

Rogers' Cases Not To Come Up Until Second Court Term

Continuances Granted By Dawes In Both Actions

Rogers Contends He Swerved Car In Order To Avoid Hitting Miss Hicks.

Reginald Carr Rogers, 23, young Person white man, charged with careless and reckless driving as result of an accident in which a car allegedly driven by him on the night of Friday, August 6, struck and injured Miss Glenna Mae Hicks, 17, of Roxboro, will not face trial in Person Recorders' court until the second August term, Tuesday, the 24, following a continuance granted this week.

Continuance was also granted Rogers in a separate charge of speeding, a case that developed before the Hicks accident occurred. Miss Hicks, incidentally, although still a patient at the hospital, is reported to be improving Rogers in an interview today with a Times reporter contended his speed at time of the Hicks accident was not in excess of forty miles per hour, although he said he speeded up and swerved to the left on the Longhurst highway in an effort to avoid hitting Miss Hicks, who was near the middle of the highway and is reported to have been struck by the right side of Rogers' car as she all but walked into it.

Other cases in Recorders' court before Judge R. B. Dawes on Tuesday included: Mendola Talley, 22, Negro woman, assault with a deadly weapon, $5 and costs, with $8.50 to Dr. H. M. Beam; Winfred Winstead, 30, Negro, assault with deadly weapon, $5 and costs; Kinston Smith, 20, Negro, speeding, costs; Fred Thomas, 32, Negro, of Oxford, speeding, judgement suspended with costs.

Also Roland Dickerson, drunk driving, continued; H. B. Oliver, 30, a shipyard worker, charged with careless and reckless driving resulting in personal injury, not guilty; Claude Eugene Daniel, speeding, cited; Leslie Hubbard, 28, assault on female, suspended with costs; Jack Jenkins, no operator's license, cited; John W. Webster, 30, speeding, suspended with costs; Mack M. Jacobs, 38, Negro, assault on female, suspended with costs, and John Edward Thompson, breaking and stealing, bandsman having paid bond and costs of sci fa, he is discharged from any further liability.

Grow Your Own Proteins To Feed Your Hogs

Growers who are producing hog meat for home use can easily supply a large percentage of the required protein in the hog diet from green forage crops like alfalfa, the clovers, lespedeza, soybeans and cowpeas, says F. H. Smith animal nutrition chemist at State College.

He points out that pigs weighing less than 100 pounds require more protein than hogs weighing over this amount. Feeding records show that corn does not supply sufficient quantity or quality of protein to satisfy the needs of either young or old pigs. Pigs grown in a dry lot should also receive a protein supplement to complete the ration.

Unless proteins are furnished, the grower is handicapped in getting the most meat at the lowest cost, says Smith. Under the existing feed storage, it has been increasingly hard to get dairy by-products, tankage, fish meal and the oil meals, so it is up to the hog grower to produce a much larger percentage of his own proteins and not depend on commercial channels, he points out.

The overall feed picture for the coming year shows that total feed supplies are not sufficient to support the present animal population and that there will probably have to be a reduction in the number of hogs which are being produced. This makes it all the more necessary to produce all of the home grown feeds possible.

GROUND WHEAT FEED SEIZED AS OF POOR QUALITY

Coltrane Points Out Dangers Of Sub-Standard Products.

RALEIGH, August 12. — D. S. Coltrane, assistant to the Commissioner of Agriculture, declared recently that the State Department of Agriculture has seized and condemned a total of 510 tons — 17 carloads — of ground wheat shipped into this State by the Union National Mills, of Springfield, Ohio.

"This is the largest seizure in the history of the Department," said Coltrane. The feed was seized for poor quality, shortage in weight, and for lack of analysis tags.

Shipments of the feed were made by the Ohio Company to various manufacturers and dealers in Goldsboro, Ashboro, Reidsville, Wadesboro, Marshville, Mount Pleasant Lenoir, Asheville, Hendersonville, Brevard, Gastonia, Waynesville, Sylva, Bryson City and Albemarle.

