-named the baby "Snowball."
