This is the Law

DOGS

Is the owner or keeper of a dog liable for the damage it does? Section 67-1 of the General Statutes of North Carolina provides: "If any dog, not being at the time on the premises of the owner or person having charge thereof, shall kill or injure any livestock or fowls, the owner or person having such dog in charge shall be liable for damages sustained by the injury, killing, or maiming of any livestock, and costs of suit."

It should be carefully observed that the above statute refers only to "livestock or fowls." It says nothing about bodily injuries to one's own person or damages to property other than "livestock or fowls." The particular statute, although enacted in 1911, has never come before the North Carolina Supreme Court for an interpretation.

The civil liability of dog owners is found in the common law or the decisions of the court.

The most recent dog law appears in Pegg v. Gray handed down by the Supreme Court of North Carolina in 1954. In an opinion written by Justice Jeff. D. Johnson, Jr., evidencing both a practical and legal knowledge of dogs, the court said: "It may be conceded on a well-established principle of law that where a dog roams abroad on another's land of its own accord and does damage or inflicts injury to persons, animals, or property there can be no recovery therefor in the absence of special statutory enactment, unless it be shown that (1) the dog was possessed of a propensity to commit the depredation complained of and (2) the owner knew, or was chargeable with knowledge, of such propensity."

"This principle of law is grounded upon a recognition that by natural instinct and habit an ordinary dog of most breeds is inclined to roam around and stray at times from its immediate habitat without causing injury or doing damage to persons or property. And in deference to this natural instinct of dogs the processes of the early common law eschewed the idea of requiring that they be kept shut up, and instead promulgated the foregoing rule which allows a reputable dog a modicum of liberty to follow his roaming instincts without imposing liability on its master. And so, since early times the law has been and still is that the owner of a reputable dog is not answerable in damages for its entry upon the lands of another upon its own volition under circumstances amounting to an unprovoked trespass."

The Picture Of Health

by Robert A. Arens, M.D.
 Safer Childbirth

In a recent ten-year period the maternal death rate dropped dramatically. The greatest reduction came within the realm of infection. Other improvements were in the better control of hemorrhage, effects of anesthesia, and loss from heart disease.

Antibiotics unknown some years back have helped the obstetrician in his victory over infection. They have also made the cesarean operation safer. Improved use of hormones can now shorten difficult labor. And better x-ray examinations have been devised by radiologists to examine the mother where necessary before birth "to be sure the passenger will fit the passage," as one specialist in radiology has phrased it. Not only is this kind of advance information helpful to the mother but, by forestalling possible birth injury and potential periods when the arriving baby is cut off from oxygen, may be a godsend to the baby.

Other medical techniques which help the delivering mother are more frequent use of transfusions because of an improved blood bank system, and better methods of anesthesia, with a greater call upon the services of the anesthesiologist.

Perhaps the most serious complication of pregnancy is a baffling disorder known as eclampsia or toxemia, in which the body retains too much sodium and gives off too much of other substances that should not be lost, such as protein thrown off in the urine. Toxemia's cause is unknown. Today, if it is detected before the sodium losses and other blood imbalances produce convulsions and coma—and this is one good reason for early and regular prenatal care—it can usually be brought under control.

Is the owner or keeper of a dog liable in trespass if he sends or allows his dog to go on the land of another in pursuit of game? Yes. The Supreme Court of North Carolina expressly so ruled in the previously mentioned case of Pegg v. Gray.

In the particular case, a pack of seven to ten foxhounds of the defendant on numerous occasions chased foxes onto and across the plaintiff's land without his permission and in disregard of his protests. They damaged growing crops and stampeded a herd of seventy beef cattle which in turn damaged the fences. Although the hunter himself did not enter the plaintiff's property, it was held that he could be held responsible on the theory of trespass for the damage done by his dogs.

—Milk production on North Carolina farms during last February was two million pounds lower than in February 1957.

YOU'LL FIND IT IN THE WANT ADS

Be our guest for a pleasure test... and let Chevy do its own sweet talking!

Before you decide on any new car, here's the biggest break you can give your dollars—and yourself: Drive a '59 Chevrolet. You'll find there's no reason to want a car that costs more—and no car you want that costs less!

Here are some of the things Chevrolet will tell you about when you drive it—

ROOMIER BODY BY FISHER—more width for seating comfort, more luggage space, and new in everything but its famous soundness.

MAGIC-MIRROR FINISH—keeps its shine without waxing or polishing for up to three years.

NEW OVERHEAD CURVED WINDSHIELD—and bigger windows—all of Safety Plate Glass.

NEW BIGGER BRAKES—deeper drums with better cooling for safer stopping and up to 66% longer life.