Of the 17 cars condemned, 13 were found to be short in weight and this weight shortage ranged from one to 17 pounds per 100-pound bag. The value of the shortage, according to Coltrane, ranged from $10.80 to $123.40 per carload, with the average shortage per car amounting to $53.14.

Three of the cars seized were found to be "hot and musty", and these cars had all been unloaded and sold before the poor quality of the feed was discovered.

Coltrane said that "in an effort to salvage these cars, the feed has been spread out to dry and cool."

"A good portion of the feed will be saved. However, the musty feed can only be used in certain feeds and in these cases in only limited amounts," said Coltrane. He added that "in view of the critical feed situation, the Department is endeavoring to make this feed usable and at the same time restrict its use."

Coltrane said that the manufacturer, "rather than comply with State laws," shipped nine carloads of the bad feed out of North Carolina, six cars going to Georgia, two to South Carolina and one to Tennessee.

The Department recently received a certified check for $680 from the manufacturer of the feed and those who used feed from eight carloads will be reimbursed for the short weight and poor quality, according to Coltrane.

Men working under Coltrane and representatives of C. D. Baucum's Weights and Measures division combed the State in locating the feed and apprehending the company responsible for the shipments.

The case has been referred to representatives of the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

QUESTION: I have not had any experience in growing poultry commercially. Would you advise me to enter the field at this time?

ANSWER: No, say the officials of the Poultry Department at State College. Since animal production has exceeded feed supplies and since feed costs are rising while the prices of poultry products are practically stationary, they advise against inexperienced growers entering the poultry field. Profit margins will probably be much narrower than at present and only low cost producers will be able to make any money.

QUESTION: Can I grow alfalfa in the Coastal Plain?

ANSWER: If you have fertile, moderately-heavy, and well drained land, you can make a success of alfalfa, if you will handle it properly, says Dr. E. R. Collins, in charge of Extension Agronomy at State College. He advises that you lime your land inoculate your seed, prepare a good seed bed, and use borax in addition to the proper amount of fertilizer and stable manure. He suggests that you contact your county agent for full information on growing alfalfa in your section. It is not a poor land crop. When properly grown, it furnishes the largest yield of high quality hay that can be grown in North Carolina.

QUESTION: How can I best increase my yields of small grains?

ANSWER: Two of the most important points in growing small grains are proper fertilization and getting in the crop at the right time, say the Extension agronomists at State College. Many growers wait until spring to fertilize, using some nitrogen for quick growth, but the agronomists advise the use of a complete fertilizer at planting time, especially if the crop is to be grazed. Other growers delay planting until late in the season and this factor causes lowered yields in most cases.

QUESTION: How should I cook meat for canning?

ANSWER: There are several ways to pre-cook meat for canning, says Mrs. Cornelia C. Morris, Extension Food Conservationist at State College. She recommends that if meat is to be cooked before it is canned, that it should be more than half done.

"It can be browned quickly in a small amount of hot fat in a frying pan it can be roasted in an oven or it can be stewed or boiled. Do not add salt to the meat until after it is packed in the jars," says Mrs. Morris. She also emphasizes that a pressure cooker is essential in canning meats and that other methods are not safe.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Beans

So long as a soldier can eat and think up disparaging names for his equipment the Army will do all right. Food is either "beans," or "chow."

"Chow" may consist of a well cooked meal or if circumstances demand our fighting men have learned to subsist on "Ration K," the concentrated food that all of them carry into battle.

With millions of men and women in the services it will require a lot of War Bond buying on our part to keep them happy.

Sweet Potatoes Bring Good Prices

RALEIGH, August 12. — Harvesting of the 1943 Tar Heel sweet potato crop has started and prices are more than double last seasons' initial sales, reports A. B. Harless, marketing specialist at the State Department of Agriculture. "First bushel baskets of fair quality golden variety sweets wholesaled at $5 in New York in contrast to $2 and $2.55 a bushel a year ago," said Harless. Meanwhile, the Department's crop reporting service reported and indicated 1943 production of 9,380,000 bushels. "Last season 8,510,000 bushels were produced," Harless said.
