HOSPITALITY HINTS

Outdoor Cooking Tips
It's the little things that make a barbecue successful... set the stage for a memorable day outdoors.
Start a stubborn fire, try pouring fat drippings over a pile of newspapers. The fat won't leave an odor on the charcoal... or taint the food's flavor.

Heat scorching your hands? Slide a paper plate over the shank of your fire tongs or long-handled forks. The plate'll deflect the heat's sting.
Start the fun early—Pass out chef's hats and aprons...let guests cook their own dishes...make them feel it's their affair. For unexpected guests, add a little Mallox to the hamburger meat. It adds a different flavor—assures enough food for everyone.

N. C. Motorists Warned Of Cold Weather

Tar Heel motorists had better gird themselves now for the months "cold war" in the months ahead, Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt declared today.
"The annual battle of drivers against the elements will soon be underway," he warned. "And the victors will be those car owners who are smart enough to be prepared and skillful enough in their driving to outwit Old Man Winter."

The vehicle chief urged motorists to "make sure now—before the frantic rush—that your vehicle is prepared for the severe tests which cold weather, snow and ice create overnight. Have your car serviced by a reliable expert, so you can really depend on it when the going gets rough."

Scheidt added, "You'll need anti-freeze eventually; why not install it now? Your battery will receive additional strain because of heater, defroster, wipers and increased use of lights; check now to make certain your battery has the power you'll need."

"You'll want to be warm; make sure your heater will perform. You'll want to see clearly in rain, sleet and snow. Therefore check windshield wiper arms for adequate pressure to remove these hazardous obscurement. You'll want to stop safely. Therefore adjust brakes and make sure

BE STILL AND KNOW
I walked around the lake at eventide,
The sunset's glow was glorious below,
Reflected in the mirror, small then wide,
To shimmer in the wavelets, row by row.

I stood upon the bridge at eventide,
And heard the lapping of the waters, cool
And gentle, as they touched the sandy side
Of this enchanting, clear, smooth-pebbled pool.

I walked beside the waters and behold!
I found the Christ who loves nature so:
With Him I saw new beauties still unfold,
While to my heart He said, "Be still and know!"
