

Mills Chapel Church

At a recent Sunday school officers and teachers meeting, the following were elected as leaders of the BTU program for the '63 year: director, Otha Sherrill; asst. director, William Hamilton; secretary, Virginia Whittington; asst. secretary, Elfleeta Stepp; teacher, Mrs. Nelson Daugherty, Mrs. Jack Gentry and Mrs. Mary Fortune.

Mr. Sherrill has stated that an interesting program has been outlined for the year, and urges all you people to attend. Plan to make Sunday evening from 6-7 a part of your Sunday worship services.

Charlie Brown, deacon board chairman, has asked all members to be present for the church business meeting Friday night at 7:30 at the church. Important church business for the '63 year will be discussed.

Otha Sherrill and Charlie Brown were delegates to the Pastoral Union meeting held last Friday in Tryon. A report from this meeting will be given Sunday morning preceding morning worship.

Members of the Youth Council of Thomas Chapel and Macedonia churches were entertained with a Christmas party last Friday at the home of Mrs. Mack Williams, Asheville. Some 24 young people enjoyed the colorful and happy occasion with delicious refreshments served by the hostess.

The annual Pastoral Union meeting was held Sunday at St. Mark A.M.E. Zion church in Asheville. Thomas Chapel, Brookside A.M.E., and Macedonia churches were represented.

James Burris and son, Caesar, visited relatives in Anderson, S. C. during the holidays.

Onnie Logan of Plainfield, N. J., visited the Dave Jones and other relatives recently.

Mark Hooper III of Pontiac, Mich., is spending two weeks with his father and grandparents.

Visiting their mother, Mrs. Bessie Forney, for several days are sons Clarence and Otis, and Mrs. Otis Forney from Plainfield, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roseboro of Newport News, Va., spent several days with Mrs. Roseboro's mother, Mrs. Kitty Lawton, and other relatives.

Albert Forney of Washington, D. C., is visiting the Mary K. Lytle family.

Guest in the Laurence Daugherty home over the holidays were Mrs. Maggie Fauckner and Walter Glenn of Charlotte, and Mrs. Mary Hood and Mrs. Amelia Mobley of Rock Hill, S. C.

Just before the Christmas holidays, the annual Father-Son banquet was held at Market Street YMCA. Ways in which the schools have helped delinquents return to normal life was discussed by Harvey A. Austin, director of social service at the Juvenile Evaluation center in Swannanoa.

Following Mr. Austin's interesting talk on "Improving Delinquent Behavior", special awards were presented to the most outstanding boys in the city and county schools. Donald Smith, son of Mrs. Louise Smith and student at Carver school, was among those receiving awards.

Frank Hamilton of Washington, D. C., visited Mrs. Georgia Hamilton and other relatives during the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton and Otha Sherrill enjoyed a pre-Christmas dinner on Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Pertiller.

Relatives and a few friends gathered last Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Daugherty for their annual Christmas gathering. After exchanging gifts and being entertained by the Daugherty's one-year-old son, Craig, the group enjoyed some good home-baked goodies and cake prepared by Mrs. Daugherty.

Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy were one of the lucky families this Christmas, having both of their children with them. James Jr. and Mrs. Kennedy from Winston-Salem, and Miss Mildred Kennedy from Clark college, Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Stepp enjoyed last Sunday evening with the William Hamiltons. Slides were shown by the Hamiltons of relatives, friends, and various spots of interest.

A beautiful surprise birthday dinner was given in honor of Mrs. Evelyn Scott by her husband Sunday evening at their home. Some 40 friends and relatives were on hand to help celebrate. After the dinner the honoree received many pretty and helpful gifts.

School News
The Carver P.T.A. will hold their regular monthly meeting Tuesday, Jan. 8 in the school auditorium. President J. H. Briscoe will preside. A report from the fund raising committee will be made at this meeting.

Just before the Christmas holidays the following children of Stephens-Lee High school were listed as honor students for the second marking period: Dale Baxter, Beatrice Daugherty, Demetria Davidson, Cheryl Harper, Katherine and Sharyn Whittington.

