Women Living Longer Than Men

Women in this country live six years longer than men, on the average, Health Information Foundation reports.

Last year the death rate for males was 9.6 per 1,000 population—a rate more than 50 per cent higher than that for females. As the chart above indicates, the gap has been widening for years.

Women have lower mortality rates from such major causes of death as heart disease, cancer, and accidents, the Foundation points out. Safer childbirth methods also have had much to do with the increasingly favorable outlook for women. Female mortality in childbirth has fallen from 20,000 lives in 1900 to under 1,600 in 1956.

There is no simple explanation of why women generally live longer than men, the Foundation states. Biological factors may be involved. It is also possible that men are more subject to the tensions of modern living.

Paradoxically, although women have lower death rates than men, they appear to get sick more often; in any event, they see the doctor more frequently. H. I. F. comments:

"The demands of their jobs make it difficult for some men to see a doctor—or perhaps serve as an excuse to keep them from seeing one. It is very likely that male life expectancy could be raised if more men would consult physicians regularly."

REFLECTIONS—

in the primary on Saturday, May 31.

The newly elected state legislator was tense as the delegation filed into his office and the spokesman announced: "We are here to ask your aid in our campaign for forest preservation."

Obviously relieved, the lawmaker replied: "I'll be most happy to help. Fact is, I never know when I may have to take to the woods myself."

That may be why Carl Bowness and I are leaving the woods out on Portman Villa road in their natural state. Whether or not we cut any more trees soon depends to a great extent on how the primary goes come May 31.

This poem by Marty Hale was sent to me by a friend. He says to read the last couple of lines and remember them well. What on earth could he mean?

I want my boy to have a dog, Or maybe two or three, He'll learn from them much easier Than he would learn from me.

A dog will show him how to love, And bear no grudge or hate, I'm not so good at that myself, But dogs will do it straight.

I want my boy to have a dog, To be his pal and friend,

So he may learn that friendship is faithful to the end.

There never yet has been a dog, Who learned to doublecross, Nor catered to you when you won, Then dropped you when you lost.

GARDEN TIME

By M. E. Gardner

Daffodils and tulips give us much pleasure in early spring and are to be found in most of our gardens. The question is: should they be taken up every year; every second year; or every third year?

It is not necessary to lift daffodils every year but it is highly desirable that the bulbs be dug, divided, and replanted every third year. This gives them a better chance to grow and reproduce. If your need to be moved, wait until the leaves begin to turn yellow before digging. While the leaves are still green, they are manufacturing food and storing it in the bulbs for next year's flowers. They may be dug, divided and replanted immediately, or they may be dried and stored in a cool place and held for fall planting.

The tulip is somewhat different. Bulbs should be taken up and replanted every second year. The bulbs may deteriorate rather rapidly and for this reason it is sometimes best to buy fresh bulbs every year if large flowers are desired. If bulbs are to be replanted, do not dig them until the leaves turn yellow, as was the case with daffodils.

Bearded (German Iris) is blooming now in our neighborhood and will be ready to divide and transplant in about a month. However, plants may be divided and transplanted any time during the summer and early fall. A good division consists of a new rhizome, or thickened underground stem, with a cluster, or fan, of leaves. After the division has been made, the rhizome should be planted so that the top of it will be even with the soil. Deep planting is not desirable. Bearded Iris do best in well drained soils which dry rather quickly.

Cool weather in the spring frequently interferes with fruit setting on tomato plants. This is particularly true of the first two or three flower clusters that are formed. Hormones, or plant regulators, applied to these first clusters may give you earlier tomatoes and more total production. They may be purchased from your seedsman under trade names of "Blossom Set" or "Fruiteone." If you want to experiment, use one of these materials according to accompanying directions. Spray on the open blossoms with an atomizer or fine spray.

MULTIFLORA ROSE MAKE GOOD FENCE
A. W. Nesbitt of Fairview, a supervisor of the Buncombe County Soil Conservation District, is using multiflora rose as a fence on his dairy farm. He says: "I have discovered that this fence is the least expensive of all to establish, and the cheapest to maintain." Nesbitt set his rose seedlings in 1952 and by 1955 he had a fence which would turn livestock. Now, even a dog cannot get through it.

In addition to being a sturdy fence, Nesbitt has found that the rose fence is also a source of food and cover for birds, rabbits, and other wildlife. Also, the rose is a beautiful hedge. In the spring, it has masses of white and pink blossoms; in the fall and winter, its red fruits add color to the fields.
