STANLEY BUSY SELLING ADS FOR PROGRAM
Head Football Coach and Athletic Director Bill Stanley at Owen has begun selling ads for the big 1964 football program which annually ranks with the best to be found in this area.

Merchants, business men, and industries wishing to be represented in the 1964 issue may contact Mr. Stanley at the athletic department of the high school.

"I intend to call on every prospect in this area but will appreciate a call from any that I may miss," the head coach said.

One major change this year is that Mr. Stanley is collecting for the ads as he goes. In the past the school has sent statements but this has not proved satisfactory and has necessitated a great deal of work.

The program will go to press in plenty of time for the first home game.

MORE FLORIDA
Some one asked why I didn't tell more about our recent trip to Florida to attend the Southern Conference of Council of State Governments at Sarasota sessions of which were held at Colony Beach Resort right on the Gulf.

My chief reason in not discussing this too much was the fact that we have so many people here, summer and winter residents, that know Florida inside and out and certainly would not be interested in what I had seen and heard.

But if and when you go to Florida, be sure to see the Singing Tower near Lake Wales, and go or come over the Citrus Highway which runs through Central Florida (I believe it's U.S. 27) and passes through the orange growing section of the state.

In fact we saw more orange trees between Sarasota and Gainesville than I had seen in all my other travels in Florida put together. At times it looks as if the orange orchards or groves (whichever term is correct) must cover the entire earth.

If you want a panoramic view of a large area of groves and lakes, stop at Clermont and take the elevator to the top of Citrus Tower. It was too hot the day we stopped but some say you can see Orlando to the east. The tower has all kinds of attractions but with the temperature hovering near the 99 mark we were interested chiefly in the fountain which served the coldest and finest orange juice we found in the state.

STILL BUILDING
Florida is still growing at a fast pace. New residents are pouring into the state from the east and midwest looking for permanent housing, schools for their children, and other facilities.

This has created serious problems in many areas and indications are that it will be some time before the situation starts to improve.

One man we talked to had arrived the week before from Connecticut with his family to "live in Florida".

Tired of the snow, ice, and cold weather in the northeast, he had quit his job, sold his home, and loaded all the family into a trailer and headed south. They settled at Sarasota because they liked the west coast and found it not as crowded as the Miami area. He will have no problem of income, so he explained, but the family he brought along will tend to further crowd the schools come fall.

All through central Florida and along the west coast near Sarasota and Bradenton, south of Tampa and St. Petersburg, there are hundreds of new homes being built in developments designed for the person looking for a home in the sun.

In the Sarasota area, and I presume in other coast communities, huge developments are underway to provide thousands of new homes all with their own water fronts.

This is not as hard as it may sound to us who live so far from the ocean. The developers merely dig concrete from the gulf inland, divide the sides, divide the land into lots each fronting on the canals or channels and sell them to the land hungry settlers. Each lot, of course, has its own landing so that the owners each may have a private boat dock.

But the new developments are not confined to the coast. Far inland there are new housing units containing hundreds, maybe thousands, of new homes built on paved streets that stretch away in the distance. That type of living wouldn't suit the average mountaineer but it seems to satisfy many of the new residents of Florida.

Please do not consider this as advice from an expert on Florida. Far from it. These are just a few of the impressions gained while on a week's trip to Sarasota.

YES, WHO WAS SHE?
Who was the Black Mountain lady who has property belonging to some one else, knows it, and is wondering, or was, just how to go about returning it?

Looking over the pieces of a new tent which she had bought to take the family camping, she decided that one piece was missing. Being a practical person she promptly went back to the store, convinced the salesman that he had shorted her when the original purchase was made, and walked out with a brand new piece.

UPPER CEDAR CREEK COMMUNITY
Bessie Elliott Davis

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davis of High Point, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Davis of Black Mountain, visited home folks a few days ago. Report that they like their new home and jobs.

Mr. and Mrs. Emory Vess had as dinner guests Saturday the 4th, Emory's sister and brother-in-law, Ruby and Herman Long from Wilmington. They were on their way home from a trip to Kansas City where they attended the wedding of their son Brantly, who is in the Air Force — electronic maintenance mechanic — at Richards-Gebour AFB, Kansas City, Mo. The bride is the former Elizabeth Rector, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rector of Connelly Springs. Ruby and Herman traveled in eight states, were particularly struck with the beauty of the Blue Grass section of Kentucky.

Mr. and Mrs. James Calvin of Morganton, their daughter Brenda and a friend, Miss Shirley Williams, are spending a week here at their place on Cedar Creek purchased from the Rev. Millard Hall of Drexel.

We had them as dinner guests Saturday; then Sunday morning they attended church with us. Mrs. Calvin and daughter Brenda rendered a beautiful hymn with Brenda at the piano and carrying the alto.

Saturday night we had unexpected company, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Davis and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McCool and son from Black Mountain. They had two electric guitars, a violin, and banjo. After a couple hours of music we served ice cream, cake, and coffee. We are planning a bean picking and canning for Tuesday.
