MONTREAT IS UNIQUE—

summer, Mr. Stubbs is responsible for housing between 15-20,000 guests during the course of a summer. There is also the job of providing meals for the guests as well as the students of Montreat college. This means having nearly 100 hotel employees during the summer and about 36 the rest of the year.
The spiritual impact of Montreat is tremendous. Its conference program includes more than 20 major conferences with a total number of participants exceeding 30,000. Indeed, in its conference program, the Montreat religious strength finds its most evident expression.
During the summer months the great religious leaders of both Great Britain and America appear on the platform. This coming summer during the Bible conference, two of the principle speakers will be Dr. James Stewart of Edinburgh University, Scotland, and Dr. Billy Graham, famed evangelist, who is, at the time of this writing, conducting a crusade in Scotland. At conferences in the past the late Dr. Robert Speer was a frequent speaker as was the late Peter Marshall, about whom the book "The Man Called Peter" was written.

Montreat also has summer schools to train missionaries as well as religious leaders in our own country. Even the languages they must know for whatever part of the world they will be in are taught during these sessions. Montreat is the leading Presbyterian college in sending out workers to foreign missions.
Montreat college, under the presidency of Dr. McGregor, is a part of the religious emphasis of Montreat, as is the Montreat Preparatory school. The prep school, under the direction of Miss Annie Webb, features a high standard of academic training with a Christian background and is fully accredited.
Very important parts of the Montreat summer programs are those conducted for the young people and Camp Montreat.

The Montreat Young People's Program is directed by A. Heath Whittle, track coach at Davidson college. More than 1600 young people take part annually in this activity which provides separate recreational and spiritual outlets for the various age groups.
Camp Montreat is headed by Mrs. Dorothy Norman and an experienced staff of camp leaders. Girls from 13 states are already enrolled for this summer's program. It runs for four, six, and eight weeks' sessions and offers a wide range of camp activity for girls of the intermediate age groups.
Montreat college, the focal point of religious and educational training for young girls, is a four year institution which offers training for a number of careers including the church, teaching and nursing, emphasis being placed on Christian development. Though many of its graduates go into nursing and secondary education teaching, 40% or more become active in church work.
The college program, as well as the workings of the whole Montreat Association, is "Christ-centered, Bible-centered and Church-centered," believing as it does that Christian principles are the only foundation for any society that makes the brotherhood of man paramount.

for the Loch Ness monster. We spent one entire afternoon walking around the shores of that beautiful lake looking for the creature. But we knew it wasn't there. Our guide told us confidentially before the start of the tour that there was no monster but that it was just a gag to draw the tourists. And it does draw visitors to North-ern Scotland from all over the world.
It has been a few years now since the monster was seen in Loch Ness and longer since it was photographed. You can watch the papers anytime now for some enterprising newspaper photographer to happen along while the demon from the deep is taking a sunbath in the middle of the lake. But in the words of the Scottish guide: "That isn't really a picture of a monster. Someone is just doing—let me see—what do you
