BLACK MOUNTAIN LIBRARY

Over 3,000 books were borrowed from the Black Mountain Public Library during October and November, reported Miss Ruby Hall, librarian at the meeting of the Library Board Monday night.
For the first time in several years more adults borrowed books than young people, Miss Hall commented. 615 of the books taken out during the two months were non-fiction. This increase in non-fiction borrowing is partly due to the increased purchase of new books for the library. Ninety-three new books were added to the library shelves in the last two months.
A gift of a slide projector and screen by Fred Schelz was gratefully accepted by the Library Board. Arrangements are also being made to make available a large number of new educational films from Raleigh.
