REFLECTIONS—

editor of the Marshall News-Record and announcer for the home games here, put his hand over the microphone and said: "When Marshall plays Owen we mix the men and the boys." I didn't have a chance to find out which was which because before I could answer Edwards was through the line and on his way to the goal 55 yards away.

When F. P. Higginbotham attended a meeting in Spartanburg recently he walked out and left his hat. Back home, he sent a message and asked that it be shipped as quickly as possible so that he could get some more wear out of the newly cleaned and blocked top piece before cold weather.

Friday morning it arrived and with all due respects the box was handed to Mr. Higginbotham by his fellow workers. He opened it and pulled out a weather beaten Panama, dirty and flopped enough to have been worn by the king of the hobos.

Puzzled, Mr. Higginbotham turned the hat around and then in disbelief he opened it and looked inside. There in letters big as life was stamped the name of a well known store in downtown Black Mountain. This convinced him that it was his hat but he still couldn't believe that this "thing" he held could be his chapeau. "But how," he reasoned, "if it isn't my hat, did that guy in Spartanburg get hold of a hat from Black Mountain?"

While this was going on Max Willis and other Southern employees had been standing around wanting to laugh but afraid of giving away the joke.

The joke was that Mr. Willis had opened the package, taken the hat out and replaced it with one borrowed from W. W. Earley. Just as Mr. Higginbotham reached the end of his patience the boys walked in with his hat. Although he threatened to get even he was so glad to get it back that he promptly forgave them.

Your age is showing if work seems a lot less fun and fun seems like a lot more work.
