Edith K. Benedict

When he can look upon the serene, now lucid and lovely, dark and terrible, with the great scheme of things yet have faith and hope.

When he knows how to love his friends and keep them above all when he can be with himself.

When he can look into a ditch and see something besides mud, and into the face of the most forlorn and see something beautiful.

When he knows how to live and not afraid to live in his heart's a friend, abroad an indication, in solitude a solace and in society an ornament.

When he knows how to be a companion to no misfortune can destroy, no crime can alienate, no desolation can enslave.

When he knows how to be a friend, abroad an indication, in solitude a solace and in society an ornament.

When he knows how to be a friend, abroad an indication, in solitude a solace and in society an ornament.

When he knows how to be a friend, abroad an indication, in solitude a solace and in society an ornament.

When he knows how to be a friend, abroad an indication, in solitude a solace and in society an ornament.

When he knows how to be a friend, abroad an indication, in solitude a solace and in society an ornament.

A Needy World

Lesson for June 7, 1964

Background Scriptures: Deuteronomy 10:17-19; Matthew 25:31-46; James 2:14-17; John 11:1-15

Devotional Readings: I John 3:11, 14-18.

Dr. Foreman relation to government and to nationalisms; and from now through June we consider our relation to the whole world.

THE TOP AND THE BOTTOM
A large order? Yes, indeed, staggeringly large. But two points run through all of this. One is that we are related to all these things, Christian and non-Christian alike.

The change-over from winter to summer clothing is a looked for event and one which, because we are so eager to get away from heavy clothes, may sometimes be rushed a little, making it necessary to wear sweaters long into the spring—no matter that light colored dresses require more work, every year their colors and fabrics are new inviting. Now the new synthetics are making lighter work of keeping garments clean and the very names, such as ice cream and whipped cream, so popular because of their drip-dry qualities, conjure up pictures of cool pastel shades so desirable for sticky days.

Then, too, it is a time for June brides and family reunions, for vacations and for long summer days when a good book in some quiet corner is all that one desires.

Yes, summertime is the time for fun, so let's be about it.

THE CHURCH—THE BODY OF BELIEVERS

Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth . . . Even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be saved. (1 Corinthians 10:24, 33.)

Often our concept of the church is limited to the believers of our own denomination, and all our zeal and effort is spent in the advancement of our own group. We do not see that as Christians we make up a long and single chain in the universal church, and that this chain is only as strong as its weakest ring.

What is the use, then, of the hardest labor spent in our single ring, without taking notice of the adjacent rings, which are as indispensable a part of the chain as is our own? Our disregard for our immediate neighbors in this fellowship has been the cause of perpetual weakness.

The church is one body; it stands or falls as a unit. No believer on any continent should have any contentment unless all believers, members of the universal church, can have it together.

Thought for the Day:
The chain of the universal church is only as strong as its weakest ring.

Welcome To Summertime!
Now is the time for outdoor living—for wide open windows and slamming screen doors—for graduation with both tears and joyousness—for sunbath and sunburn and screams of youngsters when hitting the cold water for the first swim of the day.
For out town it is time for return of friends who have been in warmer climes, time for watermelon and other luscious foods which have so far escaped the freezer—a time for camping out and eating out, even if it might be our own back yard. The ants are just as numerous there as if we had ridden for miles to another spot.
The change-over from winter to summer clothing is a looked for event and one which, because we are so eager to get away from heavy clothes, may sometimes be rushed a little, making it necessary to wear sweaters long into the spring—no matter that light colored dresses require more work, every year their colors and fabrics are new inviting. Now the new synthetics are making lighter work of keeping garments clean and the very names, such as ice cream and whipped cream, so popular because of their drip-dry qualities, conjure up pictures of cool pastel shades so desirable for sticky days.
Then, too, it is a time for June brides and family reunions, for vacations and for long summer days when a good book in some quiet corner is all that one desires.
Yes, summertime is the time for fun, so let's be about it.
