BEAR MEAT?
Worth Burgess, local service station owner and operator, may not fire another round this entire bear-hunting season, but he certainly did hit the jackpot the first two days.

Calling from Belhaven, 'way down east, Mr. Burgess informed his daughter Becky that his party had already knocked down five and were expecting to make life miserable for bruiin for several more sessions.

OTEEEN PARTY!
I was happy to be included in the list of guests at the luncheon given by the manager of Oteen VA hospital recently. It was a nice gesture on the part of the management and was much appreciated.

Things went according to the plans laid down by Vernon Wilson, and his fine staff in special service, but some question the judgment of putting an old buck private (me) with all that brass at the head table.

Although General John B. Wogan, former commander of the tough 13th Armored Division in Europe was a pleasant and an enjoyable luncheon companion, I was half expecting to get permanent kp every move I made or didn't make. He (Gen. Wogan) led the 13th through some rough places with the Third Army, commanded by the late General George Patton.

Seriously wounded by small arms fire, General Wogan told the medic who patched him up at the army hospital: "I'm a little potato but hard to peel."

The Germans agreed.

THANK YOU!
For every home game during the past football season at Owen High school, Ray Harrison of Harrison Funeral home has sent an ambulance to stand-by just in case. There was no charge for this service which meant much to the school officials, parents of participating players and fans. Bill Blaine was the driver who was on hand to offer assistance in anyway possible.

This service has been greatly appreciated.

Search Is On For Break In Water Lines
As the News went to press the Town of Black Mountain officials still had not been able to locate a "leak detector" to pinpoint the break in the water main in front of the Texaco station on West State Street.

The water is not creating too much hazard to traffic as of this date, but the situation could change rapidly in case of freezing weather. However, it was announced that sand would be applied to the area affected.

When the instrument is located, it will be used to clear up the mystery of the "water on Broadway." Many believe that this water comes from a spring, rather than a break in the water lines. Once the leak detector has been found, the rest will be easy, officials pointed out.

The new Youth Center was a busy place Monday evening when Boy Scout Troop No. 25 met under the leadership of Gay Wells and Carl Bonness. Gay displayed his card from Scout headquarters showing that he is now a full-fledged troop leader and received hearty applause from the 25 boys present.

It was interesting to watch different ones direct the carrying out of the various rituals, each doing his job with ease and snap.

Chalmers Club Opposes Cuts Welfare Grants

A Resolution
Whereas the state of North Carolina has proposed cuts in the welfare grants to permanently and totally disabled recipients and also to recipients of Old Age Assistance; and

Whereas a cut in welfare payments during these days of high cost of living is unwelcome, unnecessary, unwanted by the people of North Carolina, unintended by the State Legislature and is morally wrong; and

Whereas the greatest part of the disabled and aged groups comes from federal funds and the states and counties pay relatively small percentage of the total cost; Therefore be it

Resolved, That the Chalmers Club of Asheville, North Carolina, in regular meeting November 11, 1959, go on record opposing these cuts and ask that such action as deemed necessary be taken to restore these cuts at once; and be it further
