Claims Fan Dance 3,000 Years Old

Somebody, whose name has long been forgotten but whose idea is still hot stuff today, thought up the fan dance some three thousand years ago.

To be sure, the original version was a much milder type of divertimento than that practiced by Miss Rand, according to John Datu, technical expert for Universal's "South of Tahiti," coming Saturday and Sunday to the Dolly Madison Theatre.

"But," says Datu, who was civil engineer for the Netherlands East Indies government for many years, "a fan dance is a fan dance, after all, and there is no doubt about it that the Siamese used the idea in the Brahmin temples of Ankor Vat and Kmer three thousand years ago.

Under the supervision of Datu,

192 Retail Outlets Lose Permits To Sell Beer

Raleigh, Nov. 18.—One hundred ninety-two retail outlets in North Carolina have lost their legal right to sell beer as a result of the beer industry's "clean up or close up" campaign.

Edgar H. Bain of Goldsboro, state director of the Brewers and North Carolina Beer Distributors Committee, announced today that the Committee has cooperated with local authorities in the elimination of 192 undesirable outlets—143 by revocation, two by surrender and 47 by refusal of local boards to re-license or license on information furnished by Bain's office.

The committee's field representatives have visited all sections of the state — inspecting 2561 retail outlets since the self-regulation campaign was begun in this state 30 months ago.

Revocation petitions are pending against dealers in Caldwell, Stanly, Montgomery, Scotland and Richmond counties. In addition, 17 dealers have been placed on probation, and 269 dealers have been warned to "clean up" or face more drastic action by the committee.

Dealers in Buncombe, Alamance, Columbus, Rutherford and Wilson counties have lost their licenses by revocation since November 1.

"South of Tahiti will introduce Maria Montez, who plays the exotic jungle princess, in the first fan dance as it was centuries ago and as it still is today.

SAILORS LEARN METALWORKING

Enlisted men in the U. S. Navy and Naval Reserve have the opportunity to learn more than fifty different trades and vocations. This schooling, worth hundreds of dollars, is free, and the sailors are paid their regular Navy pay while learning.

One of the most popular trades chosen by the bluejacket is metalworking. Pictured here are two enlisted men receiving instruction in acetylene welding from a quali-fed Navy instructor. Courses included at the metalworker's school are blacksmithing, oxy-acetylene welding, arc welding and cutting, coppersmithing, sheetmetalworking, general metalsmithing and boilermaking.

Any ambitious and patriotic young man will be given the chance to qualify for one of the Navy trade schools if he enlists for service in Uncle Sam's new "Two-Ocean" Navy.

NARRATIVE OF CAROLINAS TOLD IN "CIVITAN"

Special Issue Of Club Magazine To Contain Article Dealing With North And South Carolina

Durham, Nov. 19.—(Special)—The Story of the Carolinas, particularly as it relates to Civitan International and its far reaching program of worthwhile work, will be recorded in the November issue of the "Civitan", Judge A. R. Wilson, Governor of the Carolinas District, announced today.

The monthly magazine, issued by the International organization, will be dedicated to the Carolinas' District with articles telling of the history and attractions of the Carolinas and in proclaiming to club members throughout Civitan domain the effectiveness and value of the clubs to their respective communities. Pictures in profusion will be used in making the issue one of the most attractive yet published by Civitan, in the District honoring policy adopted three months ago.

Civitan International was founded in Birmingham, Ala., in 1920 and still retains its headquarters there. It has shown a steady increase in membership and, according to Governor Wilson, clubs are located in practically every state in the union and in Canada. H. Z. Hopkins of Atlanta, Ga., is International President, and Arthur Cundy of Birmingham, is International Secretary. Its motto is "Builders of Good Citizenship."

The Carolinas' issue will contain an article from the pen of J. M. Broughton, governor of North Carolina. Governor Broughton is a Civitan and a charter member of the Raleigh Club.

Haywood Parker, retired lawyer of Asheville and the oldest continuous member of that club which is the oldest club in the Carolinas District, is given praise for his part in the work of the organization in another article in the magazine.

A story about and pictures of Wesley Williams of Raleigh, and Miss Margaret Eagle of Blythe-wood, S. C., concerning the Southeastern World's Fair and the selection of the two young people from a group of 66 young Americans who had reached their 21st birthday during the year will be contained in the issue.

Writups concerning clubs and their projects will be numerous and the work of Ted Neal of the Charlotte club who, despite invalidism, has a perfect attendance record in his club will be described. Neal has missed meetings but twice in 20 years although he has to be aided by two men in getting into the hotel where the weekly sessions are held.

Other articles relating to youth movements, student loan funds, summer camps, work with blind, dental and tubercular clinics, Christmas parties for indigent children and many other fine projects will be included in the issue also.

No More Fights For John Payne

"Week-End in Havana," the new 20th Century-Fox technicolor musical now at the Palace Theatre will represent John Payne's first film in more than a year in which he hasn't had at least one bout of fisticuffs.

In "Tin Pan Alley," "The Great American Broadcast" and "Sun Valley Serenade," as well as several others, Payne had been handed at least one rough and tumble battle. But now, despite the fact that his fans keep writing to the studio asking for more fights for Payne, he will do no battling. But he does mix with Carmen—but good!
