The patient waiting list will then be reduced to zero, and even with the discovery of new and dramatic drugs or a vaccine giving all immunity, we believe that within 25 years enough progress in medication and control of the disease will be made to cause us to have some permanently vacant beds in these hospitals.

to accommodate 140 colored patients and the general assembly appropriated $875,066—nearly a million dollars—to build it. There are today about 400 Negro patients waiting to start treatment in our state. For them this is a day of hope and thanksgiving because with the opening of this Moore Wing and the new wing at Eastern North Carolina Sanatorium at Wilson this large waiting list of our colored people will be taken care of.

Dr. Julian Allison Moore, for whom we name this facility 'The Moore Wing', was a mainspring in the development and progress of the Western North Carolina Sanatorium from the time it opened its doors in 1937 until six months ago when considerations of his personal health compelled him to conserve his energies. He felt this could best be done by limiting his work and the Hospital Board reluctantly accepted his resignation.

More About— Youth's Tribute

a deep honor and a great satisfaction to me, I told Dr. Weatherford that I would be happy to do so.
As I said, I could not find words to begin to express my ideas in the way that I felt deeper in my heart, as no one can know those feelings but God. But having had the pleasure of knowing Mr. Seawright and of working with him in many school functions, I tried to tell Dr. Weatherford's listeners the way the youth felt toward this wonderful man.

The future of tomorrow is in the hands of the youth of today. I, as one of these youths, face this task of leading the world in the years to come.
In order to prepare ourselves for the future we must have worthy leaders who will shape our lives and our thoughts for the future problems.
The community is the place where this learning begins, and in each community there are usually ten outstanding persons who are able to instruct in various fields. But fortunate is the community which possesses one person who can administer all these functions. Our community is one of the most fortunate, as we had Mr. Seawright—teacher, counselor, church worker, florist. An able person to perform any task which was placed before him, he helped each one in a different way. At least that is the way he seemed to me, and to the others in school.

Broad River Home Demon. Club Has Record Crowd

The June meeting of the Broad River Home Demonstration club, held Friday, June 26, was one of the most enjoyable the club has had in the year and a half it has been in existence.
The meeting, held in the Broad River community house, was attended by 29 persons. Thirteen of these were new members interested in learning more about the club and what it has to offer them. Following the business meeting, all members enjoyed the social hour when all handcrafts, from new and old members, were displayed. Quilts, bed spreads, rugs (both woven and hooked), brooms, copper work, a shuck doll, novel laundry bag, woven hand bag, crochet articles, woven belts, embroidery, Swedish darning, and painted wooden plates were among articles shown.