With the Sick
Both Mr. and Mrs. James Williams were on the sick side during Christmas week.

Mrs. Bessie Forney was on the "not so well" list over the week end.

Mrs. Pauline Stepp has not been well for the past several days.

Mrs. Grace Greenlee was absent from church Sunday due to a severe cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Carson and Linda visited over the week end with Mrs. Carson's mother who not so long ago was seriously ill. During this visit, however, they found her much improved and were able also to visit other relatives.

Birthday Greetings To:
James Burris, Yvonne Carson, Archie Stepp, Mrs. Beulah Warren, and little Thea Copeland.

Sympathy
My sympathy is extended to members of the Gill family upon the recent home-going of Mr. Gill.

For many years, as most of you know, Ridgecrest was my home and this good family was our next-door neighbors. Mr. Gill was one of the finest Christian men I have ever known and one who had love in his heart for his fellowman.

I shall never forget the many kind words spoken by him during the sickness and death of both my parents. Having known and associated with this good family will always be one of my most cherished memories.

Verse From the Scripture Board:
Am I therefore become your enemy because I tell you the truth? Gal. 4:16.

If you asked a farmer how many head of cattle he had, chances are he'd be able to tell you exactly how many he had. If you asked the average man how much money he has in the bank, you could get an accurate answer here too. If he has anything in the bank, he'll know how much (of course, he might not feel like telling you).

People usually keep pretty good track of things like cattle and money because these things are so important to them—they are assets. And, whether it's cattle or money, apple trees or tractors, the average person tries to keep track of his economic assets.

There is one asset, however, that is frequently forgotten, that is the social security account. Many people couldn't tell you how much credit they have earned under social security—they couldn't even tell you if they've gotten any credit at all under social security.

This is a bad situation because many workers and their families are depending on social security. They take for granted that when the time comes social security benefits will be there for them. Unfortunately, many families have discovered that social security isn't something that you can take for granted. Social security is a program that requires the continuing cooperation of everyone involved in it. This means the employer, the employee, the self-employed, and the Social Security Administration—with each one playing an important part.

As you know, whether you work for someone else or for yourself, your earnings in work covered by social security are supposed to be reported to the Social Security Administration. We keep a record—though your working years—of all your earnings under social security and, based on this record, benefits are paid to you, the worker, and your family upon retirement, death, or disability—provided all other requirements of the law are met.

The important point to remember about all this is that unless you have enough earnings reported to your social security account, no social security benefits can be paid to anyone.

Although most peoples' social security records are correct, from time to time we run across a person who discovers that his record is not correct. Usually, we can straighten the matter out and no harm is done. But sometimes a social security record may be incorrect and we can't straighten it out and, as a result, in some cases the worker and his family may be unable to get social security benefits. We advise you to check your social security account at least once every 3 years. You will be sent a statement showing the amounts of earnings credited to your social security account. If it is correct, you'll have the peace of mind of knowing it. And, if it's not correct, you can contact the Social Security Administration and together we can take steps to correct your record.

So don't let your social security account be your "forgotten asset"—it's too important. You can check your social security account by writing to Social Security Administration, Baltimore 35, Maryland and asking for a statement of your account. You can get an addressed postcard form at your Social Security office for use in requesting this information. Don't forget, check your social security at least once every three years! This is particularly important if you have worked for an employer who, you think, may not have deducted and reported social security.

(CASE HISTORY 6222)
North Carolina male, age 46, has in the past 10 years had his license revoked 4 times and violations of the North Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles regulations include drunken driving, reckless driving, driving wrong side of road and an accident. Insurance covers 1955 pulpwood truck licensed to haul 22,000 pounds. Present revocation extends until March of next year, but a confidential report on insured says "In all probability he is driving the vehicle at this time". Insured is considered a bad risk as his record indicates, but an insurance company is required to carry the individual and pay claims which other drivers and policyholders must help pay for under North Carolina insurance statutes.

Watch out—this may be the next driver you approach.
