SCHOOL BELL FOR TODDLERS

Preschool youngsters, who often feel left behind when school-age children return to the classroom, can learn while playing at home with the new school bell chime from Playskool. The chime inside the bell develops sensitivity to tones and sound in toddlers, and letters rimming the edge of the bell provide a familiarity with the alphabet. Play-tested and recommended for youngsters from 9 months to 2-1/2 years.

LETTER TO THE MANAGER "This suggestion has come to me from experience; I pass it on for what it is worth.

About 20% or more of the local calls are not answered due to the fact that the called party is not immediately available, and is not given the time to get to his phone. This is true especially in the summer time. He might be in the yard, basement, garage, garden or in a distant part of the house. Some may be busy at a chore they can't turn loose instantly, like changing a baby's diaper.

The average ring is about 3 to 4 rings, usually 3. About the time the called party reaches the phone it stops ringing - and they get about one half mad.

I suggest that some advice from your company on this point would help the subscriber and also the company." - A Buncombe County Phone User -

Thanks for the tip. Southern Bell experts on using the telephone suggest that you let your phone ring ten times, or about a n. ute to allow the called party a good opportunity to answer. On the other hand, we strongly suggest that it is courteous to answer your phone in two rings when possible. One solution to the problem which a call to your business office can solve would be a handy extension telephone located wherever you spend most of your time. But most of all remember:

"Telephone Courtesy Is Contagious" Why not try it and see?
