Declaration of Independence

What a wonderful feeling—! He can go places now—on his own. And he'll keep on going places all his life—as long as he keeps his sense of independence!

This spirit of independence is America's richest resource—our most cherished inheritance. It gave us our freedom—our Constitution—our Bill of Rights.

Anything which threatens the independence of an individual—his family or his business—endangers the very principles which made our country great.

Remember that, when you hear people say "Let the government take over . . . the doctors, the railroads, the electric power companies." They probably don't realize it, but what they suggest is Socialism.

And most Americans certainly don't want Socialism.
