

Sarg's Restaurant to Open This Week Near City Limits of Black Mountain

Sarg's restaurant opened this week just west of the city limits. It is operated by Mr. and Mrs. James W. Brantley who have lived in the Rolfe Cottage on Montreat for about four years, while (Sarg.) Brantley was stationed at Moore General Hospital.

Mr. Brantley was in the U. S. Army for five years and two months in the regular army, four years of which was served at Moore General as a mess sergeant. We are sure after his experience in cooking at Moore General Mr. Brantley is very capable of operating a first class restaurant. Mrs. Brantley is from Covington, Georgia and Mr. Brantley is from Atlanta. They must be well informed on that good old southern way of cooking.

The restaurant is located in the new building that is not quite completed just west of the city limits of Black Mountain. The completion of the building is being held up at present due to the shortage of material, but the inside and all furnishings are in and ready for use.

A large dining room at the rear of the building from which an excellent view of the mountains is obtained is a good example of modern restaurant dining rooms. A large kitchen with all modern equipment and facilities is toward the rear.

A large parking lot with space for many customers will provide the most convenience.

At the rear is a barbecue pit and tables at which "good old Southern Barbecue" will be served. Good lights have been provided so that the barbecue may be enjoyed during the cool night hours.

Now In Operation Community Cannery

The community cannery is now in operation and they are canning all kinds of fruits, meats, vegetables that are in season.

Persons wanting canning done this summer are asked to get in touch with C.J. Rich, Phone 3781, in order that their canning may be placed on the schedule.

Presbyterian Missionary Will Be Home Soon

Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Price, missionaries of the Presbyterian Church in the United States serving in China, will sail early this month on SS General Meigs, to arrive in San Francisco about July 15, according to Dr. H. Keer Taylor, of Nashville, Tenn., educational secretary of the executive committee of Foreign Missions of the General Assembly who arrived in Montreat this week.

Dr. and Mrs. Price are well known in Montreat. They will come first to Salt Lake City, and then to Nashville and will not be available for speaking engagements before August 10, when they will be in Montreat for the foreign mission conference.

Dr. Price served as a personal representative of Chiang Kai-shek at the San Francisco peace conference.

Dr. Taylor said Dr. Leighton Stuart, president of Yenching university of Peiping, after a five months' visit to the United States, is on his way back to China.

During this visit, Dr. Stuart, a prisoner of the Japanese in Peiping for almost four years, spent his time with trustees of Yenching and in making plans for the rehabilitation of the university. He also is a missionary of the Presbyterian church U. S. A.

The following cablegram has been received by the executive committee of foreign missions: "Nearing Japan arrive Saturday good trip." The cablegram was from Dr. D. J. Cumming, missionary evangelist, who is the first missionary of the church to return to his work in Korea.

Our Red Cross

The Chairman of the local Black Mountain-Swannanoa chapter recently attended the National Convention of the American Red Cross at Philadelphia. It was the first National Convention held since Pearl Harbor, and was attended by over 5,000 delegates from all parts of the United States and a number of foreign countries.

In addition to addresses by many notable speakers there were forums on the various activities of the local Red Cross, participated in by men and women who had actually done the job.

Among the outstanding speakers were Basil O'Connor, former law partner of President Roosevelt and chairman of the American Red Cross; former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, Count Folke Bernadotte, president of the Swedish Red Cross, and Lady Reading, head of the women's Voluntary Services in the British Isles.

There were also addresses by representatives of the Army and Navy in which high tribute was paid to the American Red Cross for services in the Armed Forces. Perhaps the most dramatic moment in the convention was an address by a fourteen year old Junior Red Cross member, speaking in behalf of the future leaders of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. May Jo Perky, violinist, Mrs. Robert S. Carrol, pianist, Mrs. Roy Alexander, soprano, and Lt. Robert Guy baritone, and Mrs. A. W. McDougle will be heard.

Montreat Training School Opened Tuesday Night

Several leaders in religious education work in the Presbyterian Church in the United States are enrolled here this week for the annual Montreat Leadership Training School which opened Tuesday night and will continue through noon next Thursday July 11, with Dr. Patrick H. Carmichael, Richmond, Va., as director.

This school is conducted under the auspices of the executive committee of Religious Education and Publication of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, of which Dr. Edward D. Grant is the executive secretary.

The school opened Tuesday night and classes were organized the following morning. Each day's session starts with a unique worship service to which the students proceed immediately after breakfast. There is no conversation after Gaither Hall is entered, and silently the worshippers find seats and remain silent until the service is ended.

In conclusion he said, "I am confident that it is God's will that the Church shall be ecumenical; that is, it will stretch across all barriers and bind together all who serve Christ sincerely. It will be a church that is practical, evangelical, concerned with the gospel of a Redeemer who can make men different and change human society from center to circumference. God does not require another instrument. He can and will purify the Church of dross and lift the Church by His power for the accomplishment of His purposes on earth."

C. W. Tillet, an attorney of Charlotte, will give the address Thursday night, speaking on the "United Nations Up To Date," and again on Friday night he will speak on "The Place of Law in Achieving Peace."

The school will continue through noon Thursday, July 11. Sunday morning Dr. Stitt will preach at the 11 o'clock worship service and Sunday night Dr. Alston will be heard on "The Inevitable Christ."

The coming week-end is filled with interest, for it includes the first musical of the summer season.

Dr. Wallace M. Alston, pastor of Druid Hills Presbyterian Church, Atlanta opened the worship services Wednesday morning and will continue as leader of this period throughout the school.

