OSCAR D. McDANIEL, CHARGED WITH MURDER OF HIS WIFE, DEFEATED IN RACE FOR OFFICE OF PROSECUTOR

Missouri People Fail to Sustain Him in His Charges That Placing of Crime Upon Him is Work of Political Enemies—Conflicting Testimony at First Trial of Lawyer, Who Declared He Found His Wife Unconscious in Their Home.

AFTER DEMANDING THAT SLAYER BE FOUND, GRAND JURY CHARGES HIM WITH MURDER

ST. JOSEPH, MO., Nov. 24.—Oscar D. McDaniel, of St. Joseph, prosecuting attorney of Buchanan county, is charged with having murdered his wife, Harriet Moss McDaniel, on the night of July 14, 1916.

Because of the prominence of McDaniel and his previous record as a fearless prosecutor, the case has attracted widespread attention.

Another almost unprecedented feature of the case is the fact that McDaniel, while still under indictment for murder by a grand jury was a candidate for re-election to the office of prosecuting attorney for Buchanan county, and after a strenuous campaign was defeated at the polls on November 7th.

At 12:20 o'clock on the morning of July 15, 1916, McDaniel telephoned the police of St. Joseph that his wife had been terribly beaten in their home at 1806 South Twentieth street, St. Joseph. He said he had found her moaning and unconscious on the floor of her bedroom, with a deep gash in her head.

The coroner's autopsy later found the wound was nine inches long and had been inflicted by a blunt instrument.

Mrs. McDaniel, accompanied by her husband, was taken to the Ensworth Hospital, where she died at 8:30 a. m. McDaniel stayed with her until the end.

Mrs. McDaniel was 32 years old at the time of her death. The tragedy occurred on the eve of their daughter Helen's birthday and only a few days prior to the start of an intended trip to Boston, which McDaniel says he had planned to go with her.

Five minutes after the crime had been made known to the police the entire criminal machinery of St. Joseph was set in motion. A dastardly crime had been committed in the very household of the man whose activity against certain gangs of the city's underworld had won for him the praise of many and the hatred of some.

Police, detectives and private agencies were employed immediately and the bloodhounds were set upon the trail. A hurried investigation of the house revealed that the dresser drawers in Mrs. McDaniel's room had been ransacked, two rings had been torn from her fingers and a revolver which she always kept in the bureau drawer was missing.

McDaniel said that on the night of July 14 he left home about 7:45 p. m., and visited the Odd Fellows Lodge remaining there about half an hour.

From there he says he drove his automobile to 17th and Buchanan streets to keep an eye for a short time upon a "house" in that neighborhood which had been called to his attention as needing observation. According to his testimony he "stunk around" this house for nearly an hour, then continued by automobile to another point in the city to investigate a charge that a certain place was selling liquor without a license.

From this point, McDaniel testified, he went directly home, putting his automobile in the garage and proceeding to his bedroom to retire for the night at 11:30 p. m.

Before he had completed his preparations for bed and while conversing with Mrs. McDaniel, he said, he received a telephone call from a man who said he was at the saloon of Hart and Blakesley, 8th and Messanic streets. The man impersonated a personal acquaintance, McDaniel said, and informed the prosecuting attorney that a brother of McDaniel was in the saloon drinking heavily.

Re-dressing, McDaniel said, he told his wife about the telephone call and hurrying to the garage, took out the automobile and went to the saloon to get his brother. He said he found no one at the saloon who admitted having called him, nor was his brother there. At the suggestion of the bartender, McDaniel said he visited another place. But this visit was equally futile.

McDaniel decided the telephone call was a "fake" and returned home, arriving about 12:10 a. m.

As he was alighting from his automobile directly in front of his home McDaniel said, a shot was fired by some one behind a large tree just south of the garage. It was then, for the first time, that McDaniel associated the proceedings of the last few minutes with an anonymous letter received some days previous to the murder in which the author in very illiterate terms and printed letters, declared that if McDaniel failed to set aside charges against a certain prisoner in the county jail, he and his family would be "blown to hell."

McDaniel said he crouched down behind the hood of his automobile when the first shot was fired, took out his own revolver, which he always carried while prosecuting attorney, and fired. McDaniel said he fired five times and that the assailant fired five, making it ten shots in all.

Fear for his family now took hold of McDaniel and he dashed into the house and to his wife's bedroom where he found her moaning and unconscious.

The bloodhounds were first to reveal a possible clew. In the rear of McDaniel's home a basement window screen was found cut and the window open. The road to the McDaniel bedroom was clear, up the stairs through easily unlocked doors. The bloodhounds were "nosed" at the basement window and the trail began. They led a zigzag course through the back yard and through two miles of streets to a house on Eighth street, then they wandered up and down the corridors of this house and up and down an alley in the rear.

Eleven suspects were arrested in this house but a thorough investigation led to nothing definite. Other suspects were arrested in the lower districts throughout the city, especially members of gangs.

In Letter to Mr. Hackburn, He Expresses Appreciation for Hospitality.

SAYS INSTITUTION A WONDERFUL SUCCESS

Mr. E. B. Hackburn received the following letter from one who attended the Sudan meeting last week. We liked it so well, we asked Mr. Hackburn for the privilege of printing it.

"Mr. E. B. Hackburn,
"New Bern, N. C.,
"My dear Boss:

"May I not begin my letter 'My dear 'Boss?' It seems to me I could do nothing else after my visit to New Bern on yesterday. Everybody else calls you that and I would not feel right if I did not do so.

"I want to thank you for the most delightful time which I had, and which was due so largely to your most cordial hospitality. I am very grateful to my friend Rosenthal for taking me to New Bern and letting me meet such nice people and I shall not let him rest until he makes it possible for me to play a return engagement. I enjoyed every minute I was there and reluctantly left on the early train.

"The institution of Sudan was wonderful success in every particular and I congratulate you and all the Shriners upon the auspicious advent of the baby Temple.

"I hope the next time you are in Savannah you will let me know as I shall be mighty glad to see you, and shall hope to have the opportunity of contributing something to your pleasure while you are here.

"With kind regards and best wishes, I am,

"Very sincerely yours,
"W. V. DAVIS"

A BIT SLOW

"How are the incubators getting along?" asked a friend of his neighbor who had recently bought some.

"Why, all right, I suppose; but although I have had them for two weeks now, not one of the four has laid an egg yet."—Ladies' Home Journal.

charges of "jury jobbing" had been made by John T. Barker, attorney general of Missouri, called in at the eleventh hour by Gov. Major to assist Special Prosecutor Lockwood. Judge Ryan declared a mistrial, dismissing the jury and postponing the case until November.
