Sourwood Tree Specimen Soon To Be Available

Small specimens of sourwood, the newly adopted community tree, will be on sale in Black Mountain as soon as the dormant season arrives, it was announced today by the Town Improvement Committee.

"Where can I get a sourwood tree?" is a question being asked around Black Mountain since the Board of Aldermen officially adopted the sourwood as the "community tree" last month. Interest in beautifying the area with this native ornamental species has been stimulated also by newspaper editorials, stories and letters and by club programs.

The Town Improvement Committee, of which Mrs. Betty Tyson is chairperson, is concerned with the enhancement of all phases of community life. It feels that a special, representative committee should have the responsibility of implementing the tree project. In next week's paper it is expected that the personnel of the committee will be announced, along with initial plans to encourage every household, business, industry, school, church or other institution to landscape with sourwoods and give the community a mark of distinction.

Nurseries that grow sourwoods will begin digging, preparing for sale and shipping them as soon as there have been a few freezes and the plants are thoroughly dormant. While most garden centers and retail nurseries in our area do not stock sourwoods, they will be made available locally, and at a cost every one can afford. Buyers will be furnished with brief planting instructions which are to be prepared by Al Garland, landscape contractor.

M-AC Nature Day

Mr. Rabbit and Miss Squirrel recently surprised 50-odd fifth and sixth graders from Asheville Christian Academy with a firsthand story of what it's like to live in the wilds surrounding Montreat-Anderson College.

At first hesitant, the two over-sized "animals" finally emerged from the woods and began moving toward the children who were on a field trip with their teacher, Miss Jill North. Their guides, all members of the Outdoor Recreation and Nature class at Montreat-Anderson, soon caught sight of the approaching "creatures" and urged the students over to the "animals." A friendship quickly formed and the lives of Mr. Rabbit and Miss Squirrel began to unfold.

For the remainder of the outing, special environmental awareness games and projects provided the children with a look at nature through their senses rather than through a textbook. This approach to teaching, according to M-AC Recreation Professor Penny Nickel, is somewhat new and aimed at providing children with an intimate knowledge of the outdoors.

Christian Ministry ABCCM - East

Did you know—that your church can become a member of the Christian Ministry too? Memberships consists of making a monetary pledge of whatever sized contribution, large or small, on a regular basis, plus a monthly contribution of canned or packaged groceries to our pantry from your members. Your church members benefit from sharing with others less fortunate, and your church is urged to send us all those in need who entrust you to help them.

Each member church is entitled to two representatives to the Assembly, the governing body of the Christian Ministry. This group meets four times a year. There is a Board which meets monthly whose members are selected from the member churches.

Did you know—that the Christian Ministry now has a refrigerator to store perishables? If you are digging potatoes or storing apples and would like to share your bounty, we can keep some for distribution to needy families.

Did you know—that the Christian Ministry has more requests for boys' clothing than we can meet? In his cold fall wear her especially, warm jackets, sweaters, shirts and pants are needed. We have many calls, too, for men's clothes from the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center since his agency no longer has a clothing chest.
