Sponsors of the United Appeal remind: "The United Appeal is the answer to the practical, business-like people of our community. It is efficient; it cuts down overhead costs for separate drives and channels the funds raised directly to the agencies who desperately need the money. It eliminates duplication of effort by volunteer workers. The emotional giver, on the other hand, sees and knows actual cases who have received, in many cases, life-saving aid from one of the agencies such as blood from the Red Cross blood bank, or therapy for a child crippled by cerebral palsy.

The United Appeal came into existence because the people of our community were tired of so many separate campaigns. At one time there were over 100 individual drives in our county. Overhead costs were high and there was a constant demand on the time of the volunteer workers. Thirty-six of these separate drives have now been incorporated into one big campaign which takes place in October of each year. In order to maintain and finance these agencies, the people of our county must support the United Appeal.

Through your contributions to the United Appeal you are helping so many who need your help. You are helping children learn to speak—talk and walk at the Cerebral Palsy clinic. You are giving youngsters their first opportunity to go to school like normal children by providing the Pre-School for handicapped children. Some of the little ones need mental help; some must learn to dress themselves; to play with each other. You are giving the poor a chance to see a brighter world through treatments, glasses and surgery at the Lion's Clinic for the Blind. This year already, you have restored their sight to 20 people in our community through surgery and many of them are able to go back on the job and become self-supporting.

You have saved broken homes through wise counseling at the United Social Services—you have schools is 58 and they must retire at 65", he said. "I shudder to think what we shall do 10 years hence unless something is done immediately," he said. He gave examples of good teachers he has known who left the profession in order to earn a "decent living for their families."

He said that higher salaries would not solve all school problems, but stated that better pay would help stop the exodus from the profession and should encourage college students to enter the profession.

D. W. Harrison introduced the speaker, C. S. Porter, president, presided.

George W. Sandlin

In the presence of many friends, the body of George W. Sandlin, 81, native son and prominent citizen of Old Fort and McDowell county, was laid to rest in the cemetery here Sunday afternoon with the Rev. Lawrence Pruett officiating.

A rugged individualist and colorful figure, Mr. Sandlin was well known through Western North Carolina but his hometown and its progress were his chief concern. As long as his health was good, he made his home here and in recent years had moved to the Sandlin residence, "Hemlock Hill", several miles east of town. For the past three years Mr. and Mrs. Sandlin had lived with their daughter, Mrs. Sue Sandlin Millaway, her husband, B. C. Millaway, Jr., and young granddaughter, Marion. Only a few weeks ago Mr. Sandlin made a trip from Winston-Salem to Old Fort by ambulance for what was to be his last look at the little village he loved so well. He died after months of declining health Friday afternoon, Oct. 10, at his daughter's home in Winston-Salem. Funeral services were conducted at Vogler Funeral home there.

Mr. Sandlin was the son of the late Jonathan Columbus and Susan McCaless Sandlin (Uncle Sam and Aunt Sue to half of Old Fort). He was educated at Fairview Collegiate institute and Rutherford college. He was a retired attorney and a long-time employee of the Southern Railway. He was employed in 1934 by Southern as a telegrapher, and later served as station agent, auditor and accountant. He was station agent at Marion when he retired at the age of 77 after 67 years with the railroad. Prior to that he had served on the Murphy branch of Southern Railway. Mr. Sandlin was only 17 when he started on his first full time job with the railroad in 1894. He had been working with section gangs before that, carrying water and doing other odd jobs. When he was 21 he was holding down three jobs with the railroad and serving as mayor of Old Fort at the same time.

Mr. Sandlin was married in 1913 to Miss Lula Carolina Diltmore of Bryson City. He began driving in 1914 and was sworn to practice in McDowell county. He was 64 then. A highlight of his career was called to practice before the U. S. Supreme court. In 1951 he listed his occupations as Marion station agent, agent for the Railway Express, Old Fort agent for a Wilmington, Del., textile corporation, representative for an insurance agency, farmer, real estate dealer, and attorney at law practicing in all state courts, Federal District court, U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals and the U. S. Supreme court. When he was elected mayor of Old Fort on his 21st birthday, he was also a magistrate, a justice of the peace, a notary public and a United States commissioner.

