In Memory of Virgil Gardner
Angels came and took our Virgil,
Whom we loved and cherished dear,
It was Virgil—yes dear Virgil,
Can we help but shed a tear.

And how hard we tried to save him;
All we did was all in vain,
Happy angels came and took him
From this world of toil and pain.

We stayed near you Virgil, dear,
We stayed with you all we could,
I longed to see your sweet face more,
When life held you so I could.

And our hearts are ever aching,
Although we smile each day,
For our thoughts are all with Virgil
Whom God has called away.

You suffered long, you murmured not,
You waited patiently day by day,
Until at last, with smiling face,
You quietly passed away.

From this world of pain and sorrow,
To the land of peace and rest,
God has taken you dear son,
Where you found eternal rest.

We shall never cease to miss you,
Until on the golden shore,
We shall meet and live forever,
Where life's parting comes no more.

Oh! he smiled so sweet upon me,
When he asked me for a kiss,
When he held my hand in his,
With a strong and loving clasp.

Now my heart is almost broken,
Looking for my boy home;
But he is now in Heaven's window,
Beckoning now to mother "come".

Virgil, thou wast mild and lovely,
Gentle as the summer breeze,
Pleasant as the air of evening,
When it floats among the trees.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber,
Peaceful in the grave so low,
Thou no more will join our number;
Thou no more our songs shall know.

Dearest Virgil, thou hast left us,
But your memories are so sweet!
Could I see you now, my dear,
Walking Heaven's golden streets.

Yet again we hope to meet thee,
When the day of life is fled;
Then in Heaven, with joy to greet thee,
Where no farewell tears are shed.

KEEP HORSES IN CONDITION

Farmer Makes a Mistake in Not Using Animals Off and On During the Winter.

It is a shame to take a good horse from pasture and put him into the collar before a plow, mower, reaper, or other heavy draft implements without his having been hardened to it first. In the main this is the reason for so many sore necks, added of course to the poor-fitting collars. Horses that are to do the heavy work should be used off and on all winter so as to keep their shoulders in shape and the skin toughened. At any rate they should be used before a wagon, manure spreader, or at some light work for some time before hard work starts. Be sure the collar fits. No collar pad is needed if the collar fits. Especially is this true with colts.

FEED PUMPKINS TO THE HOGS

Excellent Addition to Their Rations, and Really Cost Little to Produce.

Pumpkins can be grown at a small cost and form a valuable addition to the rations of hogs. They may be grown in the corn fields, especially where there is a poor stand.

The value does not lie entirely in their nutritive composition, but is due largely to the beneficial effects on the digestive tract, as they tend to regulate the bowels. It is estimated that the seeds are valuable as a vermifuge.

It is announced that the Chinese government has defaulted on a loan of $5,000,000 to a Chicago syndicate and that there is no immediate hope of adjustment.

MARKET REPORTS AID TRADE

Government Helps Farmer by Giving Out Information Regarding Supplies and Prices.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In a strict sense there can be no such thing as a "fair trade" when either party has the advantage of vastly superior information. Up to the time the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture was established most transactions in the marketing of farm products were, in this sense, unfair. This was due to the fact that the buying side almost invariably had vastly better information regarding supplies, both available and prospective, future production, prices current throughout the country, and probable movements of the products.

Placing the farmer on the same footing with the buyer, so far as information is concerned, so that the element of chance applies equally to both, is the aim of the Department of Agriculture. For this, it gathers every available scrap of information relating to supplies, current quotations, and the market of the great nation. The women went through incredible hardships and knew little other than that of the children they reared and had something in them. It must have been some such valiant pioneer mother from whom this courageous girl descended. Her estimate is a low or fast low; but she would do the impossible, just the same. And that kid-ners will have clean clothes when they come to Sunday school, too.

the department realize that it neither buys nor sells any commodity and has no interest to serve except that of accuracy. The whole purpose of its work is to hold a mirror before the markets of the country and to hold it at such an angle that all the people may see what is taking place at the moment.