Dr. Alston was the inspirational speaker Wednesday night, when his subject was "What is ahead for the Church?" He based his sermon on the text, "Upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." (Matthew 16:18) Said he, "I believe that in the decade before us the church is going to face a desperate conflict against powers and principalities, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. This opposition will show itself through a resurgence of nationalism and isolationism, through racialism and class strife, through opposition to the missionary enterprise, through Godless materialism, through narrow sectarianism. I believe we would be blind and inexcusably stupid not to face the fact that the Church has ahead of her a critical period of opposition from the forces on the outside."

In conclusion he said, "I am confident that it is God's will that the Church shall be ecumenical; that is, it will stretch across all barriers and bind together all who serve Christ sincerely. It will be a church that is practical, evangelical, concerned with the gospel of a Redeemer who can make men different and change human society from center to circumference. God does not require another instrument. He can and will purify the Church of dross and lift the Church by His power for the accomplishment of His purposes on earth."

Light Company Prepares To Distribute CP&L Stock

One of the steps in the proposed distribution of Carolina Power and Light Company's common stock now held entirely by National Power and Light Company was taken here today when CP&L's Board of Directors, at a special meeting, adopted resolutions recommending to the stockholders amendments to the charter.

The National Power and Light Company is preparing to distribute shortly its CP L common stock to its own stockholders as one of the steps to be taken in the dissolution of National Power and Light Company under the orders of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Distribution will be on the basis of one share of CP&L common to six shares of NP&L common stock.

The recommendations of the CP&L directors will be presented to stockholders on Thursday, July 11, at a special meeting. Notices of the meeting and copies of the proposed charter amendments soon will be mailed to the approximately 7,000 stockholders, many of whom reside in the two Carolinas and some 1,000 of whom reside in Wake County.

The effects of the proposed amendments agreed upon today by the Board of Directors are:

1. To restrict the right of the Company to pay dividends on common stock so that the capitalization of the Company may meet the ratio of standards prescribed by the SEC as appropriate under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935. The restriction on dividend payments will apply to Carolina Power & Light Company if its common stock plus surplus is less than 25% of the Company's total capitalization.

2. To require that any new or increased shares of common stock first be offered pro rata to the holders of outstanding common stock.

3. To require all proceeds from the sale of additional shares of common stock be entered in the Company's capitol account, according to the Company's present practice.

The wading pool was opened this week, and the slide re-made and installed. (The slide was the gift of Nancy Doherty.) The promised tarpaulin was put up. As the pool was being filled, the children enjoyed making "fairy fountains" and rainbows. They found "no ashes on (their) slide," although it was not as slick as glass." They laughed and sang merrily ("not casting the old aside.") for "See Saw Margery Daw" rang out in great glee.

The children learned how the wasps, the first paper-makers, made the paper and then built their nests. Each was given a part of the big "Nest" to take home for "keeps."

In their wild-flower plot they planted the spotted winter-green with its wax-like flowers and mottled leaves.

Several of the children mentioned that they had made scrap-books for the "Nature Studies" that have been in the News and that they had enjoyed the wild-flower illustrations in the window of the Black Mountain Drug Co. These will continue as Mr. and Mrs. Carter Uzzelle are eager to have a part in this method of instructing and giving pleasure to the children and the scouts. The summer visitors, likewise have expressed their appreciation of this opportunity to see and to study the native flowers.

This week, we wish to express our thanks to Mr. Monroe Owens for giving his "rest hours" that the pool might be cleaned and the tarpaulin stretched so that the children would not be disappointed; to Linda McGraw and Joan Biddix for their help in washing out the pool—quite an arduous undertaking for young children; to George Blanton, for raking all the leaves and trash and carrying all off by the basket-load,—a tiresome job which he would not leave until finished, although the pool was most inviting.

We are most appreciative of the donations made this week by Messdames Joe Williams, Ruth L. and J. M. Woodcock, and Carter Uzzelle. Mrs. Uzzelle's was given in grateful acknowledgement of the privilege granted the children of "our soldiers"—the free use of the playground the past two years, while visiting their fathers during the "recreation period."

Again, we wish to mention, with gratitude, that Mr. Ernest White has gladly turned over to us the property we use, without which we would have no playground.

Watch the windows of the Black Mountain Drug Co. for the "Nature displays" and descriptions. As I cannot type, no more "studies" will appear in the News. The Editors have been most patient in "setting the type by hand, from my most illeceivable writing—an exasperating job. I am sure.

May I take this opportunity to thank my many readers for their words and letters of appreciation?

Lesson, payable in advance for six lessons minimum. Subsequent hours for classes will be arranged to meet convenience of the majority enrolled. Teachers are competent and experienced.

These classes are arranged by courtesy of officials of the Black Mountain Arts Club. Mrs. William Hickey Secy. Dr. W. D. Weatherford, Pres.

Mr. and Mrs. Crosby Adams Entertain Members of Woman's and Arts Clubs

A large audience of members of the Black Mountain Woman's Club and the Black Mountain Arts Club and former pupils enjoyed a delightful program given by Mrs. Crosby Adams assisted by Mr. Adams on June 26, at their Montreat home "House In The Woods."

Those who were present will treasure the memory not only of the interesting musical program of compositions by Beethoven, Schubert, Robert Schumann, Mrs. Crosby Adams and F. W. Braithwaite and the delightful poems recited by Mrs. Adams, but they which wove the whole into a pattern of lives that have caught the rich charm of happiness.

The program was introduced by Mrs. George Stone, representing the Woman's Club and at the conclusion Mrs. Mary E. Aleshire of the Arts Club announced the program of the classes to begin on the week of July 8th under the sponsorship of the Arts Club. During an intermission, Miss Mary Young, a member of both clubs, expressed the appreciation of these guest organizations by presenting Mrs. Adams with a beautiful Corsage. Adams will also treasure the golden thread
