The boys entered camp Tuesday at the Owen High School where they will remain through August 28. A full list of the candidates will be in the NEWS next week. Mrs. Elizabeth Deal, lunchroom supervisor at Owen, is looking for vegetables of all kinds to be used in feeding the boys in camp. These would be taken to the lunchroom. $1,000 Realized From Event Staged Here For Benefit of New Library

Mrs. Culver A. Smith, president of the Friends of the Library, the organization which sponsored the Library Fair this past Friday, announced the success of the Fair with the statement that the income from the event brought $1,000 into the coffers. She believes the credit is due to the combined efforts of members and the community.

She stated that during the brief four and one-half weeks of committee organization and planning prior to the fair, many persons graciously responded to the call to help.

On behalf of the Friends of the Library, Mrs. Smith extends sincere thanks to each and every one who volunteered their services and talents; gave articles to sell or made cash gifts; contributed hours of labor in preparation for and during the fair; or came to the fair and made the salesroom and fairgrounds bustle with their activity and interest.

She wished that the names of everyone could be listed from the children who were eagerly selling "Come to the Fair" tags, to those, who, at the very last, were putting things in order after it was all over. However, space does not permit, but those who contributed in their various ways know, and the Friends of the Library know, and together, a great deal was accomplished.

There was a big poster in the salesroom with a stack of books painted on it to indicate the amount of money already raised for the new Library Building and the amount still needed. Now some more books can be painted in that stack to show the more than thousand dollar increase which was made possible by all those who helped.

It was a combination of old home day and market day. There was not a dull moment from the time the doors opened at 10 a.m. until the last bit of music died away after 8:30 p.m. People had their lunches at the various snack counters spread along the fair area. Many returned for the entertainment program held outside in the cool of the beautiful evening. They entered the cake walks, enjoyed the old Appalachian folk songs of the Partusch sisters and swayed with the Gray Eagle Square Dance Team.

Mr. Davis, who has been with the school for four years, made many interesting statements in regard to the school which has become so popular with boys and girls from the Swannanoa - Black Mountain area. He claimed that statistics show that graduates from ABTI average higher lifetime

C of C Hears Joseph Fox On Research

Joseph Fox, former Peace Corps member located in the Far East, was dinner speaker for the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday of this week.

Although Mr. Fox is very well acquainted with lore of the countries in which he has served it was his hobby of which he spoke, that of research in clocks. His studies have carried him back into 80 B. C. and all the way up at least to the 18th century. He recounted for the members many interesting points found in his research such as the amusement and entertainment found in unusual clocks over the centuries.

One of the most interesting findings recounted by Mr. Fox was an explanation of the physical principals from clocks adapted to the making of the Jacquard loom.

Mr. Fox a relative newcomer to Black Mountain, lives with his wife the former Gay Currie of Montreat and their children in the former home of Mrs. H. E. Stinchcomb, Gray Gables, on Tomahawk.
