HOW PRESENT METHODS LOWER COTTON PRICES

The System of Dumping Cotton is One of the Greatest "Bear" Forces on the Market Says Clarence Poe

"The selling or dumping of cotton by individual growers, under present conditions, is one of the greatest conceivable 'bear' forces on the cotton market. It is one of the strongest possible forces for breaking prices every fall on every pound of cotton we sell."

So writes Clarence Poe, a member of the organization committee of the N. C. Cotton Growers Co-operative Association. In further developing his idea he says:

"Suppose a farmer has good middling cotton that is really worth at the time it is offered 21 cents a pound. Suppose a buyer says to him, 'I will give you 17 cents for your cotton.' Suppose the farmer finally gets 19 cents. Then when another farmer comes along with good middling, Mr. Buyer says, 'Well, I have just bought a bale as good as yours for 19 cents' or 'We are paying 19 cents for this grade today.' The result is that the second farmer is likely to take 19 cents also. And so on with other farmers who come to the market. And the same depression in prices is forced by all other buyers of the less surplusous sort. (Of course, there are many buyers who would only a fair profit, but the farmer cannot discriminate.)

"Now, what happens further? The average price paid for cotton on that market that day is reported. Then the average for all grades is seen to be considerably lower than standard market prices. Consequently, we go out that 'Farmers are letting cotton go at such and such a price; why say more?' And on a thousand markets all over the South, every day there is more or less of this tendency to 'bear' prices. The average price paid for cotton 'basis middling' in each market is reported and the cumulative result is highly important. For New York, New Orleans, and Liverpool betting is simply betting on the price at which the farmer will turn loose his cotton, and when he is known to turn it loose at less than the standard figure, all prices drop accordingly.

"In other words, the cotton marketing business today is dominated by buyers, and it is to the average buyer's interest to get cotton as cheap as he can. In actual practice, therefore, a very great proportion of cotton buyers become 'bear' influences, beating down prices in the way just suggested.

"On the other hand, the strong, capable, highly efficient selling agent for co-operative marketing associations, would become one of the powerful 'Bull' influences—an influence for maintaining and boosting cotton prices. It will be to the interest of these co-operative marketing representatives to see that cotton is not as low as possible but as high as possible—for they will be hired by farmers, and responsible to the farmer, and the higher the prices they get for the farmer, the more they will they be of continued employment and good salaries.

"At the risk of a little repetition, let's sum up the whole matter in this way:

"1. Under the present system, the main voice in naming cotton prices is that of the cotton buyers. They are the keenest, best informed, financed, and most resourceful in the cotton marketing game. It is to the interest of the average buyer to get cotton as cheap as he can. Consequently he becomes a 'bear' influence and inevitably a 'bear' influence on cotton in the way just illustrated—and cotton prices suffer accordingly.

"Under the co-operative marketing system, on the other hand, an equally conspicuous factor in the market will be the selling agents employed by the farmers' co-operative selling association—selling agents who are just as keen, just as well informed, just as resourceful, and just as well financed as cotton buyers. Now, it will be to the interest of these selling agents to sell cotton as high as they can, and by knowing the market price for every pound of every grade that is offered, the co-operative marketing association will become the most powerful permanent 'bull' influence the cotton market has ever known, the most powerful for holding up prices and preventing their depression by unwise and untimely selling.

"In short, the present system of selling cotton is a 'bear' system—undoubtedly forces down cotton prices below their proper level every year that comes. The co-operative marketing system will be a 'bull' system that will prevent the selling of cotton below its real worth, and thereby become a factor to hold up or boost prices every season that comes. "Which system should farmers choose?"

GROVER NEWS NOTES OF LATE HAPPENINGS

Effort Being Made to Block Blockading and Profanity—Personal Mention of Interest!

Special to The Star: Grover, Oct. 4.—Cotton selling in Grover today for 21 cents. It sold for this a part of the day Saturday. This we understand is the top of the market for this part of the country.

We are glad to know that Mr. M. H. Bell is improving from a cut he received a few days ago when a scaffold on which he was working fell carrying him and one or two others to the ground. Mr. Bell was the only one seriously hurt.

We are glad to report the case of scarlet fever and diphtheria reported last week as much improved. There have been no new developments of either disease.

Little Paul Johnson, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. O. Johnson, was confined to his bed for a few days last week with tonsillitis.

We are pleased to note that Mr. J. T. Hardin is making progress on his new home in the western part of town. We shall be glad when these good people are able to move back with us.

Miss Georgia Kyies, who is taking training in John Hopkins Hospital was a visitor in the home of Mr. S. C. Patterree last week.

Miss Geraldine Mullinax gave an informal birthday party to some of her friends last Saturday. Those present enjoyed a hunt for muscadines. Miss Mullinax had passed her thirteenth summer.

Mr. W. T. Williams of River View, Fla., spent a day last week camping near the home of Mr. Charles Shepherd. Mr. Williams was returning to his orange farm in Florida after spending the summer in New York.

Prof. T. C. Burnett arrived Friday and took charge of our school this morning. Prof. and Mrs. Burnett are boarding with Miss Bessie Turner. We welcome these good people to our town.

Miss Ophelia Mullinax visited her sister Miss Alene at Limestone College Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Johnson, and Mrs. A. G. Dillingham spent Monday afternoon in Shelby.

We are glad to hear that there is such a demand for the undersigned exhibit them to the undersigned before the 3rd day of October, or this notice will be pleaded in lieu of their recovery. All persons indebted to said estate will please make immediate payment. This the 3rd day of October, 1921.

CLAUDE DIXON, Administrator of the estate of Sarah Elizabeth Dixon, deceased. RYBURN & HOEY, Attys.

Mr. J. R. Bridges, Jr., of Charlotte was the week-end guest of his wife, Mrs. W. A. Murray.

Chilly rooms made comfortable

And you do it with a Chilly Room Heater. With delightful autumn come chilly nights. You dislike to start steam heater until it is too late.

Next to the great invention Oil Heater it burns for about 10 gallons of kerosene and half what it did last year.

It is an expensive used room and bath time. Hundreds of them.

Wheat

White Plains, N. C. (Surry county)
R. F. D. No. 1, June 15th, 1921.

The American Agricultural Chemical Co., Greensboro, N. C. Gentlemen:

It affords me great pleasure to write you what I think of your Basic Lime Phosphate—A. A. Quality.

I have found it to be a better formula than 8-2-2 or 16 per cent acid for wheat, clover, corn and grass crops I have used Basic Lime Phosphate for two years and consider it better than anything I ever used for the above crops.

I have had no trouble with rust or disease in my crops when I used Basic Lime Phosphate.

I trust you will so arrange that we can get Basic Lime Phosphate for spring and fall.

Although the season has been bad, my wheat crop of twenty acres this season is better than it has been for three years.

Yours truly,
(Signed) JOHN M. NICHOLS.

Frank Mayo, Universal Star-writes

Universal Film Manufacturing Co. SIXTEEN HUNDRED BROADWAY NEW YORK

Gentlemen:—Frequently in the making of a new picture I find that the part I am to portray necessitates something in clothes just a little bit different. And it occasionally happens that the very styles I need are left in another part of the world. As quick action is one of the essentials of my profession, I have found the various styles I needed at the store selling Monroe Clothes.

Yours very truly,
Frank Mayo

What Frank Mayo, the celebrated star, says about the value of Monroe Clothes is confirmed by the fact that over 500,000 New York men now wear this famous brand of clothing. In Monroe Clothes you will find the utmost in Style, Service and Satisfaction
