Janice Davis, a sunbeam member, led the opening prayer. The group then sang their sunbeam song, gave their motto and joined their leader in circle prayer. The W.M.U. ladies were honored with the presence of Mrs. Louise Alexander, president of the W.M.U. of Calvary Baptist church, Asheville, who gave a very interesting talk on "Ye Christian Heralds, Go Proclaim."

The Jr. Home and Civic club met Thursday, Aug. 17, at 8:00 o'clock at the City Hall. Mrs. Dempsey Whitaker, president, presided. Plans were made for the new club year and brief reports given by committee chairmen.

Miss Sara Rice gave an interesting account of her recent trip to Greensboro to take a two weeks' old baby boy to be placed for adoption in the Children's Home Society of N. C. The baby was sent from the Children's Home Society Agency in Asheville.

Mrs. D. C. Hamby, Jr., clothing closet chairman, reported that 200 articles of clothing had been donated by the club members to be used at school.

Mrs. Whitaker reported that she and Mrs. T. C. Burnette, Jr., attended the President's Institute of District 2, N. C. Federation of Women's clubs on Aug. 16 at the Manor in Asheville. A luncheon and style show followed the business session. Plans were made at this meeting for the district meeting to be held here on Oct. 24. Hostess clubs for this meeting will be Black Mountain Woman's club, Jr. Woman's club and the Jr. Home and Civic club.

MRS. PERLEY REVIEWS BOOK FOR T&T CLUB

The Tea & Topic club met at the home of Mrs. Richard Oulahan on New Bern avenue, Monday, Aug. 13, at 7:30. The president, Mrs. Max Woodcock, presided.

Mrs. S. S. Cooley reported that the club's Finer Carolina project was complete. The Tea & Topic club built a wading pool at the clubhouse recreation area for the very young and paid for a fence to enclose it. Several members reported that it had become a very popular spot.

Mrs. Allen Perley gave the program from the book by Rufus Jarman "A Bed for the Night". The book tells the story of E. M. Statler and how his dream of owning the largest hotel in the world came true and evolved into the immense chain of Statler hotels. Mr. Statler, an efficiency expert, standardized the hotels, giving the best in service and accommodations. The headaches of running a large hotel and the humorous anecdotes were most interesting as well as informative. Following the program the hostess served a sweet course.

Those present were Mrs. Woodcock, Mrs. Perley, Mrs. Otty Leeman, Mrs. Roy A. Taylor, Mrs. J. L. Holman, Jr., Mrs. A. F. Tyson, Jr., Mrs. Cooley, Mrs. Don Wright, and the hostess.

A driver violation was noted in 57 per cent of the fatal auto smash ups in North Carolina last year. It means, according to a Motor Vehicles Department study, that well over half of the drivers involved in death-dealing accidents were acting unlawfully, unsafely and unwisely at the time death struck.

Road and vehicle defects accounted for six per cent of the fatal crashes.

Good news for the lady drivers. Of the 1380 drivers involved in fatal auto wrecks last year only 103 were women, the State Department of Motor Vehicles reports.

There were 1251 men involved and 26 reports came in not listing the driver's sex. The 1380 drivers were involved in 1031 fatal accidents during 1955. The death toll 1165.
