MISS EBELTOFT'S WELCOME ADDRESS

Beautiful Welcome to Federated Club Ladies in Shelby Last Week

The following is the beautiful address of welcome delivered by Miss Elizabeth Ebeltoft to the 100 lady delegates who attended the district meeting of Federated Clubs in Shelby on Friday of last week.

"As the season Thanksgiving approaches and we begin to count our blessings we shall certainly name, among them, this happy occasion—for we deem it a great privilege to welcome you, the women of the fourth district and our distinguished officers of the Federation here today.

We are happy in the thought that we are even a small part of this great body, composed of many members, and tho' with a diversity of gifts—one in aim—one in purpose—this aim being SERVICE.

We feel that the Fourth District as a whole, completes a perfect harmony—all Heavens' most gracious gifts of heart, of mind, of body and the beauties of nature, the love of music, and the creation of art are all emphasized in the functioning of this organization, and—perhaps the music of this harmony resounds to farther reaches than we are aware of in our small sphere.

Again we extend to you our heartfelt welcome, and we would our guests might linger to better know our little village where healing waters flow; and we know in them we'd find daily inspiration in work of heart and mind."

WHERE SOULS ARE SAVED AND LOST IS THE HOME

Baltimore Sun: The Methodist Episcopal Church adopted a vital policy at the national conference in Detroit in emphasizing the importance of restoring old feminine standards in the home.

The women of a former day may have been lacking in the educational breadth of the present, but they possessed an inspirational spirit and purpose finer and more powerful for moral good than comes from college culture alone.

The Methodist Church in leading its spiritual legions in a crusade for the recovery of the Holy Land of home is striking at the most menacing feature in the modern moral situation.

But Decline in Value in October as Compared With Same Month Last Year Was Also Noted

Washington, Nov. 21.—Exports of cotton and cotton seed oil advanced sharply in volume but declined in value in October as compared with the same month a year ago, according to foreign trade reports issued tonight by the commerce department.

Cotton seed oil exports for October aggregated 10,000,000 pounds valued at $91,000 against 7,000,000 pounds worth $1,000,000 during the same month last year.

Exports of breadstuffs, meat and dairy products, and mineral oils during the month decreased considerably as compared with October 1920 totals.

Cotton exported in October amounted to 874,000 bales valued at $91,028,000 compared with 583,000 bales worth $91,247,000 a year ago.

Cotton seed oil exports for October aggregated 10,000,000 pounds valued at $91,000 against 7,000,000 pounds worth $1,000,000 during the same month last year.

On the other hand, there will be a general disposition in this country and in England to accept Mr. Hughes' estimate and regard the Washington conference as a first step in the direction of international understanding.

Mr. Hughes' conception that the way to begin was to begin, and that the limitation of naval armament was the one specific and definite thing which could be done has prevailed, has made the conference what it has been and the ultimate success or failure will depend on whether, as Mr. Hughes believes, the present session proves a beginning or an isolated incident.

One further consequence of the Washington conference is likely to be the final dissolution of Anglo-French ties. The bitterness here between the two nations has been more acute than is generally known.

M. Briand and Mr. Balfour for example have never called upon each other or met except in the accident of conference or social occasion. French support of the American thesis in the matter of submarines has roused a British resentment which is likely to disclose itself in a startling fashion after the conference.

RESULTS COULD BE WRITTEN TODAY

Limitation of Naval Construction and Side Stepping by Japan—End Anglo-Jap Alliance

By Frank H. Simmons Washington, Nov. 20.—The conference of Washington is practically over. All that remains to be done is minor and despite all superficial quarrel and bickerings the result could be written today.

(1) The limitation of naval construction, plus measurably scrapping the existing units. (2) The postponement and not impossible prevention of an American-Japanese war.

(3) The acceptance on the part of each country of a set of abstract principles in the far east without any form of guarantee for their application. (4) In some way not yet quite clear the Anglo-Japanese alliance will disappear.

The price of the first achievement is the surrender by the United States of the power placed in its hands by the last war to become the supreme naval country of the world.

The price of the second result will be the recognition of the special rights and interests of Japan in all of the far east, but particularly in Manchuria, such recognition duly testified to by the surrender on the part of Great Britain and of the United States of that naval power which would permit successful challenge.

The price which the United States will receive in return of the acceptance of the third point will be a Japanese agreement to retire from Shantung and from Siberia.

The disappearance of the Anglo-Japanese alliance will be the compensation that Mr. Hughes will receive for not pressing the far eastern question as it had been expected it would be pressed in the beginning.

These results will be regarded in the United States as a great victory for Mr. Hughes and for American diplomacy.

On the continent of Europe the Washington conference has already been hailed as a victory for British diplomacy even more complete and far-reaching than that of the Paris conference.

In Great Britain there will be a tendency to depreciate British achievement and regret that no greater curb has been placed on Japan, no serious effort made to reduce French arms, and finally no closer association between the United States and Great Britain actually arranged.

Nevertheless, the British people will rejoice in the escape from a naval competition with the United States which they could not afford or a voluntary surrender of sea supremacy to which they could not reconcile themselves.

Not improbably the Washington conference will be instantly attacked by many so-called liberals the world over as offering no relief for existing afflictions of the world and representing no forward step toward international association or toward the league of nations.

On the other hand, there will be a general disposition in this country and in England to accept Mr. Hughes' estimate and regard the Washington conference as a first step in the direction of international understanding.

Mr. Hughes' conception that the way to begin was to begin, and that the limitation of naval armament was the one specific and definite thing which could be done has prevailed, has made the conference what it has been and the ultimate success or failure will depend on whether, as Mr. Hughes believes, the present session proves a beginning or an isolated incident.
