DR. MILDRED MORGAN TO SPEAK MONDAY AT MARS HILL

A home life expert now retired and living in Black Mountain, Dr. Mildred I. Morgan, will speak at Mars Hill College next Monday night (Oct. 7).
In a program sponsored by the Mars Hill College Chapter of the American Home Economics Association and open to the public, Dr. Morgan will discuss family living with emphasis on the problems encountered by young couples during their first years of marriage. The program begins at 7 p.m. in Spahnour Hall.
"An authority on family living for both young and old," is the way Dr. Morgan is described by Mrs. Mary Howell, head of the college's home economics department.
"Dr. Morgan has a wonderful philosophy concerning the relationship of family members," says Mrs. Howell. "She helps family members see how they can learn from each other."

Dr. Morgan was the first director of home economics at the former Asheville Normal School. She did some work in the same field in Maryland and also taught at Florida State University. She has attended the National Conference on the Aged at Purdue University and has directed family life conferences in various parts of Buncombe County and elsewhere.

JV's Last Score Was Happy End To Close Game

By Don Shuman
With two minutes left in the game, the Owen High JVs connected on a 65 yard pass for a 12-6 victory over the Hendersonville Bearcats Thursday on the loser's field. The victory upped the locals record to a respectable 4-1 mark. Both teams played a hard fought game in which the defensive play was the deciding factor.
Owen started the scoring in the first quarter when Fred Ivey connected on a 30 yard aerial to Roger Silvers which climaxed a 60 yard drive. The Warhorses defense held the Bearcat eleven to take a 6-0 lead into the second.
In the second both teams held each other scoreless with great defensive play.
In the third Hendersonville drove to the Owen 30 for a first down. On the next play a Bearcat halfback raced 30 yards to tie the score 6-6. The extra point failed as the score remained deadlocked at 6 all. The Bearcat defense remained strong to hold Owen scoreless in the third.
With two minutes left in the game Owen quarterback Fred Ivey connected on an aerial to Roger Silvers for 65 yards and Owen's deciding touchdown. The extra point failed as the Warhorses upheld their 12-6 lead to win the game.
Defensive standouts for Owen were Jerry Bridges, Mike McElreath, Guy Green, Mike Hunter, and Jim Par-ton.
This Thursday the Warhorses will be gunning for their fifth victory of the season as they entertain the David Millard Terriers at Shuford Field. On October 10 Owen has an open date. A game with North Buncombe might be played if the Blackhaws can make a schedule change. The Owen JVs close their season here with Canton on October 17.

UPPER CEDAR CREEK COMMUNITY

By Bessie Elliott Davis
Rev. Orin Vess of Swannanoa brought the message Sunday at our Church. "Fellowship" was the subject.
Rev. Cecil Smith and family were visitors to the service. We all enjoyed Cecil and Rainey, and their daughter Fay, who in emergencies fills in as pianist.
Our Pastor, Rev. Clark McKinney was dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Vess, one of our newest members.
Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Dobbins of Beckley City, West Virginia, with Raymond Peek of Black Mountain visited us Sunday afternoon. Loyd is a relative of ours by marriage. We were neighbors when my first husband and I were at Blue Jay, W. Va.
Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Davis came in and we found an acquaintance streak in the two families. We had a good time reminiscing over past years.
Walter's cousins, the Crowder brothers of Candler invited Walter with his Banjo to go with them for an audition in Banjo and Guitar and singing. They audited 4 records. We hope to soon hear them over the Radio.
Sunday, October 6 will be the Davis and Dalton re-union at Davis Town Church. All descendants of Thomas Patrick and David Davis, and David Dalton are cordially invited. Also Davis Town's new Church will be Dedicated that day.

LOSING OUT?—North Carolina Baptists may still be "as numerous as English sparrows", as the late J. M. Broughton phrased it one time, but there is some worry in high places that racial strife may be converting colored Baptists over to Catholicism.
The Baptists are bickering among themselves in scores of their churches throughout North Carolina about what to do about Negroes who are eager to become active members of their flocks.
The problem lies festering. And, when settled in this or that church, is still unsettled. But the Catholics opened their schools to Negro boys and girls more than five years ago.
If it were left entirely to the pastors of the churches, many of them would be wholly integrated by snowfall. However, the boards of deacons do not have these same deep-seated convictions and neither do most of the church members.
Meantime, the Catholics make hay.
Marse Grant, editor of the vigorous and influential Baptist paper, "Biblical Recorder", reports in the September issue of a conference he recently attended in these parts.
"While Southern Baptists continue to fumble the ball, others are running with it full speed. In a strategic state meeting which the RECORDER editor attended recently, there were 45 people of all faiths in attendance. Fully half of these present were Roman Catholic leaders, although they represent only one percent of the population of North Carolina. They are now pushing to the front as the saviors of the

POSTMASTER WILLIAMS RECEIVES THANKS FOR SAVINGS STAMP SALE

Postmaster Bob Williams said today he had received a letter from William H. Neal, National Director of the U. S. Savings Bonds Division, commending the local post office for its successful efforts in promoting the sale of U. S. Savings Stamps, and announcing that children buying their first stamps of the school year will be given a free certificate signed by the senior Mercury Astronaut, designating them as "Junior Astronauts". These certificates are now available at the Post Office.
Savings Stamps in 10c, 25c, 50c, $1 and $5 sizes are on sale at the post office at all times, as well as on Stamp Day in schools.
He has a way with him. The other night at a YDC political pow-wow at Carner, just out from Raleigh, he sidled up to a youngster and asked: "Do you have a Freyer commitment?"
The play on words added the Young Democrat for a moment. He stammered, but then came back with: "Oh, go jump in the Lake!"
Brewer—Somebody asked Brewer is holding up while waiting day-by-day the result of his appeal to the U. S. high court his conviction on the great highway signs scandal.
Well, we wouldn't know. Reports say he is in excellent trim, physically and mentally, with good morale. He no doubt has retained a good portion of his old sense of humor. He had one of the finest looking horses in Raleigh's big horse show sponsored by the Lions Club here last week.
Name of the Brewer nag: "Influence Peddler".
AUTOMOTIVE—This WP-TF radio announcer may just turn into a car before he is through with all those adjectives describing the new models.
One evening last week after a particularly long-winded and glowing report on the new Chevells he took a deep breath and said: "My that's almost enough to make you want to BE a Chevrolet rather than merely buy one."
CHOOSING SIDES—With two Democratic candidates for office already announced—we refer now to Mansion-wishers—and another expected about frost, the big companies in the State will soon start to choose sides.
This usually works in this way: This Northeastern North Carolina firm, for example, wants to be with the winner. So, one of their leading officials will line up with Preyer; another with Dan Moore; and a third with Dr. Lake. One of these may not even be a company officer, but one of the most important stockholders. The firm is in the background.
Each will work hard and earnestly for his man and, in the campaign, will make handsome contributions for his particular candidate. In this way, no matter who wins out for Governor, the firm will have a friend in the office. This happens over and over again.
We heard one last week about this 90-year-old man a leading tobacco company found out in Tennessee. He had started smoking as a boy and was still a heavy smoker. Well, this was the person they needed to counteract bad cigarette publicity.
They asked him if he could come to New York for a special television interview. He was carried away with the idea, had never been anywhere, and everything was going well with the plans until he learned he was to go on the air at nine o'clock one morning. Right there he put on the brakes; and they wanted to know why.
"Well, to tell you the truth" he said, "I don't stop coughing mornings till about twelve."
GREAT SCOTT!—This Dan Moore of Canton is making friends fast in Eastern North Carolina, where until a few day ago they didn't know
