MOTOR VEHICLES

May a person be guilty of a crime if he is driving his car upon an open highway less than fifty-five miles an hour?

Yes. There are numerous offenses that the driver of a motor vehicle may be guilty of while driving within the speed limit for the particular area. One of the most common offenses is that of "reckless driving."

The statutes of North Carolina provide: "Any person who drives any vehicle upon a highway carelessly and heedlessly in wilful or wanton disregard of the rights or safety of others, without due caution and circumspection and at a speed or in a manner so as to endanger or be likely to endanger any person or property, shall be guilty of reckless driving."

May a person be convicted of any offense if he is driving his car at a slow rate of speed?

Yes. There is a statute which provides: "No person shall operate a motor vehicle on the highway at such a slow speed as to impede Tiny Tim's message, "God bless us every one" will long be remembered.

—About 108 miles of underseas cable must be laid for every 100 miles to be covered, to allow for irregularities of seafloor.

—The buildings at Thule Air Base are built on stilts—Reason? If they were on the ground, the heat from the floor would thaw the ice underneath, causing it to settle.
