Community Chest Drive For Black Mountain

The city of Black Mountain took another step toward recognition last night when a special committee representing all the civic and fraternal organizations of the town met and drew up a charter requesting that the city be allowed to conduct its own Community Chest drive.

If the request is granted, Black Mountain will receive much publicity which will go a long way toward establishing this town as an independent community, separate and apart from Asheville and the rest of Buncombe county.

Instead of going to the Asheville-Buncombe county community chest drive, the money contributed in this area will be credited to Black Mountain.

That the business leaders of this community should want the city to have recognition for its efforts is understandable and will have the support of all the civic minded residents of the area. The town is growing, and there is no better way to focus attention on it than to let the world know that Black Mountain is a city in its own right and not an appendage of any other municipality.

Remember To Vote

Those who have not done so already are given a last chance to register Saturday in order to be able to vote in the November 5 election. Elections are decided and won entirely on the votes cast. No matter how good your intentions to vote may be, your candidate is not helped one bit until your vote is marked and in the box.

Therefore, in order to preserve your privilege of voting—register and vote. Remember that if you stay away from the polls, the opposition is just that much ahead.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Lesson for October 27

PAUL'S WIDENING FIELD OF SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:1-5, 13, 14, 44-46, 48, 49; 14:26, 27. MEMORY SELECTION—But when it pleased God . . . to reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen.—Galatians 1:15, 16.

God uses men to accomplish his high and holy purpose of preaching the gospel in all the world. They must, however, be men who have been called by the Holy Spirit, prepared and sent out by him. They must be willing to labor and to sacrifice without limit for his glory. Paul was such a man, and as we study the widening sphere of his service and influence, we catch a vision of what missions should mean in the church.

I. A Missionary Call (Acts 13:1-4). Much discussed among earnest Christians is the question of what constitutes a missionary call.

The need must be brought home to the individual believer's heart by the Holy Spirit, and he must give a conviction that one is to go out to meet that need.

Note that the call came through a live, active and well-equipped church in Antioch, a city of Syria. It was a cosmopolitan church—read the names of those who served there. They were of many nationalities and of various occupations and social positions. In the midst of that group were two exceptionally able preachers, Barnabas and Paul. They all loved the Lord and served him.

To such a church the Holy Spirit can speak, be heard and obeyed. Notice that they gave of their best, at the direction of the Spirit, not withholding it for themselves (cf. II Sam. 24:24). God wants our best.

Sent forth by the Holy Spirit these men went promptly and willingly. Why should the Lord have to plead, and prod, and wait for his people to obey him?

II. A Missionary Conquest (Acts 13:4, 5, 13, 14, 44-46, 48, 49)

To trace this first missionary journey it is well to look at the map illustrating the Acts and epistles at the back of most Bibles.

It will appear at once that it was not an easy itinerary these men undertook. It involved travel by sea, through difficult country, and often among hostile and hateful peoples.

God does not call his servants to an air-conditioned arm-chair evangelism. His Word must go out where it has never been heard, and that means pioneering among the most backward of peoples, the neediest of this earth. It means working in rescue missions, in thankless and difficult pastorates; yes, anywhere the Divine Executive, the Holy Spirit, may direct.

Paul met both popularity and persecution, and that not far apart. After the experience of acceptance and rejection on the island of Cyprus (Acts 13:7, 8), Barnabas and Paul went to Antioch in Pisidia (a different city than Antioch in Syria; see map). Here they were invited to preach in the synagogue and Paul was blessed in the presentation of a powerful gospel message. Read it in Acts 13:16-41. It met with such a response that the people "besought that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath" (v. 42). So great was the popularity of Paul's message that the whole city came the next Sabbath "to hear the Word of God." What a wonderful sight that must have been.

But wait—there is something else here beside popularity, and its name is jealousy (v. 45). It caused the Jews to blaspheme as they contradicted Paul's preaching.

Jealousy always makes a fool out of the one who yields to it. Yet this green-eyed monster is permitted to go right on hindering the work of God. The result in this case was that Paul turned from the Jews to the Gentiles with the gospel, to their great joy and delight. This is a great turning point in the history of the church.

Now the preachers turn homeward to Antioch in Syria, and there they had

III. A Missionary Conference (Acts 14:26, 27)

Nothing stimulates missionary giving, and praying, and going in a local church like a live missionary conference, where those who have been on the field come back and tell what the Lord has done as they went out to serve him.

It is good to know that what the Lord led men out to do has been fulfilled. That completes the circle of divine guidance and blessing, and strongly encourages us to go again—and others to go for the first time—to do missionary work for God.

The church which does not have such an annual missionary conference misses a blessing and an opportunity for enlarged vision and service. No pastor or church can afford to miss such an open door for the working of the Holy Spirit of God.

Southern Head Cited By Navy For War Job

Oct. 23—Ernest E. Norris, president of the Southern Railway system, was cited by the United States navy, at a meeting in Chicago, for his service in connection with transporting naval personnel during the critical war years and in the subsequent demobilization period. The citation was presented by Admiral Louis Denfeld, who will assume command of the Pacific Fleet next January, coincident with the award of a "Certificate of Achievement" to the Southern Railway system.

The citation honoring Mr. Norris states that during the critical war years he "mustered the resources of his organization and with complete disregard of the cost to himself in time and effort contributed to the greatest manpower movement in our country's history. Through his unflagging endeavors and great wisdom, Mr. Norris was able to assist in the transportation of more than seven million naval personnel to points within the United States."

After describing how the navy "taxed" the facilities of the American railroads as it struggled to fulfill the commitments of worldwide warfare, the citation declares that "only the knowledge gained by long experience and his willingness to apply that wisdom unstintingly in the navy's behalf could have enabled Mr. Norris to accomplish his share of this vital task."

"Again, with victory complete, Mr. Norris was called upon to tax the capacity of his organization in the demobilization period. From August 14, 1945 to August 31, 1946, while the navy returned more than 3,000,000 men and women to civilian life, the travel of navy personnel reached stupendous proportions."

"These people," the citation added, "were able to return promptly to their homes, just as they had met their ships and taken their leaves, due to the untiring devotion, sure knowledge and great patriotism of Mr. Norris and his colleagues."

The "Certificate of Achievement" was awarded to the railway "in grateful recognition of outstanding services to naval personnel during World War II."

Participating in the presentation ceremony, in addition to Admiral Denfeld, were high-ranking navy, government, and railroad officials, including Under Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan; Rear Admiral J. L. Holloway, Jr., assistant chief of Naval personnel and recently appointed superintendent of the United States naval academy at Annapolis; Colonel J. Monroe Johnson, director of the office of defense transportation; and John J. Pellev, president of the Association of American railroads. Hugh W. Suddall, chairman of the Interterritorial Military committee, acted as toastmaster.

AG Committee Asked To Submit Locker Report

The ag committee requested that the Lions club sponsor the plant as a community project, and was directed to submit plans, specifications, and costs at the next meeting.

R. W. Seawright is chairman of the ag committee.

PAINT DEODORANT

Some people like the odor of fresh paint and some don't. Those who are objectors have an easy remedy at hand in any of the various deodorants for paint which are available in paint stores. All they have to do is to stir the deodorant into the paint just before it is used, being careful to put it in after the last of the thinner, if any, has been added to the paint. Otherwise the later addition of the thinner might neutralize the effect of the deodorant, so that the deodorizing would have to be done all over again.
