AN UNKNOWN SOLDIER-POET TALKS TO GOD
Look, God, I have never spoken to you.
But now I want to say "How do you do";
You see, God, they told me you don't exist
And like a fool, I believed all this.
Last night, from a shell hole, I saw your sky;
I figured right then they had told me a lie;
Had I taken time to see things you've made,
I'd have known they weren't calling a spade,
I wonder God, if you'd take my hand,
Somehow I feel that you'll understand;
Funny I had to come to this hellish place
Before I had time to see your face.
Well, I guess there isn't much more I can say;

But I'm sure glad God, I met you today;
I guess the "zero hour" will soon be here
But I'm not afraid since I know you're here.
The signal! Well, God, I'll have to go,
I like you lots, this I want you to know;
Look now, this will be a horrible fight,
Who knows— I may come to your house tonight.
Though I wasn't friendly to you before,
I wonder, God, if you'd wait at your door;
Look, I'm crying— me shedding tears!
I wish I had known you these many years.
Well— I have to go now, God— good-bye!
Strange—since I met you, I'm not afraid to die.
(The above was found on the body of an American soldier after a battle.)

The Edge of the Sea, by Rachel Carson. This book, by the author of The Sea Around Us, deals with the myriads of animals, tiny and larger, that inhabit the seaweeds along the coasts. The water jungles, the dependence of life on the tides, and the struggle for existence there, are all as fascinating as her first volume on the sea itself.

The remarkable drawings by Bob Hines bring into clear focus the descriptions of crabs, barnacles, the forests of seaweed and the countless other denizens of the deep.

Anyone who frequents the beaches should carry this book with him.
