RESPONSIBILITY FOR ADJUSTMENTS AFTER WAR SEEN

Soldiers, Native Or Foreign, Deserve Same Consideration Says (Rotarian).

"The World They Will Come Back To", a consideration of post-war adjustments to living which have to be faced by young men and women and by their parents and other older citizens, was topic discussed Thursday at Roxboro Rotary club at Hotel Roxboro, by Thomas J. Shaw, Jr., City Editor of the Person County Times, of the public relations committee, who had the program in charge.

Welcomed back after an absence of several weeks because of ill health was the Rev. W. F. West. Presiding was W. Wallace Woods, president, who introduced the speaker and also lead in singing, with Mrs. Woods as pianist.

The speaker pointed out that Roxboro Rotary club with a membership of nearly fifty has two of its own members in active military service and that over half of the members have sons or daughters or close relatives in service. It was also shown that Rotarians, as civic leaders, have an obligation to service men and women who will return, an obligation to understand the forced maturity that war will give them and to, if possible, help them to take up the civic obligations they will find here when they return.

It was also indicated that visiting soldiers from Camp Butler and other military centers, are in essence brothers of those who have gone from Roxboro and that courtesy demands that all of them be extended the same tolerance and consideration that we, of Roxboro, would show to our own fighting young people.

Next meeting will be Monday at Hotel Roxboro in a joint session with Kiwanis.

HOME PLEDGE TO BE SOUGHT FROM HOUSEWIVES

Emphasis Will Be Placed On Support Of Ceiling Prices And Avoidance Of Black Markets.

Being conducted this week in many cities and towns and expected to begin soon in Roxboro and Person County is a "Home Front Pledge" campaign operated in connection with the Community Service division of OPA and designed to secure cooperation of housewives and merchants in support of established ceiling prices.

Under the pledge campaign housewives will be asked to sign a pledge to support established price panels and to avoid black markets. Merchants, too, will be asked to display cards signifying their support of the pledge. An instrument of the campaign will be a Market-basket Price Book containing lists of authentic and established prices.
Signing of pledges will be considered an act of patriotism. Just as the buying of War Bonds and stamps is such an act. WALLACE COZART HAS TALK WITH ROXBORO FRIEND

Enos Slaughter Stops At Fairchild Plant In Burlington When It Rains.

Wallace Cozart, of Roxboro, who works with the Fairchild Aircraft corporation, at Burlington, had a pleasant time one night last week because it rained. At work in the Plant about 8:30 o'clock, he looked up and saw a fellow townsman, Enos Slaughter, of baseball fame, now with the Army in the Air Corps.

Slaughter, it developed, was returning by plane from New York where he had played in the War Bond Benefit game that was last week highly publicized as a gathering of the greats in baseball. A rainstorm forced him down at the Fairchild Field, Burlington, and he spent an unexpected half hour or so chatting with Cozart and other Roxboro acquaintances in the Fairchild plant.

Slaughter, former star of the St. Louis Cardinals, is now stationed at San Antonio, Texas. Later in the night he and an Army companion resumed their flight without coming to Roxboro. He has a furlough soon but expects to spend it in St. Louis with his wife, according to Cozart.

Along The Way With the Editor

How many of you people who read this column know Noby A. Buchanan of the Allensville Section? Well, you may think you know him, but I doubt if you really do. That man can eat more Brunswick stew than any other man, not excepting Lawrence Woods. A few days ago I was down his way at a stew eating. They had Brunswick and chicken stew, two big pots of it. Noby got a big bowl. It looked like a wash basin and had it filled with Brunswick Stew. He then got ten or twelve pieces of bread and started working on a pleasure job. It was soon finished and then he had the basin filled with Chicken Stew. Another box of bread went with that. Then he started back on the Brunswick and so on. When I left he had just finished but he was looking at the pots with longing eyes and promising himself that he would go back at least twice more before midnight.

Wounded In Action He Spent Few Weeks In Hospital. Last Letter August 14.

Sgt. R. J. (Jimmie) Alderman, of Roxboro and Hendersonville, son of Mrs. Lucy B. Alderman, of Roxboro, and husband of Mrs. R. J. Alderman, of Lake Toxaway, waist-gunner with the Eighth Army Air Corps and stationed in England, has been officially reported as missing in action as of August 17, according to a message received by his wife from the War Department.
Alderman, who was slightly wounded on July 26, and subsequently received the Air Medal and the Purple Heart award, was in a hospital in England for several weeks, although a letter written on August 10, and mailed August 14, to his mother here, said that he expected to return to duty in a few days. His sister, Mrs. Preston Satterfield, Jr., said this morning that the letter of August 14, was the last received from her brother.

Members of the family here are of the opinion that Alderman's flight of August 17, was a bomber raid over Germany, since Associated Press reports of the next day carried mention of a heavy raid by the Corps on a munitions plant. It was also noted that two planes on the raid were forced down in Switzerland, where crew members were interned, but there is no certainty that Alderman was on either one of those planes.

Alderman was with the RAF before entrance of the United States into the War. Since transferring to the U. S. Air Corps he had taken part in numerous bomber raids over France and less than three weeks ago members of his family received a letter from Lieut. Walter A. Baker, with whom Alderman served, in which Baker, his commanding officer, highly praised Alderman for bravery displayed under enemy fire. Baker at that time recommended the Roxboro man for citation.

In addition to his wife of Toxaway and his mother and sister here, he has another sister Mrs. Gilbert Wagstaff, of Baltimore, Md., and an aunt, Mrs. J. J. Woody, also of Roxboro. His mother received the missing in action message Friday morning from her daughter-in-law.
August 17, date on which Alderman was reported as missing, was only two days after publication in the Times of the citation story from Lieut. Baker, who said:

"With utter disregard for his own safety he (Alderman, during raids over France) stood by his blazing guns until the last enemy fighter had left and we were all within the zone of safety." Baker, at that time continued, "I am writing you these few lines to let you know how very proud I am of your husband. The type of bravery he has displayed under fierce enemy fire makes me very proud to be his friend and commanding officer."

In the French raids of July 26, Alderman was credited with bringing down at least one, possibly two, of six German planes destroyed in those engagements.

Mrs. Hamilton Estes Walker and daughter of Crewe, Va., are guests of Mrs. Walker's mother, Mrs. T. C. Brooks.
