SEGREGATION IN SCHOOLS

The recent momentous decision of the Supreme Court outlawing segregation of the races in the public schools of this country has excited intense speculation about practical results and will continue to do so—indeinitely.

No man can say with any degree of certainty WHEN the actual transition to mixed classes will begin, or, what course it will take once it begins.

There are a few broad facts which may be stated as definite NOW:

1. The five cases considered together by the Supreme Court, and to which its decision was directed, dealt with segregation in the Public Schools only. The opinion by Chief Justice Earl Warren and an unanimous court did not purport to deal with segregation outside the public schools. It would seem to follow—although the court in its 4,000-word opinion did not intro-State transportation and the like remain unchanged. It should be emphasized that the decision affects PUBLIC school—those operated with State funds—only. It does NOT, of course, affect PRIVATE or DENOMINATIONAL schools.

A recent headline in a Durham paper, indicating that private schools are also involved, was obviously in error.

2. The 17 states now having segregation will be given a chance in arguments before the Supreme Court AFTTR next October 1 to suggest means and procedures for putting the new rule into effect. Since the 1954-5 school year will have started even before arguments begin, it is a strong bet—as a practical matter—that no actual transition to mixed classes will take place in North Carolina during the next school year, and perhaps, not for some time after that.

3. Once the new plan is put into effect, it is doubtful that anything approaching a general mixing of the races in the classroom will occur in the near future. This is true because of the rule adopted by our State Board of Education which says that children must attend the school in the district in which they live. A child may attend a school outside his own home district only if the school heads of the two districts involved in a proposed transfer agree to the transfer, or, if the transfer is allowed by the State Board of Education.

There seems to be no sound reason why these rules of the Education Board should be altered as a result of the Court decision. Since most white children live in the close vicinity of the schools which they now attend, and the same is true of negro children, it appears, at least at the outset, that first mixing of the races would be slight.

4. There is nothing in the FEDERAL Constitution or in the Supreme Court's segregation ruling which says that a State MUST operate public schools. Our North Carolina Constitution—which could be changed by amendment on vote of the people—says, in Article IX, Sec. 2 that the General Assembly shall provide by taxation "and otherwise" a uniform system of public schools, "free" to children between 6 and 21, with separate but indiscriminate schools for whites and negroes.

The fact that "free" public schools are provided for both races, as well as Indians, is a voluntary function in State government. The fact that public schools are provided at all is a voluntary assumption of responsibility on the part of the State.

1,000,000 Affected.
Approximately 1,000,000 white and negro students and teachers will be affected by the decision in North Carolina, once it is put into effect. In the 1952-3 school year there were 652,622 white students (71 per cent) in our public schools. There were 276,401 negro pupils (29 per cent.) The white students had 20,885 teachers (62 per cent), the negroes 8,031 teachers (38 per cent.)

The meat of the historic court decision is found in the terse statement: "Separate educational facilities are inherently unequal." Chief Justice Warren, in the choice of those words, meant simply that no matter how equal the educational facilities, if they were kept separate, then, the quality of the educational opportunities could NOT be equal.
