Community Colored Nursery School

The children stood in rapt attention while watching the earth-star mushroom (the "water-measuring mushroom"), a round, dried-up looking ball, unfold into a big grey-streaked star with a puff ball in the centre, when placed in a very little water. This mushroom then resembled a large "skeery" gray spider. Their surprise was great when they were told that toad stools, the "earth-star," and the beautifully colored growths on dead stumps, which made the lovely flower they saw and held, belonged to the same "family." The "mushroom family," just as the asters and the golden-rods in their yard, belonged to the Wild Flower Family.

Mrs. Arcie Brown holds them in loving control. She has only to speak quietly for them to obey. The school is their delight.

The children are now memorizing the Twenty-third Psalm and Alexander's:

"All things bright and beautiful,
All creatures great and small,
All things wise and wonderful
The Lord God made them all."

Appeal Made To Hire Disabled

The U. S. Employment Service is following the program set up by Congress and the President by setting aside the week of October 6-12 as "National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week," it was announced today by P. Lane Gaston, manager of the Asheville office which serves the county.

"Any employer of handicapped are requested to file their needs at the Asheville office," Mr. Gaston said. "However, those in the Black Mountain area may see our representative at the city hall between the hours of 8:30 a. m. and 12:30 p. m.

With "Hire the Handicapped" as the battle cry, the program will get under way Monday on a national scale and continue through the entire week. During this time a special effort will be made to contact prospective employers as well as those desiring employment.

Following is the bulletin issued by the U. S. Department of Labor, Retraining and Reemployment Administration:

The United States has long been known as the most humanitarian nation on earth. We have shown our concern for the welfare of all peoples, on innumerable occasions during the lifetime of most of those now listening to my voice. We have fed starving China, Germany, France, Italy, Russia, England, and other countries, from time to time. We rushed medicine, food, clothing, and ship-loads of assistance to Japan, following a great earthquake. Americans have stood ready, at all times, to relieve human suffering, misery, and want, wherever it might be found.

But, here at home, sometimes, we have demonstrated that we are guilty of a sort of astigmatism, for we have not given the attention their needs require to our own afflicted—the 28,000,000 physical handicapped of this Nation.

Many of these are disabled as a result of military service in defense of our country. Millions of others were either born with some defect or, through injury or disease became physically handicapped later in life.

But, despite being blind, deaf, hard of hearing, or being victims of polio, cardiac troubles, amputations, tuberculosis, arthritis, spastic paralysis, and numerous other disabling diseases, defects, or injuries, millions of these handicapped are perfectly capable of performing varied kinds of employment successfully.

During World War II, the physical handicapped of this wonderful record as workers in the war production plants, where approximately 1,500,000 of them helped build ships, planes, tanks, guns, bombs, and all of the other implements by which we overwhelmed our enemies.

Employers found the handicapped excellent workers. Their records on absenteeism were better than the non-handicapped. Their accident record was also better than that of non-disabled, because, already being disabled, they were careful and did not take unnecessary chances. Their production record compared favorably with that of non-handicapped, and even exceeded the latter, in several instances. So, the handicapped, under stress, proved they were worthy of responsibility, and they helped write a brilliant page in the history of our war production.

Today, in your city, and all across country, we are observing "NATIONAL EMPLOY THE PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED WEEK," which has been designated by Congress, and the President of the United States, as the first week in October, of each year.

The great agencies of the Federal Government have all combined, with the cooperation of industry, labor, veterans, farm, women, educational, religious, scientific and professional and other organizations, with the objective of placing in gainful employment as many of the millions of physically handicapped as it may be possible, or feasible, to find jobs for.

To the public, we urge that you give careful consideration to the needs of the physically handicapped in your localities, and assist them, in all ways possible, to achieve a self-sustaining status, through regular employment.

4. UNCLEAN AND UNSEgregated FURNACE AND FUEL ROOM AREAS.
These often reflect the character of the janitor; clean if he is good, the opposite if otherwise. The furnace and fuel room areas are too often storage places for all worthless things from in and around the school building. These are practically all highly inflammable and subject to dangerous fires hidden until the building is involved. See that these places are kept clean and that nothing other than what is absolutely necessary for the proper operation of the furnace is kept in such areas.

5. DEFECTIVE OR WORN PIPES and other parts of the heating system or pipes which are subject to heat too close to wood-work.

In many instances when the pipe or other part of the heating system commences drawing rosin from a near-by plank, a piece of tin or asbestos is tacked on. This forms a pocket for highly inflammable dust particles, increasing instead of decreasing the danger. When a pipe or any other part of the furnace draws rosin from the wood, MOVE THE WOOD OR THE PIPE or any other part too close. Frequent visits to the furnace and fuel room areas by the principal or superintendent and subsequent orders will eliminate most of these dangers.

6. CONDITIONS IN DRESSING ROOMS, on the stage and in the auditorium and corridors following a school play or exercise.

THE SAME IN GYMNASIUM following a game or dance.

It is important that some one in authority go over the building following the exercise, play, game or dance and all improvised scenic effects and decorations be removed and taken out of the building before leaving the building. This may require additional janitor service, but it is worth it.
