Dr. John A. Patterson, son of the late "Burt" Patterson has been practicing medicine with a wonderful degree of success at Concord for the past 12 years and "Pat" or "John" as he is familiarly known by many, has made good. He is now owner of a large hospital in Concord and is gaining some note as a surgeon.

Dr. J. Onslow Nolan is another young physician who has gone out from Cleveland and is making good. He was graduated at Jefferson Medical college and is now located at Kannapolis, the location of the Cannon mills, the largest towel mills in the world. He is kept busy day and night answering calls. Dr. Nolan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Nolan of Lawndale.

Not only has the county sent out physicians, but bankers as well and Fred Blanton heads the bank at Columbus, Polk county. He is the son of Mr. John B. Blanton at Mooresboro, a prominent merchant of that community.

Dr. Joe T. Cabaniss is medical examiner for the Travelers Insurance company at Hartford, Conn. Dr. Joe was graduated at Wake Forest, later took medicine in a northern college. He is the step son of Mr. Sidney Hamrick of Shelby and married a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. John W. Suttle. Mrs. Suttle is active in the religious life of Hartford.

Earl C. McFarland who used to ring the bell at the old Shelby wooden school building about 25 years ago, now holds a lucrative position with the United Fruit company and is located at Bocas Del Toro, Republic of Panama. He married a daughter of the former governor of Panama and has a brother-in-law who is contributor of short stories to the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. McFarland is the son of the late Mrs. Belle McFarland.

All know Bob Gantt, native of Belwood who is now practicing law at Durham. He is not only a prominent lawyer, but one of the head officials of the Junior Order of North Carolina. Bob was a baseball star at Trinity college, married a Miss Claywell, of Morantown, and has two fine children. He often visits his mother, Mrs. Melvin Gantt and sister, Mrs. Clayton Peeler in Shelby.

Three of the Gidney boys went west and continued to grow up with the country. Charlie and Will are both practicing medicine in Texas while Samuel E. took to law after he served as superintendent of the Shelby public schools and is practicing in Muskogee, Oklahoma. He has a grown son, John, whom he has taken in as partner. They are sons of the late J. W. Gidney, lawyer, one of the landmarks of Shelby, and brothers to Dr. R. M. and Lamar Gidney, who live here now.

Another who is gone but not forgotten is George L. English, who came to Shelby back in the years when monazite was a "money crop" for the farmers. Mr. English was a great mineralogist and had a fine collection of stones. When the monazite business fell off because of the importations from Brazil, Mr. English ran the Shelby Creamery in its more trying days. For a number of years he has been head of mineralogy in a university at Rochester, N. Y. He is not a native of Cleveland but an honored citizen whose memory will never be forgotten.

W. P. Wray is a baker in Abingdon, Md. Before he left Shelby he was in business here with Charlie Shull, buying cattle and selling fresh meats. He is continuing that line in Baltimore, but on a more extensive scale. About two years ago he visited his old friend Charlie Shull here and they had a great time talking over experiences of the "by-gones."

George Lattimore is trying to manufacture into goods all the cotton which his brother Sam grows out on their Sharon farm. George is with one of the Johnson mills at Selma, this state. He was born and reared in the Sharon community, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lattimore. Another brother is Andrew, now located in New York city with a large marine insurance company. Both come back to Shelby now and then, but not enough.

Herhall B. Young has gone to the far away state of Washington, located in the city of Cashmere, but is not forgotten. He is a brother of our townsmen, Fields Young, better known as the Star Brand Shoe Man. Herhall was a telegraph operator when he left here for the northwest in quest of better health. Fields visited him last summer and found him in good health and financial circumstances.

Oscar Newton Lovelace who bounced out of the Boiling Springs community after he finished at the high school, went through college, then settled down in Shelby where he went through the proverbial "starvation" period which all young lawyers must face, is now located at Goldsboro where he enjoys a fine practice.

J. D. Falls, brother of Claude of Fallston and others of this vicinity has been living in Newark, N. J., for many years. Quite a jump from the little town like Fallston to a big city like Newark, but J. D. Falls is measuring up in every way to his opportunities. He is government meat inspector at a large packing plant and if you buy packer meats, the blue stamp might have passed his observant eye.

Sam S. Marks, father of "Marks String Band" is away out in Stevensville, Montana where the climate is cold and the season is short, but one manages to make a good living on sugar beets, potatoes and cattle. Mr. Marks was United States Commissioner when he lived in Shelby and the Squire measured nearly seven feet in height. We hope he hasn't stooped under the weight of many years.

