AND SOCIAL SECURITY

By D. C. Nichols
Field Representative

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the signing of the Social Security Act, the most comprehensive legislation of its kind ever enacted. During the years social security has grown and expanded so that today 75 million Americans are protected by this program against loss of income resulting from old-age and retirement, disability, or death.

The impact of social security upon our lives is now so great that no person can afford not to be aware of his personal stake in the social security program.

Planning for the future is an important step in our lives, and social security is in your future. Do you know the protection which social security affords you and your family? This is your insurance program. Know all about it. It is your key to future planning and financial security.

Employers of household workers, such as maids, babysitters, cooks, gardeners, laundresses, and chauffeurs are reminded that such work is covered by social security if the employee is paid $50 or more in cash wages by one employer in a calendar quarter. The law makes the employer responsible for reporting and paying the social security tax. Delinquent employers might be liable for the entire tax (worker's and employer's share) for several years back, plus interest and penalties.

If the household employee is regularly paid cash wages of $4 a week or more during a calendar quarter, such wages are covered by social security and must be reported. The tax rate is 6 percent. Of this, 3 percent is paid by the employer and 3 percent is paid by the employee.

In this district the reports, together with the taxes, should be sent to the District Director of Internal Revenue, Greensboro, N. C.

There is a special simplified report form (Form 942) designed for reporting domestic employees. It is available from any Internal Revenue office. Also available for the asking is an information pamphlet, OASI-21, describing the reporting requirements on household employees.

For further information, assistance or guidance, call or visit your Internal Revenue office or social security office.

Air Isn't Sure Cure For TB

If you think people — food faddists, deep breathing addicts, and the like — have strange ideas about health nowadays, you should rummage among old newspaper files, as we did the other day. In a story printed in a Cedar Rapids, Iowa, newspaper dated September 5, 1909, the writer asks, "When the dirigible balloon and the aeroplane have been perfected..." (the Wright brothers took flight in 1903) "... will we be able to dispense with doctors?"

The story quotes an experienced flyer of the day: "He relates that at one time he was suffering from rheumatism. He could not raise a hand above his head and his blood had become blackish. Four days in a balloon entirely cured him and returned his blood to its natural color. "He tells of a friend who was dying of tuberculosis," the story goes on. "The friend had lost all hope. He was awaiting death. Mr. Baldwin (the flyer) persuaded him to take a ride through the air, from St. Louis to the Atlantic Ocean. The fear of dropping to earth was a fear that he could laugh at, for he was dying anyway. He took the trip. He came back down a cured man. Instead of dying of consumption, he is still living, after a lapse of twenty years, a robust man."

Entranced by these stories, the Iowa writer visualized "the universal cure for all our ills up above the earth" and "floating hospitals in which men and women will be cured without drugs and without the knife." Unfortunately this dream has not come true. Most diseases, certainly tuberculosis, still require earth-bound treatment with drugs and possibly surgery. TB generally needs a stay in a solidly based hospital on the ground, even today.
