MISS KATHLEEN PLEASANTS IS BRIDE OF PAUL P. PITTMAN

The First Presbyterian church, in Elberton, formed the setting Sunday, September 15, at 5:00 o'clock for the marriage of Miss Kathleen Ruth Pleasants, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry V. Pleasants Sr., of Elberton, Ga., to Paul Perry Pittman, of Black Mountain, son of Mrs. Clifton Cordell, of Black Mountain, and Mr. Pittman, of Miami, Florida. The Rev. Joseph W. Dunlap officiating.

Miss Doris Yarbough, organist, presented a medley of wedding music—"Theme from Andante," "Fifth Symphony," by Tschaiikowsky; "To The Evening Star," by Wagner. Mrs. Olin Rambo sang "Because" and "I Love Thee." Immediately following the ceremony she sang "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional wedding marches by Mendelssohn were used for the processional and recessional. "Liebestraum" by Liszt was softly played while the vows were spoken. The church was decorated with native greenery. The altar was banked with palms, tall baskets of white gladiolus and the seven-branched candelabra holding white tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Harry V. Pleasants Jr., was gowned in a model of white moire taffeta, featuring a square neckline, fitted long-waisted bodice that buttoned up the back with tiny buttons, long pointed sleeves, and a full skirt ending in a long train. Her veil was caught to a coronet of heirloom lace and orange blossoms, and she carried a white satin prayer book showered with tuberoses and ribbon streamers.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Matson Jr., cousin of the bride, wore pale green net and carried an old fashioned nosegay. The bridesmaids were Miss Sue Burney, Hopewell, Va., Mrs. Joe Finley, Columbus, both former classmates at Montreat, Miss Beth Freeman and Mrs. Harry Pleasants Jr. They wore models of pastel shades of net posed over taffeta, and carried nosegays of pink gladiolus centered with miniature chrysanthemums with lavender streamers.

W. C. McGarity of Elberton was best man, and ushers were Jones Bell, David Raynor, Oliver Brockington, and Marion Hyde.

The couple left for a short wedding trip through Western North Carolina, and to Durham where the bridegroom resumed his studies at Duke University. For traveling Mrs. Pittman wore a soider blue, wool crepe suit of dress maker's style, with brown accessories. Her corsage was of white tuberoses.

The bride's mother is the former Miss Nono Plunkett, daughter of Mrs. W. H. Plunkett, of Macon, and the late Mr. Plunkett. Her paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Pleasants of Rion, S. C. Her only brother is Harry V. Pleasants Jr.

Mrs. Pittman graduated from Elberton high school and Montreat college, Montreat, N. C. She continued her education at the University of Georgia and for the past three years has taught in the Georgia school system. At present she is a member of the faculty of Virgil Powers elementary school in Macon, and will join Mr. Pittman in Durham in October.

Supply Of Soap Depends On Salvage

"No soap" is a phrase that can be taken literally today. It's a condition that is likely to continue for two or three more years unless ways are found to supplement the fat and oil supplies, states Grace Armstrong, foods specialist, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

The war destroyed many of the country's ships of the type necessary for carrying fats and oils from the Pacific areas, and domestic production of tallow and grease still has not caught up with demand. There is one source that is proving a real help, though, and that is the salvage of fats by America's homemakers. According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, there would have been 13 per cent less soap last year were it not for this kitchen salvage.

But more is needed. "If you want to find your favorite soap flakes or powder on the shelves of your local store," says Miss Armstrong, "the thing to do is to conserve every drop of fat that comes into your kitchen. Strain it and use it. When it reaches the stage where it is no longer usable, pour it into a tin can and sell it to your butcher for four cents a pound. You've everything to gain and nothing to lose."
