CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

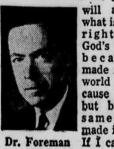

SUNDAY TOPIC

Why Am I Here? Lesson for April 12, 1964

Background Scripture: Genesis 1:26-30; Psaim 8; Luke 12:4-7. Devotional Reading: Psaim 1.

IF THIS is God's world, then it is my world too. Not mine in the sense that I can do what I please with it. Only God is free to do as He likes with the world, for He and He only has the power, the wisdom and the goodness to same God who Dr. Foreman If I can speak of These words from Matthew "Little less than God" (ch. 10) will be used as the Golden Text at Christian Science churches wext Sunday. The question, "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" will be explored in passages from the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, including this statement: "God is not the author of mortal discords. Therefore we accept the conclusion that discords have only a fablous existance, ture though he is, which shows a likeness to the God who made "All things under his feet" This joyful Psalm 8 thinks of man not in seclusion with a fence tures around him, but as having 'dominion," that is, control and mastery over the rest of creation. Now this can be done in two very different ways. A man who owns many hundred square miles of forest can cut the forest down and by careless, greedy methods lay waste the entire countryside-it has often been done. That man has demonstrated his "dominion" -his machines have been victorious over every tree that stood in their way. But the end is a vast countryside destroyed. An opposite example is another man who is a woodcarver. Out of pieces of wood, not specially beautiful, he makes objects which are useful and a delight to the eye. He is master of the wood; but when he gets through with it, he has brought beauty and usefulness into the world, not an empty desert. In times gone by witchdoctors would use poisons from plants they knew of to bring death to their enemies. Today some of those very plants and their poisons are used by chemists to make medicines that save people's lives. Witch doctor and scientist both have dominion over the plants of the field,-but what a difference!

We are chliged High though we are in the scale of life, nevertheless we are obliged to "our neighbor the universe" in ways past counting. Every atom in our bodies was drawn from the ground on which we walk, the air we breathe and the water we drink. If the universe had not nourished us we could never have been born. All the clothes we wear, everything we use and enjoy, is a gift of the universe around us. If we have friends, they too were cradled by the selfsame earth and sea and sky. When our Lord was here, it could have been arranged that he be fed by manna from the sky. But no, one of the marks of Jesus as a true and not makebelieve man was that He too had to be nourished and furnished by the world around him, even as we. So, although we are indeed to have dominion over other creatures, the thought of what we owe to our wonderful world will keep us from being tyrants, hateful and destructive. If we have any power, it is God-given; and we have no right to use our powers in ways that defy the grandchildren and a great-great-grandchild. The body remained in McCall's Funeral Home in Old Fort until taken my mountains, my country — much greater than I but still truly mine, I can speak of my world, the home God made for me, I belong here, I am created just as all things are created, not all at once with a big bang, but through the long centuries to the hour of my birth and beyond, I have come to be,-and this is the good pleasure of God.

The poet who wrote Psalm 8 speaks of man as created little less than God. Perhaps that seems too bold; our older English translation says "little lower than the angels," but the Hebrew means plainly "little less than God." This is a staggering thought. Let us take it at its lowest meaning, so as not to be puffed up with pride. In the beginning of the Bible it is said that man is created in the image of God. That means that there is something in man, creaare mortal beliefs which divine between him and the other crea-laws and slander the character of our Creator. (Based on outlines copyrighted by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A. Released by Community Press Friendship Presbyterian

The only person who does not find life in this world an often terrifying experience is the fool . . . Who is not afraid of those "thousand ills that flesh is heir to," to say nothing of other terrors? Did not even the Lord Jesus shrink is well that He does not. He delivers us from BONDAGE to fear—by showing us that God is our Father, that the Power behind the phenomena is our Friend behind phenomena. The Holy Spirit makes us adopted children of God. What does this do to our fears? It does not banish them, but it puts them in their right place; as our serv-

God's adopted children, that though the worst thing may befall us God will remain our Father and we shall remain His children and He will carry us through our tribulations to peace, joy, glory, and "a happy issue out of all our affictions."

If God be for us, who or what can be against us?

Christ does not deliver us from fear, and it
