Taken from the files of the News of October 24, 1946:

If plans now in progress are carried through, Black Mountain will have a community Chest drive independent of the Asheville-Buncombe county unit. A special committee of H. W. Sanders, A.
W. McDougale, and R. E. Finch met last night and drew up a charter which will be sent to Raleigh for approval. If approved, this area will launch a drive similar to that underway in Asheville and other areas.

Dr. E. E. Corcoran has recently come to Black Mountain to take care of the practice of Dr. S. S.
Cooley until June, after which time he will open his office in the City Hall in Asheville. He is a grandson of Mrs. J. C. Tait of Montreat.

Herbert Turner, student at the high school here, gave hunters in this area a mark to shoot at last week when he stepped out and knocked off a 400 pound bear with a .22 rifle. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Logan Turner of Ridge-crest.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Gregg attended the N. C. Florists convention at Winston-Salem last Thursday.

Mrs. A. W. McDougale and daughter Sara were in Greensboro last week-end to attend the 1946 conference of N. C. Music Teachers at the N. C. College for Women.

Mrs. H. W. Baucom was elected chairman of Stewardship, and Mrs.
Charles Jolley of Swannanoa, associate superintendent, of the Asheville Division of the N. C.
Baptist Women's Missionary union at the meeting held in Hendersonville.

Miss Sara Thompson has arrived from Cleveland, Ohio, for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thompson of Old Fort.

Officers for the United Council of Church Women for the coming year include Mrs. H. G. Hardin, pres.; Mrs. Dinsmore Crawford, vice pres.; Mrs. E. J. Anthony,

ADMINISTRATRIX'S NOTICE

ers of the Missouri and Columbia rivers in 1805-06.
Even the earliest description pointed out marked differences in temperament and physical makeup between the grizzly and black bear. A somewhat concave facial profile, long slightly curved claws on the front feet, a decided hump over the shoulders, together with the frosted appearance of the hair on the back and sides, left little doubt in the mind of the early explorer that he was in the presence of a grizzly. An average weight of between four and six hundred pounds has been given but records of considerably larger specimens are available.

During centuries of adjustment this bear became adapted to a vast variety of habitats. He was found throughout western North America from Mexico to the Brooks Range of northern Alaska. His original homeland extended eastward through what is now Texas, Nebraska, Kansas, the Dakotas, the Canadian Province of Saskatchewan and the Territories of Mackenzie and the Yukon.

Since the very beginning of the livestock industry in the West, the grizzly has been under suspicion as a killer of cattle and sheep. And although a strong defense against this can be made by demonstrating its omnivorous feeding habits, there is no doubt that meat is often a staple in the diet of the grizzly. Before the coming of the white man, wild game amply filled this need. The domestic animals, which took the place of the buffalo, deer and other game on much of the grizzly range, presented a tempting substitute for the natural foods. Serious predation on livestock was probably confined, however, to a small segment of the bear population. But all received the blame. Livestock interests throughout much of the West marked the grizzly as a threatening hazard to their business and carried out an active campaign of eradication. Killing for sport may well have played a part in this decline in some areas.

An additional factor which is felt to be of particular importance today is the rapid change of the environment in which the grizzly lives. Wilderness-type range represents the most important requirement of present-day grizzly bear habitat. The rapid shrinking and virtual disappearance of this type of country throughout much of the West presents the most serious challenge that the grizzly bear has encountered in its struggle for survival.

Grizzly Bear

Condensed from an article by Rober F. Cooney.

It is difficult to believe that the grizzly bear in the United States is moving dangerously close to extinction. Until the appearance of white man upon the North American Continent, this huge, self-reliant animal had met no serious challenge to his supremacy. Since that time, however, a continuous battle with guns, traps and dogs has been waged against this silver-tipped monarch over much of our western country.

Legend and fact are inseparably intermingled in the history of this great bear. Vague references were made to it by the Spanish explorers of the southwest in the sixteenth century and Indians spoke often of the grizzly in their legends. To them the killing of this animal was a feat of valor comparable to that of vanquishing a human adversary.

It was left, however, for Lewis and Clark to bring to the world the first scientific description of the grizzly from their famous exploration into the headwat-