Some of the other doctors who have gone out to heal and help the sick, gone from us but not forgotten are Major Chas. E. McBrayer, United States army surgeon, in charge of the Pacific coast area. Dr. J. F. Wells, living at Tulsa, Oklahoma. Dr. T. Claude Lovelace at Henrietta, this state. Dr. J. Marvin Wells, at Middleburg, this state. Dr. John Noe Gardner at Sour Lake, Texas. Dr. W. E. Brackett and Dr. Guy Dixon at Hendersonville, this state. Dr. Chiv Thompson at Hugo, Oklahoma. Dr. C. D. Falls at Woodruff, S. C.; Dr. Joe C. Osborne who is retired at Umatilla, Florida. Dr. J. F. Hunt at Spindale, in Rutherford county. Dr. Sam Schenck in Kings county hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Fitzhugh Hamrick son of Leander Hamrick has been out in Pueblo, Colorado for a number of years and while he doesn't write home often, he is doing well with a cattle ranch. It is interesting to know how many people read The Star who do not take it. There is engineer on a railroad running out from Pueblo who went from Cleveland county. He doesn't take The Star because he is on the go all the time, but he is always calling on Fitzhugh for his "twinkle" letter from home.

When Chas. C. Blanton went west with J. W. Rudasill, both took to banking in Meridian, Texas. Mr. Blanton returned to Shelby to lift the load from his father, Burwell Blanton, when the only banking institution in Shelby at that time was a private banking institution known as B. Blanton and Co. Mr. Rudasill is still in Meridian. Like Mr. Blanton he knows horses and as far across the prairie as the eye can see he spots the owner of the horse by certain traits which only good horsemen know.

MRS. GARDNER IS MEMBER OF EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

At the Democratic state convention which met last week in Raleigh the following were named members of the Democratic state executive committee for the ninth congressional district:

J. A. Bell, Mrs. J. Laurence Jones, R. R. Ray, Mrs. T. L. Craig, W. C. Peimster, Mrs. A. S. Shuford, Mrs. O. Max Gardner, Guy Roberts, J. H. Giles, W. A. Graham, Mrs. Edgar Love, Miss Mattie Gardner.

The tenth district members are: Solomon Gallert; J. W. Winbourne, J. W. Rutherford, W. E. Breece, T. L. Gwyn, R. O. Self, Miss Martha Boswell; Mrs. M. A. Brown, Miss Elizabeth Kelly, Mrs. J. G. Stickleather, Mrs. George B. Walker, Mrs. Chas. F. Gold.

THE STAR'S COLUMN FOR THE FARMER
—LATE FARM BRIEFS—

Cleveland county farmers have this season already sold 15,000 bushels of cotton seed to farmers of other sections and States. Will better fertilization and diversification enable these farmers to turn a similar trick next year, despite Mr. Boll Weevil?

Record Fertilizer Movement.
Atlantic Coast Line railway officials feel confident that the 1924 movement of fertilizer from Wilmington to interior points is going to break all previous records. Although the season's shipments is not expected to conclude until late in next month the total tonnage moved thus far this year is ahead of that of 1923 movement of corresponding date. It was learned from the general offices of the Coast Line yesterday that there has been moved out of Wilmington over the A. C. L. to present date slightly more than 200,000 tons of mixed and unmixed fertilizers. To handle this mammoth shipment 8,300 cars were required.

The peak of the 1924 movement was reached a little more than two weeks ago, when almost 200 carloads of the material was being shipped to various points within an approximate radius of 100 miles daily. It is stated authentically that about 34,000 tons more fertilizer has been shipped from this city via the Coast line than had been moved up to April 14, 1923.

About 66 per cent of an egg is water. Do your hens get all they want?

Late Cotton Planting.
The farmers of Richmond county are busily engaged now in planting cotton. The planting is fully two weeks behind through the county, but with favorable weather this delay can be overcome. The weevil infestation was very heavy last summer and a late crop means added damage from the weevil. Richmond county produced 20,384 bales of cotton in 1923, as compared with 15,623 in 1922. The greatest yield ever made in this county was in 1920 when 23,744 bales were made, while the smallest crop was in 1916 when only 9,259 bales were made. Then ten-year average for the county is 15,303 bales.

When you want to buy or sell anything, Mr. Farmer, it is to your advantage to advertise in The Cleveland Star, read by farmers all over North Carolina's best farming section.

Set Sweet Potatoes Close.
(Progressive Farmer.)