Mr. Sandlin had been a member of Fairview Baptist church since childhood. He was a member of the McDowell county and N. C. Bar associations, a Mason, Shriner and a member of the Order of Railway Telegraphers.

Surviving in addition to the widow are two daughters, Mrs. Maybrey of Winston-Salem, with whom he had made his home for the past three years; and Mrs. Richard N. Fullerton of Ft. Worth, Tex.; a sister, Mrs. P. H. Mashburn of Old Fort and two grandchildren, Mrs. J. H. Swann of Hot Springs; Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ledbetter and daughter, Kay, of Marion; Mrs. W. W. LeFeure, Mr. and Mrs. Gayden Swann, Jr., and Gaydon Swann, Jr., of Old Fort; and Mrs. James Thomas and daughter, Cheryl Kay, of Greensboro.

maids who included Mrs. Paul Allison, Jr., of Hickory; Mrs. Lamar Smith of Greenville, S. C.; Mrs. Thurman Padgigin and Mrs. Lawrence White of Old Fort. They carried fan shaped arrangements of Shasta chrysanthemums. Mary Lynn Rhinehardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rhinehardt, and niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Mrs. J. Fred Allison, mother of the bride, wore a Nassau blue crepe dress, trimmed with pearls and matching accessories and corsage of white roses. Mrs. B. O. Creekmore, mother of the groom, wore blue lace with matching accessories and corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom chose his father as his best man. Ushers for the occasion were Joseph Allison, brother of the bride; Kenneth Rhinehardt, Jr., and Johnny Robinson, nephews of the bride; and Lamar Smith of Greenville, S. C.

After a reception in the church diningroom, the couple left for a trip to Virginia and Washington, D. C. Assisting with the reception were Mrs. Shirley White, Mrs. Clyde Harrison, Miss Mary Jo Harris, Miss Mimi Padgett, Mrs. James Washburn, Mrs. Charles Marston, Mrs. H. L. Young and Mrs. Sue Glover.

Upon their return, the couple will reside in Old Fort where both are employed by Old Fort Finishing plant.

Out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Creekmore, Mrs. Clara Wertz and Mrs. Martha Creekmore from New Bern; Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Smith from Greenville, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Creekmore and daughter, Lynn, from Durham; Mr. and Mrs. Owens Rector, Mrs. B. O. Brevard and Miss Josephine Griffin from Rutherford college, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Harrod, Jr., Hickory, and Mr. and Mrs. Barnhardt, New Berg, S. C.

Revival in Progress
A revival is in progress at the Old Fort Church of God on Commerce street. The pastor, Rev. Earl Golden, joins his congregation in a cordial invitation to join them in worship. Special music is a part of the program.

Timely Tip for Cooking Comfort!

KEY Your Kitchen to a MODERN ELECTRIC Range

Thoughtful homemakers take a safety tip from Reddy when it comes to cooking comfort. They key their modern way of life to an all-electric kitchen and the automatic, safe heat of a modern electric range. No cooking "on top of old Smokey" for these busy ladies on the lookout for a better way to do things. They live better and cook better, electrically!

Neat and trim as a majorette, a new electric range with timing controls can cook entire meals while you're away. No need to worry — there are no flames, no fumes — no soot, no smoke. It's as safe and clean as your electric light. Just set the timer and away you go!

If flame-type cooking dates your kitchen or you have a yen to replace old faithful with a new electric range, see an electric dealer soon. When you choose a safe, modern electric range, you key your kitchen to a new standard of cooking comfort.

CAROLINA POWER & LIGHT COMPANY

MULE MOTIVE POWER—Small Texas mules pulled Raleigh's first streetcars in 1886. Later electricity powered the cars. Horse-drawn trolleys and gas-fueled street lighting systems were predecessors to many a modern power company, including Carolina Power & Light Company, which is noting its 50th birthday.
