

SHORT LOCALS.

Short cotton, 24c; seed, 52½c.
Rev. H. Norwood Spence, of High Point, will begin a special mission in Calvary church tonight, which will last through the week.

Mrs. A. A. Tarlton had string beans, roasting ears, and butter beans fresh picked from her garden for dinner Saturday. The frost several weeks ago got most of the gardens, but a few are still bearing.

Crop Statistician M. John Burr reports that 13,535 bales of cotton were ginned in the county prior to November 1st, as compared with 19,293 to the same date last year. This is a shortage of 5,758 bales to this period. It looks now like the Anson crop will reach 19,000 or 20,000 bales.

Officers D. W. Sedberry and H. L. Dabbs on last Saturday visited the small store of Dorse Jones, in South Wadesboro, and found a small quantity of liquor, also a number of empty containers. Jones is now under $300 bond. For some time there has been complaint from residents of that vicinity regarding Jones' store.

Last Saturday Charlie Tillman was run over on the Salisbury road by a car driven by Herbert Sturdivant, and was painfully hurt. The paved road through the colored section is dangerous and both drivers and pedestrians should be careful. It is usually very crowded on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

"Little" Jack Freeman colored, was arrested by officers last night on a charge of attempted rape of a colored girl, and he is now in jail. Freeman was chased by relatives and friends of the girl, and went through a barb wire fence in the course of the chase. However, when officers went to arrest him they found him in bed.

The Wesley Bible class of the Methodist church had a weenie roast on the high school grounds last Friday night, and the event was well attended and much enjoyed. Short talks were made by Messrs. J. H. Armbrust and W. K. Boggan, and in an eating contest with L. G. Atkinson, Fred Ballard showed that he is still the champion eater of the class. Mr. R. L. Bowman was present with a radio and the concert which it furnished was a feature of the evening.

FORGET IT.

Philadelphian Record.
The republican attitude toward the grave scandals which have stained the administration of national affairs at Washington is not that of a repentant sinner. The party makes no apologies. It acknowledges no guilt. It assumes no responsibility. It relies upon the potency of an appeal which may be expressed in three words:

"Aw, forget it!"
Are the American people going to forget it?

Are they going to condone an unexampled orgy of corruption which the executive department of the government failed to halt, and the profits of which would have been pouring into private pockets today but for the interference of the senate? Are they going to overlook bribery reaching its slimy hand into the cabinet of the president of the United States? The convention of hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of government property to private uses? The debauchery of the department of justice and the perversion of its functions, so that its powers were used to protect grafters, its agents to intimidate and spy upon investigators, its codes for the secret correspondence of persons trying to evade the long arm of the law? The shameful appropriation by able-bodied civilians of a large part of the enormous funds voted by congress for the relief of disabled veterans?

Is there an American whose blood does not boil when he thinks of the unspeakable meanness, the gross inhumanitarianism, of the harpies who, under republican auspices, participated in this robbery of crippled soldiers who had laid down more than life itself on the altar of patriotic self-sacrifice? Is there one who dare to demur to the proposition that every man, and every agency high or low, responsible for the looting of the lame, the halt and the blind shall be held to the strictest accountability?

Forget it! How can honest men and women who put decency above partisanship forget it? How can Americans who take pride in the success of their republican form of government, with its inherent power of punishing maladministration and insufficiency at the ballot box, forget it?

One of the foremost Coolidge workers in Ohio is Harry M. Daugherty, Rear Admiral Robinson, who was Doherty's able assistant in putting over the worst of the oil deals, is now slated for promotion by the Coolidge administration. Indictments hanging over the head of a bootlegger who retracted testimony he had given about the use of money in the purchase of immunity in liquor deals have now been quashed at the instance of an assistant U. S. attorney general.

Forget it!

THE USEFUL AUTOMOBILE.

There is a disposition in certain quarters to criticize farmers for buying automobiles. The critics seem to think that farmers use autos for pleasure only and that they should work more and ride less.

These critics are very much mistaken. The automobile is one of the farmer's most urgent necessities. There is no more useful machine on the farm than the automobile. The ox wagon and the horse and buggy are now too slow on the farm. "Speed" is as necessary on the farm as in the town and city.

The automobile has given us good roads, consolidated schools, efficient rural delivery, more efficient county agents, and a broader social outlook, in addition to enabling us to market our produce and buy our farm supplies to the best advantage. There are many farm homes without telephones and goods are not delivered to the farmer's door, and the automobile enables him to attend to his business in the shortest possible time.

The automobile is a great time saver on the farm. It takes the farmer to church, after the doctor, and to town to attend to business quickly and brings him back rested rather than in a tired condition. The farmer can now do a day's work on the farm and then attend a meeting 10 miles distant at night.

The greatest thing in the farmer's life is a satisfied family — a family content to remain on the farm. The automobile makes it possible for the farm family to mix with their neighbors, visit the school, attend church and social affairs, go to town, or a meeting of the club. Among the lists of benefactors, such as rural free delivery, telephones, water-works, electric lights, county agents, etc., the automobile is entitled to a place well at the head for without it, success on the farm is much more difficult to achieve. — G. H. Alford in Progressive Farmer.