Most people set sweet potato plants too far apart. This usually results in abnormally large potatoes, which do not sell as well as the medium-sized ones. These jumbos do not have as good flavor and are not nearly so desirable for eating purposes as the medium-sized potatoes, and for this reason, do not bring as much money. Therefore there is every reason why closer planting should be practiced. This is a point that every sweet potato grower should keep in mind, whether growing for shipping, for local markets or for home use. The average distance that most growers set the plants varies from 15 to 24 inches. This should be reduced to 8 to 12 inches, in order that the desired quality and size may be obtained.

Special to The Star.
Toluca, April 16.—Rev. L. E. Stacey of Fallston filled the regular appointment at St. Peter's church last Sunday evening in the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. H. Green.

Mr. Ed Canipe visited relatives at Cherryville Saturday and Sunday. Messrs A. G. Boyles and L. Eskridge Hallman were business visitors at Lincolnton Tuesday.

Mr. Clarence Boyles of Shelby was a pleasant visitor at Mr. John S. Hastings' last Sunday. Mr. Yates Harrelson and Miss Lucy Hicks spent a while Sunday evening at Mr. J. S. Hastings'.

Mr. Rob Cline and Misses Bessie Ward and Agnes Griffin were visitors at Mr. C. G. Boyles Sunday evening. Mrs. J. D. Boyles spent a part of last Sunday evening at Mrs. Ed Sains Prof. A. C. Ledford teacher at Piedmont high school visited at the bed side of L. E. Boyles last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Hicks visited Mr. Ellis Hoyle of Lincoln county Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Sain were visitors at Hickory Monday.

Miss Lois Willis was a caller at Mr. S. A. Sain's Sunday.

Max Gardner Leads The Entire Field

The following is an editorial taken from the Asheville Times of Friday, April 18th:
The personal popularity of Max Gardner was strikingly demonstrated yesterday when the state convention chose the delegates-at-large. The Cleveland man led the entire field, receiving nearly fifty per cent more votes than his nearest rival, the governor of North Carolina.

Gardner made a gallant fight in 1920. Against him was arrayed the full influence of the reigning dynasty of the Democratic party in North Carolina. He lost by a narrow majority. Defeat served only to accentuate Gardner's popularity. He accepted the outcome of the primary in a magnanimous spirit. He did not sulk in his tent. He exhibited no resentment. The sportsmanlike way in which he bowed to the will of the majority raised him in the esteem of the party which had refused to make him its nominee for governor.

Yesterday the Democratic party of North Carolina had a chance to honor Gardner and it took full advantage of the opportunity. He received considerable more votes than did the man who defeated him in 1920. Judged from the standpoint of personal popularity, Gardner is the leading Democrat in this state. There is no other man who has such a hold on the affections of the Democrats of North Carolina.

Political Pot Boils In Rutherford County

Rutherford County, April 21.—The political pot is boiling fast in this county. Here has politics been talked and discussed on the streets, in country stores and public places as it has the last two weeks in this county. There are six men opposing the incumbent, Sheriff Beason, while five men are in the race for county commissioner, and only one is to be elected. More are expected to announce soon.

One man and one young woman have announced against Register of Deeds M. T. Wilkie, who is also a candidate for re-election. It is reported that one or two others will announce for register of deeds, sheriff and county commissioner before the books close. The only county official who has no opposition is Mrs. Minnie F. Blanton, treasurer.

Col. Solomon Gallert threw his hat into the political ring when he announced that he would oppose John P. Beas as a candidate for the house of representatives. Attorney W. C. McRorie was last week nominated a candidate for solicitor of the 18th judicial district on the Republican ticket to oppose J. W. Pless, jr., of Marion.

Poisoned Candy Case Coming Up This Week

At the spring term of federal court, which convened in Statesville yesterday with Judge E. Yates Webb, presiding, an outstanding case for trial is that of Chap. Burroughs, of Catawba county charged with sending poisoned candy through the mails with the intent of killing or injuring his former wife, Bessie Hargrove. The indictment charges that each piece of candy revealed, upon examination, a bichloride of mercury content. The candy was sent on or about October 23, 1923, from a point in Western North Carolina to Miss Hargrove at Cottontale, Ala.

The case is on the docket for April 22. Witnesses under subpoena to testify include, besides Miss Hargrove, Jack P. Montgomery, of the University of Alabama; Preston E. Jordan, postmaster at Cottontale; W. W. Hartley, rural carrier at Cottontale. The defendant is in jail in Charlotte.
