90th Year Celebration Sunday

of the oldest and best ded of all community gathngs in the mountains is the Tree Picnic held each year the Bee Tree Christian irch. This year will make ninetieth celebration. It held each year on the first arday in September.

the fall of 1879 members of families who established Church decided to take a off from their work on the ms and cutting timber in mountains to get together a picnic. The first picnic held about a quarter of a from the present Bee Tree ch, in a pine grove. Those ple enjoyed the day so much decided to make it an annaffair. So for the past 90 rs the People of Bee Tree nunity and the Swannanoa ley have gathered and held reunion. This occasion is ked to with much anticipation year to year. The picnic has only been rained "in" once or twice in its his-

It is not a Sunday School or Church picnic, nor a reunion been speakers from year to of a family, but a reunion or home coming for residents of the entire community as well as those from the cities nearby

Around ten o'clock in the morning the people start gathering in the church yard. They shake hands, talk about things in the past and "Do you remember", brings on long reminiscening about the past as well as discussion of new happenings and developments.

The program gets underway at eleven o'clock with the singing of an old hymn. Then a preacher is called upon to offer a prayer. Usually his prayer is one of thanks to God for the blessings that are ours; for fellowship, freedom, the beauty of the hills and the goodness of the people, their liberties and their privileges.

G. K. McClure, D. Hiden Ramsey, Judge Zeb V. Nettle, Judge Sam Cathey, and Governor The programs have not varied Luther Hodges. Last years very much from year to year. speaker was Mrs. Charles D. Owen, Jr., member of the Buncombe County School Board. She was introduced by the present County Superintendent of Schools, Fred H. Martin.

The program continues with group singing, special numbers by quartets and solos. Usually a number of string bands are on hand. This is especially enjoyed by the old timers and young people. The music is by no means confined to religious music.

picnic dinner spread on rustic tables in the pine grove. Each cook puts her best gastronomical foot forward. The tables literally groan with platters of fried chicken, ham, all kinds of salads, meat, pies, preserves, homemade bread and fruit. The best cooks in the country are represented here.

After dinner many of the crowd return to the church for a continuation of the program, while others remain outside to talk over old times.

The years wars, then as now, saw many of the young people leave the Valley for service and work, but most try to get back on the first Saturday in Sept-

Many of those who were present in earlier years are no longer with us, but they are represented by children, grandchildren and even into the "great" grandchildren.

The people look forward to coming here from year to year to enjoy the fellowship and it reminds us that we can become so absorbed in our own little world and achivements in this fast moving modern world, that we must not forget the simple pleasure of fellowship with our fellowman and our need for

The closing lines from apoem by Ernest C. Durham of Raleigh, former chaplain, spoken in the C. Senate, are as appropriate today as when they were spoken by Governor Hodges in his address in 1957:

Thank God for people and especially every child, To whom we've kindly spoken and who looked on us and smiled. Thank God for what men say to others through their kindly eyes. Thank God for men whose radiant faces point us to the skies; Thank God for fellowship with others as we work and play, and while expressing kindred thoughts as we look up and pray. Yes, thank the Lord for fellow comrades, as we move along. While helping one another to recieve new hope and song.

May the picnic continue for The highlight of the day, to most people, is the bountiful following to most people, is the bountiful friends together.

Another part of its history and also a help in continuing the tradition of the mountains is a square dance on Saturday night at the Swannanoa Club House. This is enjoyed by young and
