VETERANS NEWS

All veterans holding National Service Life Insurance are urged by the Veterans Administration to use the printed envelope sent them for making premium payments by mail.

The envelopes are handy for the insured person, as they have printed on them the address to which the payments should be sent. They also facilitate handling by VA when they reach the office. Thus the check or money order will be delivered without delay to the desk where the veteran's particular insurance account is kept and will be credited to his account immediately.

When veterans change their address, it is important to notify VA at once. The envelopes for paying premiums contain a handy space for sending this notification, with regard to their insurance accounts.

Cash should not be sent through the mails, as it may get lost. Checks or money orders in payment of insurance premiums should be made payable to: The Treasurer of the United States.

When insurance premiums are paid quarterly, semi-annually or annually, instead of monthly, the veteran gets a saving at the rate of 3 per cent annually. Any VA office can give him information on just what the saving will be in his case.

Q—I submitted a claim for increased disability compensation and failed to show up for my physical examination, since it simply slipped my mind. What should I do now?

A—Your claim for the increase has been considered abandoned. You should file a new application and make arrangements for a new physical examination.

Q—I would like to appear before the VA Rating Board on my own behalf, in connection with a compensation claim. May I do this?

A—Yes, but a definite appointment should be made beforehand.

Q—Is there any limit to the amount of money I can borrow from a private lender under the GI Bill?

A—No. The GI Bill limit is on the amount of VA's guaranty of the loan, and not on the amount of the loan itself.
